man led the scoring, getting four baskets and seven free tries. Jackson and Riley were closely watched by Brennan, the big Rosary back and consequently did not see the hoop very often. Leary and Hefferon the star forwards, were the big gunners for the Rosary Club, the former getting twelve baskets and one free try, while the latter had six baskets.

Perhaps several basket ball fans will remember that the Holyoke right forward is no other than Chris Leary, who played here a few years ago with Holyoke teams and is the well-known catcher of the Westinghouse baseball team of Chicopee Falls.

While Mr. Drohan did not enlist from Belchertown, his long stay here made us intensely interested in his experiences.

Morse-Gay Wedding

Miss Mildred Ella Morse, daughter of former Senator and Mrs. Merrick A. Morse, and Raymond Cheney Gay, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gay of Turkey Hill, were married in the home of the bride's parents on Main street last Saturday evening at 6 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. P. Rankin of the Methodist church, assisted by Rev. W. O. Terry, Mr. Rankin wearing the Episcopal gown. The double ring service was used. The couple were married beneath a canopy of ribbons extending from the bay window to the chandelier. The window was banked with potted plants, laurel leaves and out flowers.

The bride's dress was of white net over satin with pearl trimmings, and she wore a tulle veil caught up with sweet peas. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and white sweet peas. The traveling suit was of brown silvertone with hat to match. The flower girl, Miss Eleanor Gay wore a dress of white organdie with a sash. Mrs. Blanche Upham Mason of Springfield played the wedding march. The ushers were George Stacey Gay of Springfield, brother of the bridegroom and Herbert D. Upham of Haddon Heights, N. J., half brother of the bride. The aisle girls were Miss Doris Upham of Haddon Heights, N. (continued on page 4)

Held Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Belchertown Community League was held in League hall on Monday evening. The war and the epidemic last fall which stopped all moving picture shows and entertainments helped to make the year a rather hard one financially, but a strong determination on the part of the stockholders to keep on was in evidence.

Officers elected for the coming year were: directors, E. C. Howard, Roswell Allen, Wm. Orlando, L. H. Blackmer, H. F. Peck, H. F. Curtis, G. H. B. Green, A. F. Bardwell and R. E. Fairchild; clerk, H. F. Peck; treasurer, G. H. B. Green.

The box social in connection with the annual meeting, yielded considerable interest and in addition about twelve dollars to the treasury.

It is expected that a special entertainment and a "real" box social afterwards will be given by the league in the not distant future.

This summer will no doubt see League hall look more presentable as paint is bought and on hand with which to do a good portion of the work.

Young Men's Club Win In Final Period

In the closest and most exciting basketball game played here this season, the Young Men's Club five defeated the Massasoit A. C. aggregation of Springfield on the Town hall surface last Thursday night by a score of 51 to 46. The game was witnessed by a slim crowd, but what rosters that were there were kept on edge throughout. The Springfield team presented a fast five and gave the local basket tossers a battle royal.

The Home City crowd started off fast and with Keefe in the lineup, this making his fourth trip to Belchertown this season, soon had the Club boys worrying. The visitors said that this was their closing game of the season and the local boys admit that they certainly tried hard to win the game.

There was great excitement in the first twenty minutes, the Massasoits having the edge of a close battle in that opening half. The half ended (continued on page 3)

Celebrates Golden Wedding in Brattleboro

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey L. Hadlock celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Saturday at the home of their son, Frank H. Hadlock of Brattleboro. A family reunion was held during the afternoon and evening and at that time several neighbors and friends called to extend congratulations. Refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Hadlock received gifts, including twenty-five dollars in gold, flowers and other useful articles.

Mr. Hadlock was born in Russell, Ohio, April 1, 1844, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lysander Hadlock, and is the only one living of a family of four children. Mrs. Hadlock, whose maiden name was Mary Ann Barden, was born April 3, 1851, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Barden, and is the only one living of a family of several children. Mr. and Mrs. Hadlock were married in Savoy March 29, 1869. They have three sons, Frank H. of Brattleboro, Arthur E. of West Townsend and Earl F. of Northampton, also two daughters, Mrs. G. L. Worden of Marlboro and Mrs. C. W. Hathaway of New York city. There are also twelve grand children.

Mr. and Mrs. Hadlock came to town several years ago and are highly respected in the community. They preferred, however, to celebrate their anniversary in the place where they spent so many years of their married life.

Mr. Hadlock is a civil war veteran, (continued on page 4)

To Fill Out Blanks

By direction of the Secretaries of War and Navy all discharged soldiers and sailors will report to the town clerk of their home town for registration by local authorities. This is to establish a local record of each man and may be available for future reference and also to establish claims that may come up many years from now.

In reporting for this registration it is necessary to present the soldier's final discharge. Capt. Elliot is helping with this work and has the blanks at his office where he will be glad to render all possible assistance.

America's Reputation

It should be a source of great satisfaction to all high minded citizens that America stands high in the sisterhood of nations.

We must not fail the nations of the earth at this critical juncture. We must not allow our national policies with their almost sacred jealousies to stand in the way of the greatest plan ever set forth for world security.

It is gratifying to know that some of our senators, having heard from home, have ceased their opposition and are now declaring that they favor a League of Nations but are opposed to the kind proposed by the Peace Conference.

Home With War Cross

We print below an abbreviated account of an article appearing in a Newton paper of the part played in the great world war by Lieut. George H. Mellen, Jr., and Harrison H. Mellen, sons of George H. Mellen of Boston, who it will be remembered was at one time a successful teacher in our local high school.

"First Lieut. George H. Mellen, Jr., also adjutant of the 369 infantry, has returned from France to his home in Newton Highlands.

"Lieut. Mellen has had a wonderful record overseas, and received the Croix de Guerre as the result of his bravery in a charge made in the Champagne, September 26, 1918, when he with his colored troops went through a swamp against machine guns.

"He was one of the three first American officers to reach the Rhine. In all the hard battles in which he was engaged, he was never wounded, though shells were constantly falling around him.

"He has a brother, Harrison H. Mellen, who has seen hard fighting with the 26 regiment and who also has never been wounded. His return depends upon the date of the home coming of his famous regiment."

Young Men's Club Win

30 to 24, with the visitors leading. In the second half, the Young Men's Club struck its stride and nosed out the visitors in the last few minutes of play.

The game opened with Healy of the Massasoits shooting the first basket about a minute after action had started. Jackson then hooked a floor goal for the Club team. Keefe dropped in two double-deckers in succession and Bridgman annexed one two-point goal.

Bridgman led off in the scoring in the second section and Jackson followed. From this point the Springfield team began to slow up, while the Young Men's Club gathered more speed.

The Jackson boy was all over the floor and his eye was keen for the basket. He had 8 baskets—a total of 16 points. To Capt. Riley goes a big part of credit, for he had seven floor ringers. Bridgman at center, although pitted against King, who had it on him in high, managed to get the tap on his opponent part of the time and started the Young Men's Club combinations.

Lineup:

Table with columns for Y. M. C. and Massasoit A. C. listing players like Jackson, Riley, Bridgman, Noel, Lynch, Austin, Healy, Keefe.

The Young Men's Club basketball team will play the Collins A. A. five of North Wilbraham in the Town hall tomorrow night. After holding a few practice sessions during the week, the local players are in tip-top condition for the game.

The management of the Young Men's Club states that a large crowd should be on hand to witness the game. The management also states that the support of the team in the last two games has been below normal and if the town wants to keep the local team on the map, it will all depend upon the crowd that turns out at tomorrow night's game.

The probable lineup of the big game which will start at 8.15 sharp: Collins A. A. Y. M. C. Keefe, lf rb, Austin; Butler, rf lb, Noel or Lynch; Murphy, c c, Fairchild; Garvey, lb rf, Jackson or Riley; Bell, rb lf, Bridgman

Hearing Yesterday

The Legislative committee on highways and bridges held a hearing in the Park View yesterday noon, which was attended by a number of our townspeople who expressed a unanimous opinion in favor of a state road from Amherst to Belchertown and on to Ware by the so-called south route which would allow a spur of only two and a half miles, a direct connection with

Tell of Life Across

Mr. Barrott of this town, who has seen service on United States merchantmen plying between French ports, and who expects to resume the work shortly, spoke in the Congregational church on Sunday evening regarding his observations and was followed by an address by Sergeant Fitzroy of Springfield, who gave the second chapter in his story of life "over there".

Mr. Barrott said that when he entered the navy he expected to be engaged in work of a more military nature than that in which he really became engaged, which was principally that of manual labor.

Mr. Barrott spoke quite interestingly of the ports of France, which he said within the last year or so had materially been Americanized, due to the adoption of so many efficient American methods. He spoke in particular of the great docks, eight miles in length at Berdeaux, which was a wonderful piece of engineering, completed within nine months from the date of the last conference which gave the Americans a free hand to go ahead and do a piece of work which the French and English said it would take years to accomplish.

Mr. Barrott, on several occasions, conversed with a number of German prisoners, and found them intelligent. He said that many of them had been in the United States. All, he said, relied greatly on the efforts of the submarines to win the war.

One of the experiences that Mr. Barrott had across was that of going on board the U 91, the German boat which sank the President Lincoln, (continued on page 4)

Death of Mrs. B. A. Butler

Mrs. Grace B. Butler, age 27, died from the effects of ether at the dental office of Dr. P. W. Stone yesterday morning.

She was born in Irving and has lived in this town for several years. She leaves besides her husband, two children, Raymond and Laura in the home, also a brother, three sisters and a father in Irving.

Her death came as a shock to the community. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Death of Miss Joan Ferry

Miss Joan Ferry, 80, died of pneumonia at her home on New street last Sunday after a week's illness with bronchitis. Miss Ferry was born in Granby August 25, 1838, the daughter of Justus Ferry and Rebecca Crafts. After the death of her father she came to Belchertown to live with her uncle, Thomas Ferry.

About forty years ago Miss Ferry and the late Miss Lydia Barton purchased the home on New street, where she has since resided.

Miss Ferry was a graduate of South Hadley Seminary in the class of 1865. She was a member of the Church of Christ in Granby and for a long term of years was a faithful and efficient teacher in the Congregational Sunday school here.

Miss Ferry, both in her public and home life, possessed an abounding spirit of cheerfulness that was most exceptional.

She leaves three cousins, Arthur Ferry of Lansing, Mich., Mrs. E. V. Chapman and Miss M. D. Chapin of Springfield.

The funeral was held at the chapel, Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. H. P. Rankin officiated and Mrs. H. A. Hopkins sang. The bearers were Myron Ward, Harry Ward, Edward A. Randall and M. S. Barton. Burial was in West cemetery, Granby.

Special Town Meeting

A special town meeting is called for April 14 at 2 p. m. to see what action the town will take on the following articles:

Art. 1. To choose a moderator to preside at said meeting.

Art. 2. To see if the town will vote to rescind the vote passed at the annual town meeting held Feb. 3, 1919 under Art. 19 whereby the town voted to raise and appropriate $2000 with the provision that the Massachusetts Highway Commission allot $4000. The money to be expended on the Belchertown-Bondsville Road commencing at a point near the bridge on Depot street and wending toward the milk station. The work to be done under the supervision of the Massachusetts Highway Commission.

Organize Fire Department

A meeting of the Belchertown Volunteer Fire Department was held at Engine House hall Tuesday evening, April 8th. Selectman J. J. Garvey announced that the board of selectmen had appointed Roy G. Shaw as assistant chief.

The following officers were elected: foreman, Harry E. Sessions; 1st assistant foreman, John F. Hawes; 2nd assistant foreman, A. R. Kidder; clerk, Jas. H. Robinson; treasurer, F. D. Walker; standing committee, E. E. Sargent, J. J. Garvey, Geo. B. Jackson.

A plan was adopted to canvas the entire town for the sale of tickets for the annual dance to be held April 21st. The captains of teams chosen were Dr. Phillip W. Stone, Walter McKillop, E. F. Flaherty, Henry Baggs and A. R. Kidder.

After the meeting thirty-five members enjoyed the fine lunch provided, followed by some fine remarks by the Rev. H. P. Rankin and exchange of stories by the members.

Death of Mrs. Augusta Coomes

Mrs. Augusta Maria Coomes, age 88, died at her home on Main street last Friday as the result of a broken leg, which injury she received about nine weeks ago.

Mrs. Coomes was born in Enfield, July 25, 1830, the daughter of Frederick Downing and Huldah Pratt. She was married to George H. Coomes of Ware who died about fifteen years ago. For the last fifty-five years Mrs. Coomes has made her home here.

She leaves two sons, John and Edward Coomes and Mrs. Michael Condon, also a nephew, Thomas Coomes of Springfield and a niece, Effie Remington of Hartford.

The funeral was held at the home Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. Irving H. Wood of Northampton officiated. The bearers were Thomas Coomes, Michael Condon, M. A. Morse and Henry Gould.

The Move Toward Federation

The word federation is getting to be quite a common word in Belchertown. In fact it is getting to be quite a common word throughout the country.

Not so very long ago it was not as welcome a word as it is today, either locally or in the country at large.

Walls between the denominations had been determinedly erected and the fellowship between them was not all that could have been desired. Gradually the situation has changed; each church is now more frank to see in the other the good which there exists, and to realize that in a true sense we supplement one another.

It is doubtful in spite of this radical change whether denominationalism is to completely vanish, however. Each church represents and intensifies a different aspect of truth, most of which has been beneficial to the church at large.

What has happened, however, and it is well that it has, is that we have become more deeply cognizant of the fact that our particular type of religion is not necessarily right and our neighbor's necessarily wrong, or vice versa.

This conclusion has hastened federation in many instances and it has also been hastened by another reason and that is, efficiency. The war has had no mercy on inefficiency. It is evident therefore that maintaining several denominations in a community at the expense of efficiency is to be deplored.

If there were no churches in Belchertown, how many structures would our townspeople see fit to erect? How many clergymen would they think it would be best to employ? They certainly would not stand for three. Would they stand for two Protestant churches?

If our two churches should burn in a night, would our citizens pass by without comment, if on the ruins of each, workmen were engaged in the laying of the old corner stones?

Churches of all faiths have distinct reasons for their existence in the world, but would it necessarily be good policy to plant too many varieties in a small town?

Federation therefore provides for the propagation of different aspects of truth but unites all in the great work of the world which is to lift humanity to its highest level.

Whenever any denominational machinery stands, therefore, in the way of achieving the highest and best in a given community it has no right to maintain its existence.

Here is where the supreme test comes. Does the love of our own particular church hinder us from accomplishing in a given community what churches are really for.

The question then comes what sacrifice will we make for efficiency and Christian unity.

H. K. Carroll in an article in the Christian Herald on "What sacrifice will you make for Christian Unity" says:

"The question of sacrifice and surrender is apt to loom large before those accustomed to large liberty, as in America. But reasonable people are always willing to make them when the end to be accomplished is a good one. We say truly enough that our money is our own and we have a right to spend it as we choose; but government levies its taxes upon us, and we must pay, whether we want to or not, on penalty of having our property seized, and we willingly submit for the sake of the good of the greater number, which embraces our own. In countless matters of law and order and public safety and health, we sacrifice and surrender willingly our personal rights for the promotion of the interest of all, and gain by it. Society and government cannot exist unless this principle is recognized.

"It is in this spirit that we must approach the subject of organic union, the merging of denominations into the Church of Christ, remembering that sacrifice and surrender are the condition of all the best things in human life, whether social, national, or religious. It may seem hard in the doing, but once done the surprise is that it was so easy.

"And beyond all, the results are so satisfying. The Master declared a great principle when he said that those who forsook brethren or sisters, or father or mother or children or lands for his name's sake should receive an hundredfold, and inherit everlasting life. It is also true that the sacrifices made for country, for community, for society, for family, for church bring rich reward in happiness and benefit conferred and received in the individual life. The sacrifice we make for the church is returned many times over.

"What can the denominations contribute toward one united Church of Christ? Themselves, with all their assets, resources, powers, effectiveness, influence. And what they give they do not lose, because their contribution immensely strengthens the whole of which they are a part, and whatever strengthens and benefits the whole strengthens and benefits every part. Whatever a denomination brings into a united Church it receives again in increased measure. This is the mystery and miracle of the Gospel plan of self-sacrifice."

Still Remembers Us

Fred S. Abbey of Anacortes, Wash., in renewing for the Sentinel, writes of the Belchertown of the West and gives a glimpse of life in sunny Washington besides.

We know our readers will be glad to hear from him. He says:

"If we could get all the people around here together, that came from Belchertown, we would have quite a colony, our family and the Shumways, Mrs. Elnora Pratt, (she was a daughter of Sam Ward) the family of Erving S. Cook, and Ernest Randolph who was born and raised in that little old house that used to stand at the north end of the Upper Pond; it has been nearly sixty years since he left there.

"This little city of seven thousand people is on an island of the San Juan group, and enjoys a wonderful climate; when the mainland is covered with snow, the humidity of the sea air keeps it from us, and while we get plenty of rain, these Islands enjoy more days of sunshine than any point north of California. The new leaves are out and the plum, cherry, prunes, pear and peach trees are in bloom; we had no snow on this island last winter, and but very little on the low grounds of the mainland, and the lawnmowers got no winter vacation at all.

one of our transports. He exhibited on Sunday evening a small casting from this German vessel which by its construction and work in making, showed how acute was the shortage of metals in Germany.

Mr. Barrot also told of going into old cathedrals in France, one of which was built in the 11th century.

Sergeant Fitzroy then spoke on "From the Trenches to Paris". He related his experiences going into the front line with his machine gun squad, many of whom were killed in action.

Picturing the life at the front he said that the mud was something terrible. One was carrying around on his feet some 6 or 8 pounds of it all the time. His first experience in sleeping in the trenches was interesting. He said that he noticed that the fellows threw their coats over their faces before they went off to sleep. He thought that would smother one too much and as he couldn't see the sense of it he preferred to sleep with his face free from such a covering. He however shortly decided to adopt the prevailing method, when he was awakened by something crawling over his face and heard a trench rat going around the corner.

Sergeant Fitzroy paid a great compliment to the work of the Salvation army. He said that he saw one of their lasses at the very front one black night ministering to the soldiers, and going about without a gas mask, who when offered one refused the safeguard as it would hinder her work.

After two week's service in the thickest of the fight Fitzroy was sent back, and soon after the armistice was signed. He spoke quite interestingly of his getting a pass along with a few others, to visit Paris, and of the time he had getting there. His party evidently went on the principle that "All's fair in love and war" and armistice time, for the methods they pursued in reaching their destination reminded one of stories in a book.

Travelling in a train jammed full of Frenchmen, who filled the cars with smoke, and who had a horror of fresh air, having to sleep like horses, standing up, having to live on scanty rations and at all times be inconspicuous, was not all that could be desired, but was nevertheless to this band of tourists worth the while.

Mr. Fitzroy said that most of the necessities of life in Paris were reasonable in price but that other things were not. He said that he ordered less than a pound of sweet chocolate and had to pay $2.20 for it. He said later that he would have been willing to pay $5 for it, so hungry was he for sweets.

Speaking of his journey to the port of embarkation for home he related several interesting phases of the trip, many of which were rather amusing and reminded one of college pranks. The train load of boys were penalized by a few hours delay at several points on the trip, once because some of them had appropriated the lamps at the last railroad station, once when the boys grabbed and took on board a little French dog and again when some of them borrowed some "real" cushions from cars on a near-by siding.

Sergeant Fitzroy's experiences across were thus of a very varied nature and were no doubt appreciated by the goodly number of townspeople who heard him.

The Park Association Meeting

The Park Association held its annual meeting Wednesday evening at which the following officers were elected:

President, F. D. Walker; vice president, J. W. Jackson; secretary, H. A. Hopkins; treasurer, M. S. Barton; executive committee, E. C. Howard, R. L. Bridgman, M. S. Barton, E. C. Witt, L. H. Blackmer.

It was planned to burn over the park this spring, and the fire department had offered to assist, but considering the continued dampness of the weather and the lateness of the season, the plan has had to be abandoned.

Special Town Meeting

The special town meeting Monday afternoon was very largely attended and was contested from start to finish. Apparently every citizen living on the Bondsville and Three Rivers roads was out to vote with his neighbors for his particular road. It was first voted to rescind the vote taken at the annual meeting whereby $2,000 was to be raised to match $4,000 from the state. The state, it seems, was unwilling to double our amount as it was thought it would.

E. R. Pessa read a letter from a member of the Highway commission in which it was stated that the commission was not at present in favor of doing anything on either the Bondsville or Three Rivers road, and stated furthermore that there was no money available for either. F. A. Upham of Palmer, said that a member of the commission told him only recently that in his opinion there was money available, so opinion seemed to be divided regarding it.

M. A. Morse spoke at length in favor of at first seeing to it that the state road from Amherst to Ware be secured as this would complete a direct through line between Pittsfield and Boston. He thought that the matter of feeders should be brought up later.

F. A. Upham argued that whereas trunk lines were important, these new roads were primarily for the benefit of the individual towns and should therefore be constructed where the greatest number of citizens would be benefited. In his opinion the Three Rivers road would be of greater benefit than the Bondsville road.

Each side contended that they had a little the better of the argument. Action on the matter was indefinitely postponed, however, and after the doubling of the count secured by a standing vote, a motion to adjourn won by a small majority.

The town therefore has temporarily abandoned action on either road.

Belchertown High School Girls Pound Out Win Over Koonos

It was some "battle royal" between the Belchertown High School Girls' basketball team and the Koonos Girls' five of this town on the Town hall surface last Thursday night, the former winning by a score of 20 to 11.

Miss Alice Coon, center and right forward, was the mainstay of the Koonos team. The first half ended with the High school having a total of 13 points against a total of 7 for the Koonos. There was a good crowd on hand and the fans were treated to a splendid exhibition of teamwork and basket shooting on the part of the High school.

Miss Bernice Cook, star player of the High school, put in a good day's

Home From France

Private E. A. Allen has arrived home from overseas. He sailed on the Mount Vernon from Hoboken, N. J., April 17th, 1918 and arrived in Brest, April 25th. From there he went to a rest camp and after staying there three days was sent to a training camp where he trained with gas masks and hand grenades, eight hours a day.

From the training camp he was transferred to the Toul sector. He was there thirty-seven days and was then transferred to the Chateau Thierry front. On the seventh night on this front he with three comrades were out repairing the wires and were returning about eleven o'clock when the Huns commenced to drop shells all around them.

After lying in shell holes for about two hours they started for their lines and he fell into a camouflaged trench about seven feet deep striking his ankle on a "firing step" and falling into mud nearly up to his hips. His comrades pulled him out and carried him to a first aid station and the next day he was sent to a hospital where after three weeks' treatment with his ankle not improving he was sent to another hospital near Paris. After being in this hospital four weeks he was discharged but on account of the injury (which bothers him some now at times) he could not go back to the front so was sent to Bordeaux to assemble Ford trucks and run them to Paris (about 100 miles) for the Red Cross.

After the armistice was signed he could get a pass for three days at a time and he went very nearly all over France but although he could get a pass and ride on any train free he could buy very little as he did not get a cent of money after Sept. 7th on French soil. Many soldiers sold a shirt, rain coat or overcoat to the French, to get a little spending money. A raincoat or overcoat was taken quickly by the French for 40 francs or $8 of our money, while a good many that did not smoke cigarettes would get them and sell them to the French. The French would give a franc and some of them would give a franc and a half for a box of cigarettes (20 or 30 cents of our money.) He speaks very highly of

A new interest will be taken in Easter this year. The casualty lists in every daily paper up till recently have led thousands to face for the first time the fact of death.

The War has revealed to us that the soldiers have accepted death as an essential factor in life. Donald Hankey in "A Student in Arms" writes: "Personally, I believe that very few men indeed fear death."

It is quite plain also that the soldier is certain of survival after death. Here is what one soldier boy writes in one of his letters: "Think that even if I do not return, I am not for that reason dead. It, my body, the inferior part of me, may suffer and die, but not I, I, the soul, cannot die, because I came from God and must return to God."

And the soldier speaks of death as "going West". This means that to him the life beyond death is a life of a new adventure. The soldier boy's life is an adventurous one. He is willing to take the adventure under the leadership of his superiors. So he thinks that his adventuring does not end with death, but under the command of his God, the great general, he will go on new adventures and be sure of victory because his commander cannot be defeated.

The soldier has a pretty sound theology after all. If Easter teaches us that death is but an incident in life and that in the new life there is adventure still, and life goes on, we shall have learned a good lesson. R.

Grammar School Girls Defeat Enfield Girls

The Belchertown Grammar School Girls' basketball team defeated the Enfield Grammar School Girls' five in the Town hall last Thursday night by a score of 20 to 12. The game was interesting and close all the way through.

Miss Ruth Aldrich was the star performer for the winners. Out of the 20 points credited to the home team, she scored 18, getting nine floor baskets. Her ability to connect with the hoop was chiefly responsible for the home team's victorious finish. Miss Dorothy Peeso landed one floor basket and had her hands full with Miss Ruth Bryant.

The game started off like a close battle. Miss Aldrich opened the scoring with a floor goal, but this was followed with a basket by Miss Alice LaBelle. The Misses Bryant and Dwight then connected for one apiece, while Miss Aldrich again came to the rescue with two in succession. The first half ended with the score tied 6 to 6.

After 5 minutes of play in the last half, Miss Aldrich began bombarding the hoop by dropping in baskets right and left. The Enfield girls tried to keep up, but the lead of the home team was too much for them to overcome.

This was the local Grammar School team's last game of the season.

Grammar School Team Loses to Enfield Five

Superior condition was the deciding factor last Thursday night on the Town hall surface when the Enfield Grammar school basketball five downed the Belchertown Grammar school team by a score of 27 to 14. The local boys were played to a standstill in the first half, but made a sudden change in the last half. They opened up a passing defense game and, until the last two minutes of play, had worn down their opponents by massing into the back court when the Enfielders were within the scoring radius.

The Enfield team was no doubt the better of the two, especially in the first half when they passed all around the local Grammar school boys, except Johnny Wood who was always in their way intercepting passes. He and Ward of Enfield were about alike in this respect. Albert Nelson, the Belchertown left forward, contributed two of the prettiest shots seen here this season. H. Hasen was there, the first half in the forward court and the last half in the back court and kept his eye on some of the fast Enfield players.

For Enfield rooters nothing could have been more pleasant than the game Leuber, the center, put up. He was all over the floor and to him goes great credit for winning the game. Avery, the left forward, played a sort of racehorse game, for when he laid his hands on the ball, his intentions were "to travel", in which he was quite successful.

The local Grammar school boys ran their score up to 4 to 0 in the first few minutes of play, Nelson dropping in two double-deckers right after the initial tapoff. It was Haskins who then broke open the Enfield score by taking a pass from Leuber and it was these two players that did most of the shooting for their team in the first half. The half ended with the score, 17 to 9 in favor of Enfield.

The local boys started off fast in the last half and after a few minutes of playing were just five points behind their opponents. With two minutes of play left, time was called owing to an injury to one of the Enfield players. Play was soon resumed and with the score 17 to 14 in their favor, Leuber, Haskins and Avery of Enfield tallied five times among themselves, while the home boys were not getting a single point. This was the closing game of the season for the Belchertown Grammar school team. Lineup:

work with five double deckers and one free try to her credit. The High school left forward breezed down the floor right after the initial tapoff and dropped in her first basket and followed this one up with another a few minutes later. Miss Cook grabbed three baskets in the first half and added two more in the closing half. Miss Gladys Gay's labors resulted in three baskets and worked in smooth style with Miss Cook; this combination proving a puzzle to the Koonos. Miss Eleanor Bardwell, at center, played a beautiful game and fitted into the play nicely. She had one basket and one free try.

The Koonos gave the High school a stiff battle, but was lacking in basket shooters. Miss Coon was about the only player on the team who could shoot with a little accuracy. Miss Irene Orlando played a nice game in the front court, while the blocking of the guards, especially Miss Emma Stadler, was good. Nevertheless great credit is due the High school's pair of backs, Miss Pearl Dunbar and Miss Edith Peeso, for they held the Koonos forwards scoreless in the last half. The Misses Dunbar and Peeso were right on the job every second and kept the opposing forwards covered closely. The two teams shot time after time at the iron ring and missed most of them. As this was their closing game of the season, it seems as if luck was against them.

Borrow Instead of Sell

At the meeting of the Victory Loan committee Tuesday evening it was strongly urged that the public be informed that those wishing to get money on their bonds, past or prospective, can borrow money at the bank and get 90 per cent of the full amount. The bond serves as collateral and the signature of no second party is necessary, as the bond is perfect security. Furthermore the bank will only charge one the bond rate of interest, which is a material saving.

It will thus be seen that to sell a bond should be the last resort.

Favorably Reported

Wednesday's papers brought us the anticipated news that the public institutions committee of the legislature has approved a bill for the development of the State school here, according to the plans of Dr. Geo. M. Kline of the commission on mental diseases. The Republican says:

"The plans call for an outlay of $496,500, of which $101,000 is available from last year's appropriation, leaving $395,500 to be appropriated in the supplementary budget. The bill will now go to the House ways and means committee, which will sit jointly with the public institutions committee in its further consideration.

"If the measure is reported from the joint committees and safely passes both branches of the Legislature, extensive building operations will immediately follow. Following is the building program under the pre-

Vote to Federate

At the meeting of the Quarterly Conference of the Methodist church Wednesday evening, Rev. C. O. Ford of Springfield, district superintendent, presiding, it was unanimously voted, with a few minor suggestions, to adopt in full the articles of federation drawn by the joint committee, and E. C. Witt, E. E. Gay and Mrs. Ella R. Hunt were appointed representatives of the church on the federated committee of management.

The action of the church Wednesday evening thus assures a practically united front of the protestant faiths in Belchertown, with one leader, one working force, one main object and one purpose.

The name of the organization will be the Belchertown Federated church. Each church will maintain its own organization, held and care for its own property and invested funds, and contribute to its own benevolent societies. With the exception of the Sunday schools which will be united, all the other organizations will have their separate officers. The Sunday and mid-week services will be union and will be held half of the year in one house of

Death of Everett D. Stebbins

Everett Dennison Stebbins died at his home last Saturday morning after quite a period of failing health. Mr. Stebbins was born in Granby November 16, 1843, the son of the late Dennison Stebbins and Maria Perry. In 1868 he was married to Clara Fisk who survives him.

With the exception of fifteen years spent in Holyoke, most of their married life has been lived in this town. Last November they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, which was attended by many relatives and friends.

Mr. Stebbins was a member of the G. A. R. and for a long time its color bearer. The flag which he carried so long was draped over his casket at the funeral.

He leaves, besides his widow two sons, Everett O. of this town, and Bernard C. of Canada; and three daughters, Mrs. Myron Shaw of this place, Mrs. Milton Sweet of Glastonbury, Ct., and Mrs. William Harrup of South Hadley Falls. There are also ten grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

The funeral was held at the home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. The bearers were William and Bertram Shaw of this town, Milton Sweet of Glastonbury, Ct., and William Harrup of So. Hadley Falls. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Easter Ball Success

The Easter ball Monday evening given by the Belchertown Fire Department was a success, financially and otherwise.

The concert from 8 to 9 by the Loomis Orchestra of Northampton was much appreciated. Dancing followed from 9 to 1, Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Shaw leading the grand march of about fifty couples. Refreshments were served at 11.

A large number of people from out of town were present. The dance committee having the affair in charge consisted of John Hawes, Roy G. Shaw, Walter McKillop, J. W. Jackson and C. F. Aspengren. Sixty dollars was cleared for the department.

Victory Loan Starts

Belchertown people are beginning to catch the spirit of the Victory loan. A meeting of the general committee was held at the home of D. D. Hazen Tuesday evening, when E. E. Sargent, who had attended a recent Victory luncheon, passed on to the committee some of the enthusiasm and sensible advice given at that gathering of community leaders.

On this loan the emphasis seems to be on "coming across" without any style or ceremony—just knocking up to the task as the boys did "over there." The Victory loan special, of which another article tells, will probably be the only public demonstration of Victory loan effort.

With the assistance of the ladies, who have expressed a willingness to do their part as they have always done, it is fully expected that the $19,800, our Victory quota, will be forthcoming and that Belchertown for the fifth time will "go over the top."

As an inducement to activity on the part of solicitors, two German helmets which are among those captured by the Yanks at Coblenz, will be presented, one to the person getting the greatest number of subscriptions, and the other to the one turning in the most money. The helmets are now on exhibition at D. D. Hazen's store.

Following are the Victory loan committees:

President Wilson and they would secretly rejoice if the plan should be defeated so that the President would be humiliated. It has been stated many times that the League is not a partisan matter and it is to be greatly regretted that it has been made so by many. The question which is before the world today should be faced irrespective of one's attitude to the President.

Neither is the issue on the precise phraseology of the covenant. Some believe that the constitution as drawn up by the ablest statesmen of five great nations is "the most practical, the most conservative, the most promising that can be conceived" and would discourage any radical departure from its present form. Others are positive that the covenant is loosely drawn and needs radical modifications or else it should not be adopted by the United States. We would not minimize the importance of the working of the covenant or the making of amendments, but the real issue is not found here.

Neither is the issue whether Germany should be included in the League. Some are certain that the first thing to do is to punish Germany and afterwards form a League.
Other men with minds fully as keen believe that the first duty is to establish the League and admit Germany
if she fulfils the conditions.

But the issue, as we see it, for the United States is this: whether we believe in nationalism or in internationalism. The question is whether we stand for Americanism of the older type or whether we are willing to assume the burdens and responsibilities of the world. Some still believe that the U. S. should remain isolated as in the days of Washington, grow strong, develop itself and be able to conquer any nation when necessity arises. We are among those who believe that the day of isolation for America is passed and the time is now ripe for her to do in peace what she did in the recent war, bring its resources to meet the needs of the nations of the world.

Let every reader of the Sentinel ever keep the real issue clearly in mind.

Stereopticon Slides Available

Miss Helen Harriman of Northampton, Hampshire County demonstration agent, has notified the local chairman that during the third and fourth week in May stereopticon slides showing the many phases of food conservation, clothing preservation and kindred lines of community work, will be available and that someone can be sent who will explain them to those interested.

This could well be given on the night of some supper during the weeks mentioned. Mrs. Henry Witt requests that if any church or other organization cares to get up something in conjunction with this proposed program, to kindly let her know at once as some arrangement should be made soon to ensure the privilege of getting in touch with these topics of the day.

"Inasmuch as there is a long waiting list of patients for the school and that plans for it have been pending since 1913, and that this year Gov. worship and half of the year in the other house of worship.
Membership in the federated church will consist of members in good and regular standing of both churches. New members may be admitted to either branch of the federated church, whether by letter or by confession of faith, according to the polity of the Congregational or the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal church as the candidate may choose.

Each church will choose annually three of its own members who will constitute a joint committee to arrange for all regular services, have charge of the finances and direct other common interests of the Federated church. All the members of the Federated church shall have the right to vote on the calling and dismissal of a pastor.
If at any time either of the constituent churches votes that circumstances make it advisable to terminate its agreement, the federation can be dissolved on six months notice.
The articles as here outlined have proved a good working basis in other churches and should serve well here. The joint committee of management now appointed will at once make their plans for work and worship and expect to map out a vigorous plan of aggressiveness with no thought of curtailment but rather ones of larger and worthier dimensions that will accord with the spirit of the new era upon which we are entering and thus one that will arrest the attention and enlist the support of every one of protestant faith in our community.

Honorably Discharged

The binoculars which Mrs. Kendall loaned to the navy for the period of the war were returned on Saturday honorably discharged and bearing wounds and scars of service. This evidence of wear and damage is compensated for by the fact that a service has been performed and historic interest has been added to them.

A gold service stripe has been presented in the shape of a legend engraved on one of the barrels of the glasses "U. S. Navy" with the number subjoined.

Baggs-Shaw Wedding

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shaw when their brother, Roland M. Shaw, was united in marriage to Miss Florence A. Baggs. The ceremony took place before a bank of flowers, snap dragons and daffodils predominating. The single ring service was used, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. The bride wore a blue travelling suit and taupe hat. The couple were preceded by Louis and Maxine Fuller, the latter being the ring bearer. Mrs. E. A. Fuller played the wedding march.

After the ceremony the guests partook of a bountiful wedding dinner. Only the immediate families were present on account of the illness of the bride's father. The gifts included a set of dining room furniture and other mahogany pieces, a set of dishes, checks and money.

Mr. Shaw is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Shaw of Maple St. and Mrs. Shaw is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. P. Baggs of Turkey Hill. Both are graduates of the local high school in the classes of 1908 and 1912 respectively. After graduation both were successful teachers in our public schools, later entering the employ of E. A. Fuller where Mr. Shaw will continue his business relations. Mr. Shaw is also prominent in Masonic work.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Shaw will make their home in town, having purchased the Marie West place on South Main street where they will be at home to their friends after June first.

Death of Edward W. Hubbard

Edward Warner Hubbard, age 70, who has been in ill health for some time, died Monday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jennie Draper, where he was taken about three weeks ago.

Mr. Hubbard was born in Belchertown Nov. 25, 1848, the son of George P. and E. Maria Towne and spent all of his life here. He was a member of the Methodist church where he has been a faithful attendant.

Mr. Hubbard was widely known in the community where he has worked in many of its homes. He leaves besides his sister, Mrs. Draper, several nephews and nieces.

The funeral was held at his sister's home Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. The bearers were E. C. Witt, M. A. Morse, M. G. Ward and F. D. Walker. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Greet Victory Loan Train

A large crowd including the children from the public schools, greeted the Victory Loan train on its arrival shortly after 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. After the train was run on the spur, D. D. Hazen, chairman of the local victory committee, greeted the visitors and introduced E. C. Potter of Boston who was in charge of the train. After stating the mission of the Victory Special he introduced Corp. James F. Phelan of the U. S. medical corps, who told of some of his experiences and observations across.

Corp. Phelan sailed from this country in May, 1917, and landed at Brest. He soon discovered, he said, that unless victory was wrested from the enemy, the people at home would suffer under the yoke of a terrible bondage. He pictured very vividly the wounded and the maimed as he saw them in England and France.

Corp. Phelan paid a glorious tribute to the 26th division, "who upheld the glorious traditions of America and showed that they had the goods." He said that from the day the Americans met the Germans at Chateau Thierry the Huns knew that they were hopelessly defeated. He described them now as the most atrocious nation that ever cried out for mercy.

America, he said, had laid 70,000 lives on the altar of freedom and it was up to the people of our country to invest in Victory bonds and finish the job and thereby remove the possibility of any resumption of hostilities.

Corp. Phelan also said that some of the money being raised in this loan would go to vocational training schools which would be of great benefit.

Historical Meeting

The Belchertown Historical Association held its annual meeting on Monday evening in Clapp Memorial Library which had been decorated by the president, Mr. Stebbins, with French war posters. A German trench helmet and a German dress helmet captured at Verdun were also on exhibition.

The following officers were elected: trustees, Maria Longley, Marion Bartlett, Myron Barton, Harry Hopkins, Herbert Curtis, Willard Stebbins, Daniel Hazen, George H. B. Green, Everett Howard, Alice Kendall, Merrick Morse, John Jackson, Lewis Blackmer, Fred Walker, Lucy Thomson, who elected as president, Willard Stebbins, vice presidents, Fred Walker, Daniel Hazen; recording clerk, Marion Bartlett; corresponding clerk, Mrs. Herbert Curtis; treasurer, Lewis Blackmer; auditor, Herbert Curtis; custodian, Mrs. Maria Longley; janitor, Herbert Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Randolph were made honorary members in (continued on page 4)

Catholic Mission Supper Huge Success

Seldom has Grange Hall seen such a crowd of people as that which was on hand Wednesday evening to partake of the bounteous repast furnished by the Catholic mission.

The tables were reset time and again but there was apparently no lack of provisions nor depreciation in quality. It is estimated that three hundred people from all sections of the town and of all faiths were served during the evening. Parties were also present from Palmer, Thorndike, Three Rivers, Bonds-ville, Amherst, Holyoke, South Hadley Falls and Williamsett.

Father McGrath of Bonds-ville, the mission pastor, was present and saw that the guests were hospitably provided for in every respect. Ice cream and cake were served after the supper.

The program consisted of a piano solo, Miss Annie Shea; solo, Miss Anna Burns of Palmer; solo, Miss Nora Cavin of Three Rivers; song, J. J. Donahue of Palmer; readings, (continued on page 4)

A New Button

Have you one of the latest buttons? They are beautiful buttons. Blue and white are their colors; the blue, deeper than the blue of the sea or sky; the white, like the cherry blossoms.

The first word of the legend is "liberty". That is a great word. It stands for an idea very dear to countless thousands of our fellow men.

It was such a desperate struggle, so much was at stake for the world, liberty has such stupendous significance, no wonder that even now we hardly realize what a little round piece of metal finished in two colors, and bearing a legend and symbol may mean.

gives that term a fullness of meaning and a veneration it never before held. Yes, liberty is a great word today.

The other word of the button's legend has meaning. "Certainly", you say, "loan means money and the government is calling for a vast sum."

The button bears a symbol, a letter of the alphabet, a pleasing symbol it is, too. They tell us that the eyes of the rapid reader do not distinguish each letter of all the words he reads.

The designer of this glorious button has taken advantage of this optical phenomenon. He has put "V" upon the button and our imagination does the rest.

It was such a desperate struggle, so much was at stake for the world, liberty has such stupendous significance, no wonder that even now we hardly realize what a little round piece of metal finished in two colors, and bearing a legend and symbol may mean.

The time to obtain buttons of a particular and exclusive style is when they are in the market. You can get a V button now, friend. You will want one to complete your set of war buttons. You will want one to show that you kept your pledge to the soldier. You will want one to fill out your full measure of service to your country and to liberty. Get one like a true patriot.

SURPRISE SHOWER

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Baggs was the scene of a very pleasant social affair last week Thursday evening when the friends and relatives of their eldest daughter, Florence, who was soon to be married, surprised her by gathering with tokens of good will and affection.

Robert N. Baggs, the only boy to go across direct from Turkey Hill, has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Baggs, that he arrived at New York harbour April 29 and is now at Camp Dix, New Jersey, and expects soon to be sent to Camp Devens to be discharged.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Booth and family visited Rev. Walter O. Terry in Warren Sunday afternoon.

The old Reddington Munsell homestead on Great Hill was destroyed by fire on Sunday. It was the birthplace of Miss Armenia Munsell who makes her home with her niece, Mrs. J. W. Hurlburt.

Chas. Allen of New Haven, Ct., is visiting his sons, Walter and Lester Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Isaac, Olive Isaac and Lester Allen motored to Fitchburg Saturday. Mrs. James Isaac, Sr., who has been visiting there, returned with them.

The play will be given in Community hall and will be a benefit affair for the High School Soldier's Memorial. The play was given once before at the Washington birthday exercises February 21 in Holyoke High school. It is a patriotic comedy drama portraying an Irish washer-woman's part in the great war. This part is taken by Miss Helen McGillicuddy who plays her part to perfection.

The principal comedians are Miss Violet Mason as "Miss Clingie Vine", the lady boarder, and Herbert Rose as "Seuffles Tubbs". Miss Clingie Vine is a vampire of the first magnitude and creates spasms in her audience.

Athletic Director George Williams is the one responsible for bringing the play here. He saw it in Holyoke and says it is the best he ever saw for a student play.

The Holyoke High school Mandolin Club will accompany the cast to Belchertown and will provide some very interesting selections including a few solos.

There will be a small admission of .25 including war tax, and it is hoped a large audience will attend.

Tickets will be placed on sale at Phillip's store, Jackson's, and some will also be distributed among the students at the High school.

M. J. Moriarty of South Hadley Falls; piano solo, Miss Annie Shea. The program concluded with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by the audience.

Shortly after the entertainment a large truckload of Foresters from Amherst, delayed in transit, arrived. This party was brought here through the efforts of Mrs. Horace Thayer of Amherst. The Amherst people furnished a program all their own which included an exhibition of cake walk and step dancing by two young ladies, one dressed as a man.

Much of the success of the evening's affair should be attributed to the chairman, Mrs. J. J. Garvey, and her colleagues, Mrs. A. J. Sears, Miss Gertrude Riley and Miss Lucy Hanifin, assisted by Mrs. James Garvey, Mrs. McKillep, Mrs. Cronney, Mrs. Carmody, Mrs. Hawes and Miss Margaret Moriarty.

consideration of their gift of a portion of Holland Glen to the Association.

A letter from Miss Lucy Thomson of Pittsfield gave proposed changes which may soon be made in the "stone house" in order to make it a suitable building for housing the historical collection.

A paper on Cold Spring was read by Mrs. A. H. Bartlett in which she mentioned the fact that Mr. Hanifin on whose farm this historic spring is located, is thinking of constructing a walk from the highway to the spring thereby making this spot more accessible and attractive to the public. Mrs. Bartlett also mentioned that the date of this meeting was the 179th anniversary of the first legal town meeting held in Cold Spring.

Mrs. Kendall gave some of Belchertown's experiences with kerosene street lights during the early eighties.

Mrs. Longley told the history of the family of Joseph Bridgman whose house formerly stood on the site now occupied by the Walker home, and briefly sketched the life of his children, particularly mentioning the daughter, Sarah Bridgman Dixon and a grandson Frederick Bridgman who became quite a famous artist.

Mr. Stebbins spoke of the chain of picture houses owned by Wallace Nutting and gave a description of the Moffat house in Portsmouth, N. H., in which is a mantle carved by Grinling Gibbon, wood carver to his majesty George I.

Arthur Bardwell read a letter addressed to the selectmen of Belchertown by the selectmen of Northampton, written June 23, 1812, also a memorial to the General Court from the town of Belchertown.

Mr. Spenser mentioned several interesting discoveries made while recently removing a large old-fashioned chimney from the Stebbins' house on North Main street. One brick bore the date 1748; boards 16 feet long and 2 feet wide made of clear pine were removed.

The Association lost five members by death during the year. Three new members were enrolled.

The speaker also paid a great tribute to the work of the American railway engineers who, he said, built 937 miles of standard gauge railroad, 538 miles of narrow gauge, sent across 18,000 freight cars, 1,333 standard locomotives and 448 narrow gauge engines.

In closing Phelan said that we owe it to the boys to back up the Victory loan in a manner showing to the world that we stand solidly together, that the boys may the more quickly come back. He said, "We owe it to the boys to bring them home."

Wm. E. Lafay of the U. S. Railway engineers and one of the first 12,000 to go across, was then introduced. He pictured the reception this advance guard received on its arrival in London and the appealing attitude of the populace.

In making an appeal for support of the loan he said "Just because I am in uniform it is no more my debt than yours, no more my duty than yours, no more my duty to pay the bills than it is yours."

Lafay told of the sacrifice of the other countries engaged in the war,

Both speakers spoke with an earnestness that showed that they had seen enough of war to know what it was, why it was fought, and were anxious that it should not be repeated.

Vice-chairman Sargent of the local committee then stated that Belchertown had gone over the top on all preceding drives and would go over the top on the Victory loan.

He then proceeded to explain the four methods of securing bonds:

Death of Leonard Corey

Leonard Corey, age 76, died at the town farm last Saturday. He was born in Chicopee Falls. A brother, Albert Corey of Dwight, is the only surviving member of his family.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial was in South cemetery.

Sergeant John Riley, who has seen service in France, has been honorably discharged and is at his home in town. He enlisted in Greenfield in Co. L of the 2nd Regiment June 24, 1917. He went to Westfield Aug. 6 and became a part of the 104th regiment. He left Camp Bartlett September 25 and sailed from Montreal the following day. He arrived in Liverpool October 17, and after two weeks spent in a rest camp near London, sailed from Southampton for LaHarve, France. A four day's ride then took him to the French training area in the Vouges mountains. He left there January 18 for the front.

Sergt. Riley saw service on several sectors. He was on the Chermin des Dames sector from February 8 to March 20, 1918; on the Toul sector April 1 to June 14, in the Bois Brule defensive April 10 to 14; in the St. Mihiel offensive September 12 to 15; in the Trayon sector, P. O. Marwo, September 14 to October 5; in the Meuse-Argonne offensive October 25 to November 11, the date of the signing of the armistice.

He was wounded in the leg by shrapnel fire October 25, 1918, and spent several weeks in the hospital. He sailed from Brest on the Mt. Vernon, arriving in Boston. He was discharged from Camp Devens April 28.

Sergeant Riley was under fire 210 days and saw many of his comrades killed. He had many interesting experiences across but typical of most American soldiers prefers to let the other fellow tell them. He saw no Belchertown boys during his stay overseas.

ROBERT BAGGS
TURKEY HILL.

Robert N. Baggs who returned to his home Monday morning after an absence of a year was the only Turkey Hill boy to go across. He was in the 28th Penn. National Guards, Keystone Division. He was drafted February 25, 1918, went to Camp Devens and after a short stay to Camp Upton where he received his training, from which place he

Are We "Honorably Discharged" ?

The boys are fast arriving in Belchertown. We record this week the return of several who have been in the thick of the fight. They have "finished their job." Their papers read "honorably discharged." They carried the last trench and fought till the fight was won.

These boys come back and find us half-way between the fourth liberty loan trench and the fifth Victory loan objective. They seem to find us headed home too, sauntering contentedly back to the quiet activities of life, and they seem to meet us in our pathway with a deep inquiring look on their faces, wondering if we too are "honorably discharged." They silently ask us if we carried the last trench with a Victory Note.

If we who are fighting the home fight fancy we have discharge papers in our pockets, let us pull them out and see if they read "honorably discharged."

Discharged from Navy

Lewis Thayer, who has been employed in the merchant marine of the U. S. navy, has received his honorable discharge and has taken a position in Springfield. He entered the service in April, 1918, and has made two trips across. He was overseas from Dec. 16 to Apr. 14, during which time his ship was being refitted.

He has just made a two week's visit with his mother on the Enfield road.

With Our Boys

The following letter with poem enclosed has just been received in town. Both, we fancy, reveal a spirit typical of the A. E. F. and should give added impetus to the Victory loan.

LINCOLN COOK

My dear Friend:—

Well, I know the folks of Bingville like to hear from us, so if you want to put this out, go to it, because it sure will hit some of them. But not me; they may think so, but I will take it if they do. Well I hear of five of the boys getting home; well that is good; I am glad of it. I will be home in August I guess; never can tell, but I will laugh it off, ha ha. I have been here almost eight months, and I am good for eight more, if it was not for these girls, ha ha.

We lost the Football game in Paris, 14 to 6 favor the 89th Div. The 36th were out of luck, ha ha. Well this is the first of April, just time to plow, and me in Paris and Ervy, ha, ha. But I should worry, I hope to be home in six months.

Twinkle, twinkle all the night
Little star, up there so bright,
How I wonder what you see,
In that place so dear to me.

Do you see my sweetheart there
With her golden silken hair?
Is she still the same to me
As she promised she would be?

Does she sit out in the swing
Like we used to every spring,
Dreaming of me every day
In France's so far away?

Does she flirt with the "other fellow"
Or does she say "get out, you're yellow,"

There's a soldier, 'cross the sea,
That will some day come for me?
If she does, please tell her this
That I'd die for just one kiss,
That for her my heart still yearns;
Gee, how fast that candle burns.

Effect of Relief from War's Pressure

We show of what stuff we are made by our actions when the pressure is removed. When a violent storm is on at sea, men's lives are cemented together...

While the pressure of war was on, we were on most excellent behavior. We were so busy doing our utmost to win the war that we had no time to look for defects.

Now that the armistice has been signed and war's pressure has been removed, the sordid side of our nature is asserting itself. Instead of rejoicing that victory was complete...

Instead of rejoicing over the glorious work of the Y. M. C. A. and the Red Cross and the Government and the Generals and those who were in high office...

Instead of high praise for our leaders as they work their way to form a League of Nations, we dwell on the imperfections of the task and the slowness of the progress...

Instead of having confidence that the enemy is defeated we begin to fear the Bolsheviks, and that France will not be sufficiently protected and that England will gain some advantage over us.

Constructive criticism has its place, but it should not be on the throne. Of course any such a task as the waging of war brings with it countless defects...

Turkey Hill is patiently waiting for better telephone service as it is almost impossible to hear one's nearest neighbor and still more difficult to get a long distance call. The subscribers fail to see the justice in a raise with such continued poor service.

Herbert Thomson of Broad Brook Ct., is spending the week with his sister, Mrs. James Isaac. The Isaac family motored to Fitchburg Tuesday to attend the funeral of an old friend and neighbor.

was sent direct to France. He saw much active service and had many experiences which he would not care to repeat. His division ranked third in the number of casualties. He sailed from France April 19 and arrived at New York harbor April 29, having been eleven days in crossing. The trip to France was made in seven days.

He is the oldest son of Chas. P. and Mattie Baggs and has always lived with his parents at the old homestead. As his father's health is poor, having been confined to his home for two years, the stay in France seemed much longer when the U. S. mail failed to bring the longed for home letters.

His first recreation on reaching home was to go trouting in the old familiar brook; and to prove he had not lost the art of angling, brought home a beautifully spotted trout weighing one pound.

ALBERT WYDEEN

Corporal Albert Wydeen, one of the first party of boys to leave Belchertown for the war, arrived in town Tuesday and is at the Holland farm on the Enfield road. He left for Camp Devens September 21, 1917, was transferred to Camp Gordon, Atlanta, October 27, and on May 10 sent to Camp Mills. He sailed from New York May 19, arriving in Liverpool May 30. After two days in a rest camp at Winchester he sailed from Southampton for LaHavre, France. Four days later he arrived at LaCourtine in the province of Meuse and was there until August 7 when he was sent to Manersville on the Toul sector where he was in several skirmishes. From August 25 to September 13 he was on the St. Mihiel sector near the city of Pont Mossom. He then took a six day's march to the Argonne Forest where he participated in that battle. After the drive there he followed the Meuse to the Verdun front. Other places where he saw service was at Nowry, Olatel, Baulny, Flaville, Cornay. At Flaville he was injured in the leg by a bursting shell and as a result was in the hospital from October 31 to April 1.

Corp. Wydeen started from Basens, Bordeaux, March 12 on the old German liner, Nèetar, now called the Antigone. The ship followed the southern route by way of the Gulf stream and the Azores, arriving in New York March 24. He went to Greenhut's building and from thence to a hospital on Staten Island. After a week at Camp Merritt, he went to Camp Upton where he was discharged April 16.

Corp. Wydeen had the good fortune to come across several Belchertown boys overseas, including Vernon L. Bardwell and the Bishop brothers.

You may wonder how I happened to come down to France to college, but will say that an order came in to my regiment which is in the Army of Occupation at Germany, saying that they might choose six men to attend the special A. E. F. University and I was selected as one of the students. I am finishing my course in Pedagogy under Dr. John Erskine of Columbia University who has supervision of my department of Education so you will see that I am getting a real education along my work.

Twice a week I review my course I once had in typewriting and shorthand so I can keep in practice for my return to the states.

Story whom I used to know when I was attending school in Belchertown. To my surprise he took me over to see Joseph Earl and, believe me, we had some great time talking over our days in good old Belchertown. Belchertown ought to feel proud to have three of her boys attending one of America's biggest and best Universities far across the water.

Both of the boys look healthy and are very anxious to get back home again, and they have good reasons to be, as I never heard of any one leaving Belchertown but went back determined to settle down there.

I don't know just when I am due to return to America as the Army of Occupation is due to remain in Germany for a while longer, but I expect to return as soon as my course is done, probably by June.

Next month I will have been in the Army just two years and it seems a long time. I found a Belchertown Sentinel dated in February and I had a fine time reading the news from what I call my home town.

Well I tho't I would send you a letter to let you know that I am well and am getting along fine at school. Write me and tell me how things are progressing in Belchertown.

Baseball Round-Up Tomorrow

J. J. Fairchild, in response to a wish expressed on the part of many local fans that something be doing in baseball here this summer, calls upon all those interested in the sport to come out on the park Saturday afternoon at one o'clock, when if there is sufficient interest, a team or teams may be organized.

Members of the fire department of which Mr. Fairchild is chief are invited to be present but the invitation is not restricted to the members of that organization alone; anyone who has any baseball blood in him at all will be most welcome.

Early Morning Breaks

Early last Friday morning the general store of E. A. Fuller and the drug store of Courtland G. Bartlett were entered by an automobile party of young bandits who had stolen a car in Providence and were evidently out to see what they could do. Entrance was gained to both stores by cutting the glass in the front windows. Shoes, knives, watches, bananas, etc., were taken from the Fuller store, and candy, cigars and about $2 in money from the drug store.

As the marauders left town they were noticed by Thomas Conden who soon discovered what had happened and immediately notified the officers who started in pursuit. Some of the bananas were thrown out farther along the road which served to reveal their route.

The party were captured at Canaan, N. Y., later in the day by Lee officers after some shooting and when rounded up admitted making the breaks in town. The plunder found in their car corresponded to what was missing here.

The young men were arraigned in the Lee court Tuesday and were handed over by the judge to the Hampshire county authorities who took them to Northampton where they will be tried for their breaks in this county.

"Way Over"

Instead of going "not quite over" or simply "over," Belchertown went "way over" on the 5th Victory loan. The quota was $19,800 and the known amount subscribed is $26,850. This may not be the final total as it is possible that other subscriptions have been credited to Belchertown which have not yet been reported.

E. A. Fuller turned in the largest sum of money and will therefore be awarded one of the helmets captured at Coblenz, while the other will go to Miss Ella A. Stebbins who secured the largest number of subscriptions.

Terwilliger-Blackmer Nuptials

Laura A. Terwilliger, eldest daughter of Mrs. Minnie Terwilliger, and Raymond L. Blackmer, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Blackmer were quietly married Sunday evening by Rev. C. G. Burham at his home on Federal St. They started at once on a wedding trip to New York state where they are visiting relatives in Bloomingburg, the former home of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackmer are well known young people in town. Both attended the Belchertown High school and are at present employed locally, Mrs. Blackmer having a position with D. D. Hasen and Mr. Blackmer being associated with his father as carpenter. Mr. Blackmer received his discharge from the service a few months ago. After the wedding trip the couple will reside with Mrs. Terwilliger.

Dies in Guilford, Vt.

The body of Lorenzo Leach of Guilford, Vt., who died there last week was brought to this town Tuesday morning. The funeral was held in the chapel at 11 o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating.

Mr. Leach was son of Jefferson Leach and spent his boyhood days in Belchertown, a few miles south of the center. In the days of his activity he was an engineer on the Central Vermont railway. His brother was one of the first employees of the road.

He was also a veteran, being in the Civil War.

Mr. Leach was ill for some time and died in his 77th year. He leaves a widow and two daughters. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Home From France

Edward B. Parent has arrived in town, having received his honorable discharge. Mr. Parent went to Camp Devens October 6, 1917. From there he went to Camp Merritt and then to Camp Upton. He sailed from New York December 26 with the 11th Railway Engineers which made itself famous when it faced the Germans with picks and shovels. He landed at Brest and went to the Somme where he was with the English nine months, all the time under shell fire. He was at Arras, Amiens, LaBassie and Cambrai, the latter place being where he encountered the Germans. He tells of the desperate hand to hand encounter there and of how the Germans were driven back. It was in this skirmish that he broke his right collar bone, which incapacitated him for further active service.

He was then sent to Boulogne and Etaps. While in the hospital at Etaps a nose cap came through the roof and landed fifteen inches from his head. He has brought this home as a souvenir.

After leaving the hospital he went from one place to another, stepping at Blois, Ange, Mevens, and for two months acted as interpreter at Hesdigneu for the 2nd army corps.

While in France Mr. Parent visited Paris three times. He also traveled across the entire Republic, his southernmost stop being at a casual camp at Marseille. From there he went to LaHavre where he took ship for home, April 26, not having met a single acquaintance while across. He arrived in New York May 5, and after four days at Camp Merritt was transferred to Camp Devens where he was discharged May 13.

Mr. Parent had many interesting experiences overseas, some sad and some amusing. Like all the rest he is glad to get back to the states. Among the souvenirs which he has brought home is a cane secured from a German which he has presented to Mr. Samuel Stevenson.

Eagerness for the Truth

We can scarcely err by being a too diligent seeker after truth. We so often go astray because of our ignorance of the real facts. We pass judgment without an earnest search after the truth.

The truth is hard to get. So many are anxious to keep the truth from us, and if we would gain it we must search for it. Many are anxious to have us believe in a certain fashion and they place directly in front of our eyes the facts they would have us see and conceal the facts they would keep from us. If we would know the truth, we must bring to the light hidden things and this does not come without diligent effort.

Oftentimes we are not anxious to gain the truth, but wish to believe according to our prejudices. So we close our eyes to truth which is contrary to our way of thinking and which is distasteful to us. If a man is eager to know the truth he must free his mind from prejudice and distrust and be open-minded.

One of the characteristics of the child is his eagerness to know; what a multitude of questions he asks. He is anxious to learn, pries into things, wants to know the whole truth and gladly accepts anything whether it is contrary to his former teachings or not.

We would do well to retain this child-like characteristic, and to practice it in these days in international problems. A wise man speaks little, but is a careful investigator. These are great days to be earnest seekers after the truth.

Holyoke High School Play

The play presented by the Holyoke high school Saturday evening was well rendered to an appreciative audience. The acts were interspersed with musical selections vocal and instrumental, including selections by the Mandolin club which was very cordially received.

In spite of a stormy evening there was a good sized audience present. The play was given here through the efforts of Geo. E. Williams, physical director of the Holyoke school.

The Prize Compositions

We print herewith the compositions awarded prizes last week to scholars in the Grammar school on the subject, "What I would do with a thousand dollars." George Booth and Albert Nelson were tied for first place and Dorothy Peeso, second.

1ST PRIZES

Written by George Booth

If my rich uncle should die and leave me a thousand dollars the first thing I would do, would be to buy a baseball outfit, for which I have wished a long time.

Then I would help out Uncle Sam in buying a Victory Bond which I would keep for my grandchildren.

I am interested in Boy Scouts so I would try to get one of my older friends to start a patrol in Belchertown and I would buy their uniforms and all their equipment.

The rest I would put in the Savings Bank until I get old enough to go to college.

Written by Albert Nelson

If I had a thousand dollars I would first buy a Victory Liberty Loan Bond so as to do my bit in helping my country.

Secondly I would invest some money in poultry. I would buy about one hundred one day old chicks, and put them in a good large yard, so that they would have plenty of room to run in. I would take good care of them, so that in a year's time they would double the money I invested in them. I would put the rest of the money in the bank so that it would be drawing interest. Each year I would keep saving what money I could that I got from the chickens and by the time I had get through high school I would have enough money to pay my way through college.

2ND PRIZE

Written by Dorothy Peeso

If somebody gave me a thousand dollars, I would save it for an education. I might earn more than that again, and when I was earning, and found very poor people I would give to them. I could easily spare some every week when I was earning. If wages are as high when I am big enough to earn, as they are now, I guess I can spare some. I should distribute some to the churches, as the churches all need money.

Seventy Years Ago

Dr. Holland after leaving Springfield went to New York and started the publication of Scribner's Monthly. Several magazines merged and it became a success. Belchertown has not been slow to do him honor. There is a beautiful bit of wildwood called Holland Glen. Then the upper pond has been named Holland Lake. It would be well if they only had some sign to let the traveling public know that this beautiful sheet of water was named for a native of this neighborhood. It is girt round by granite hills on the east and by lofty trees on the west side along which runs the road to Amherst. Dr. Holland, you see, as fortune favored him sought more attractive living places. He lived in New York but his summers he spent at Benny Castle on one of the Thousand Islands.

At the next place lived a large family of Hannums. The oldest son lived in Hadley. Then there was Lyman who married Martha Dickinson. George married Amelia Nutting and they lived on the home place. There was also Clara Hannum and Gilman, father of a Congregational minister in Holyoke. We must not forget Aunt Maroy. George and his wife became missionaries and worked in Tennessee. At present they are living in the eastern part of the state.

The next place is Meadow Brook farm where the Randolph family live. William married Etta Gold. They have a fine outlook over the meadows and a view of a long stretch of the Holyoke range.

We soon reach the site of the home of Justus Dwight, brother of Nathaniel. Justus married Sophia Dwight, sister of Clarissa Dwight, Mrs. Myron Lawrence. Sophia Lawrence was named for her.

She died at the age of twenty-eight. His second wife was Eliza Marshall. The first daughter was Betsy. She married Rich Dwight, a nephew of the first Mrs. Dwight. Then there was Nancy and Ann. Mrs. Dwight and her two daughters went to South Hadley to live and have the benefit of the Seminary. Nancy married Byron Smith and Ann was a governess in select families. Mrs. Dwight and Ann returned to Belchertown. John Dwight, cousin to this family and Nathaniel's family, owned the Mt. Holyoke house, and considerable of the mountain. He was the maker of Dwight's Soda and died years ago wealthy.

The next place we notice was Nathaniel Dwight's at Dwight Station. His father was a pioneer and had much to do with the settlement of Cold Spring. Nathaniel Dwight with his daughter came to the stone house to live and left Harrison and the son Nathaniel. Soon Nathaniel came down to live in the Bulet house with his wife and Harrison had full possession. This was an old house. Some of the rooms were furnished as the gentry of those days thought most becoming. One had drapery curtains made of copper plate to match the curtains of the high post bed, and large chairs covered with the same. Copper plate was much used for furniture. The house was burned many years ago. The family, I think, had gone to Mt. Holyoke. There was an old lady in the house and men on the place. They used all their strength to move the piano and all the letters and keepsakes were burned. Mrs. French felt deeply the loss of her husband's letters and pictures as she hoped by them to lead her little girl into knowing her father when she was older. Mrs. French was Lizzie and her sister was Clara. Another house was built. I think Mrs. Dwight wrote a little book of her family, the Cook's. The family moved to Amherst after Mr. Dwight's death.

Opposite was the log school house where Rev. Henry Ward Beecher preached his first sermon. They always go together; I never heard that any other minister preached his first sermon here. Rev. Mr. Beecher settled in the west and lived in as small quarters as any poor man. He wrote his sermons on one end of the table and his wife did her baking on the other end. His rise was rapid. He was soon called to Plymouth church in Brooklyn, N. Y., a new church. In 1880 his church numbered nearly 3,000 members. He was one of the most effective speakers of his day. Crowds flocked to hear him from all about. Well, he was Beecher, and the older people remember him. They say he lectured here.

I can remember but one of the men who lectured here. He was Mr. S. Wolcott. We came here after he left town. We thought no one quite as good as Mr. Wolcott. At one entertainment when he came out in eastern costume, I remember, and when Mr. and Mrs. Blake observed their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary Mrs. Blake was robed in white sheets like the eastern brides. The missionary lady told Mr. Blake the fine qualities of the bride and he smiled pleasantly as he looked his wife over. This was in Mr. Blackmer's house and Miss Lizzie Blackmer was mistress of ceremonies.

At a meeting of the Methodist church Wednesday evening it was unanimously voted to raise the church's quota of $735 towards the centenary Missionary movement which is intended to mobilize in this country 105 million dollars for beneficent purposes. $500 was pledged Wednesday evening as a good start on the required amount.

Salvation Army Drive

Nothing has been officially done in town relative to making plans to help raise $13,000,000, which the Salvation Army is out to get next week for its home service fund. Aside from a letter to the editor from George Hendee of Springfield, local chairman, asking for some publicity regarding the drive, no official relationship has been established, so far as known, with local parties.

Any, however, who would like to contribute to this worthy cause, can safely do so by sending contributions to the Western Massachusetts Campaign Headquarters, 33 Lyman St., Springfield.

Probably few war work organizations have come out of the war so unscathed as has the Salvation Army. This may be due to the fact that its work was not so extensive as that carried on by some of the others. However that may be, practically all returning soldiers, including those who went from Belchertown, speak in glowing terms of the Salvation Army.

What the Army is trying to accomplish in this new drive is best set forth in the words of Commander Evangeline Booth, who in a recent statement said

"Because of its work with the troops of the Allies in the war just ended, the Salvation Army has been favored by the public with a vast amount of popularity, which to us means responsibility. The inevitable penalty of such popularity, with consequent responsibility, is an extension of facilities. Millions of new friends new turn to us for a continuation of our service and it is our bounden duty to answer the call."

School History

I've been asked to write of school days,
In the golden by-gone years,
Of the times I've raised the dickens,
When the teachers boxed my ears.
Now I wasn't built for a poet,
But still I am no fool;
So I'll try and give a summary,
From the time I entered school.
'Twas in the pleasant autumn
Of nineteen hundred nine,
When I entered on the pleasures
Of the school room, so sublime.
The first teacher that I went to
Was Miss S—, tall and strong,
Only once did she rattle me;
I confess I had been wrong.

For two years she gave out lessons
In the old primary school.
Some were quick to work out problems;
Some were "educated fools."
Next in the line of worthy teachers
Was Miss R—, by name,
And the number of her reprimands
Was just about the same.

Only one year was she with us,
I am sorry for to say,
Thru the third grade did she push us,
In the most courageous way.

In the fourth and fifth grade period
Of our education course,
By Miss S—; now Mrs. P—sir,
We were coaxed instead of forced.

While within her jurisdiction,
Some of us got rather flip;
Till one day my father showed up
With a good stout raw hide whip.
"Now," says he, "if he don't mind you Give him this and then by thunder,
Send a note down after school
And when he's home I'll give him another."

Well from that day 'till she left us
Make your mind up, I was good.
Never did that whip attack me

To make my eyes with tears flood.
The third year of the Intermediate
By Miss Fenton, we were taught
I whispered, and had lots of fun,
But seldom was I caught.

The following two 'n a half years
We were followed by Miss Ripley,
And to my studying, you can bet
I tended right up strictly.
She never spoke up harshly,
Or threatened us at all;
'Twas just those snappy, big, brown eyes,
That could look right thru the wall.

She made us all just love her,
We'd do what e'er she said;
And when she came to leave us
My heart was just like lead.
The last half year of the grammar
Miss Austin scolded us,
For talking 'bout permission,
And giving her such "guff".

She said she wouldn't pass us
And stuck to it some time,
But just 'fore graduation
She must have changed her mind,
For I've got my diploma,
Showing I'm not a fool
You know if I hadn't got it,
I wouldn't be in high school.

Now, criticizing public,
My work you all can see;
Am I to be a farmer,
Or am I a "Poet to be"?
Now if our Mr. Editor
Will be kind and condescending, Next week or next week after I'll write another poem. W. D.

Two Flags

Belchertown should be proud of the two flags which float over the honor roll board. One is a Victory Liberty Loan Honor flag and the other is a "Beginning to End" Honor flag which signifies that we have gone over the top on all the loans.

Home From France LIEUT. PAUL R. SQUIRES

Lieut. Paul R. Squires is the latest Belchertown man to arrive from overseas. He reached town Tuesday having been discharged on the 10th after a varied experience in the aviation section of the army.
Lieut. Squires went to Plattsburg May 12, 1917. Then he went to Camp Devens where he was connected with the 303rd Field Artillery. On May 1, 1918, he went to the Field Artillery Replacement Depot at Camp Jackson, South Carolina. He left there May 15, going to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, where he entered the school of aerial observation at Post Field, graduating July 13. He then entered the school of Aerial Machine Gunnery at Selfridge, Mt. Clemens, Mich. He graduated from there August 17.

After a short leave he sailed from New York September 14, landing at Brest. He then took a short course in the Ground school at St. Maxient, after which he joined the 2nd aviation Instruction Center at Tours where he was when the armistice was signed.
He left December 10 to join the 104th Aero Squadron which was at Belrain on the Meuse River. The squadron was disbanded January 1. He then went to the Regulating station at Is-sur-Tille, leaving there April 12 for Brest whence he sailed April 26, arriving in New York May 7. He was then sent to Camp Meade where he was discharged.

Lieut. Squires, while across visited many French cities while on leave, and saw enough of war conditions to appreciate, like all the rest, getting back to the states.

KENNETH BRISTOL

Kenneth Bristol has arrived in town and is at work at Ketchen's garage where he was engaged when he enlisted in the service. Mr. Bristol was a member of the 341st Aero Squadron and saw ten months of real work overseas. When he entered the service May 15, 1918, he went immediately to Kelley Field, Texas. He was then sent to Camp Merritt, N. J., where after a few days he left for Hoboken and then sailed for "over there" May 21. He landed in Larnent, and after a short stay went to St. Jean de Monts (Vendee) where he was for ten months.

The squadron of which Mr. Bristol was a member had to build up its station from the very beginning. There were trees to be felled, shops to be built, hangars to be put up, sand dykes to be torn down, roads to be constructed and a complete equipment evolved which was thoroughly done. American air work was in its infancy at that time, so Mr. Bristol had an opportunity to participate in the whole upbuilding.

He sailed from St. Nazaire Mar. 14 and arrived in New York Mar. 24. He then went to Camp Mills and to the Aviation field at Garden City, L. I. He received his discharge at Camp Devens April 10.

HARRY E. BISHOP

Harry Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie L. Bishop of Allston, Mass., and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bishop of this place, has been honorably discharged, and with his parents spent the week-end at the home of his grandparents.

Mr. Bishop was one of the first to go to Camp Devens from Belchertown leaving here September 21, 1917. He was transferred to Camp Gordon in October, and in May to Camp Mills. He sailed soon after from New York and arrived in Liverpool. He saw service in most of the important battles, St. Mihiel, Toul, and the Argonne, serving with the 82nd Div. Field Artillery. While a member of the headquarters company it was his duty to make field observations and serve as dispatch bearer. He saw service for twenty-nine consecutive days on the Meuse-Argonne front, where the fighting was most severe.

After nearly a year across he sailed from Brest and arrived in New York May 9 on the Kentuckian. From there he went to Camp Dix where he was discharged May 16.

Services Incident to Memorial Day

On next Sunday morning members of the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, Veterans of the World War, Woman's Relief Corps and Firemen are asked to assemble at G. A. R. headquarters at 10.15 o'clock and march to the Cong'l church where appropriate services will be held. The evening service will be in the nature of a platform meeting and soldiers' service. Several speakers have been asked to take part.

Next Thursday afternoon the center schools will hold Memorial exercises in Community hall, instead of at the school building as heretofore. The Woman's Relief Corps will at that time present a flag to the members of the High school.

A complete program for Memorial day will be found on another page.

Davis-Kimball Wedding

Miss Louise Davis, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Davis, and Harold Kimball, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kimball, were married Wednesday evening at the home of the groom's parents. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. P. Rankin, the single ring service being used. The couple were married beneath an arch of laurel decorated with tulips and narcissus.

The bride wore a gown of white silk voile with veil and carried bride roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Ethel Gregory of Mittineague, a cousin of the bride, who was attired in white veil and carried whiteroses. The best man was William Kimball, the groom's brother. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Susie Squires. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a ruby brooch and the groom's gift to the best man was a stick pin. The wedding gifts were beautiful and numerous, including silverware, cut glass, china, linen, pictures and gold pieces.

Mrs. Kimball graduated from the local high school in 1918, winning first honors. Mr. Kimball is employed by E. C. Howard, the fruit grower, and has been connected with various local orchestras.

Guests were present from Northampton, Amherst, Holyoke, Mittineague, Providence, Enfield and Greenwich.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Kimball left for a short wedding trip, the bride wearing a travelling suit of blue with hat to match. Upon their return the couple will for the present make their home with the groom's parents on South Main street.

The World Convalescing

One should not be duly alarmed because the world is in such feverish condition. We ought not to expect that America even who has suffered the least from the world war will not do any foolish acts.

War may be likened to a critical fever which leaves the victim weak and helpless. We do not expect that the sick patient will be back in full health in a day.

It will be years before the nations get back to normal condition. It will take a long time before people will have sufficiently recovered from the shock of war to be able to reason rationally.

We must be patient as the world recovers. It should be remembered that in due time after the period of convalescence that the world will be infinitely better as the patient will be after his recovery.

Instead of condemning the world because it is in a semi-delirious condition, we should hail with delight any symptoms that the victim is regaining consciousness and coming back to health again.

Program for Memorial Day, May 30, 1919

The Memorial day exercises will be as follows; Members of E. J. Griggs' Post 97 G. A. R., will meet at Post Headquarters, Friday afternoon, May 30th, 1919, at 1.15 o'clock, and form in line on the street in front of headquarters at 1.30 in the following order; Drum Corps, Veterans of the World War acting as escort for the Civil War Veterans, E. J. Grigg's Post 97, G. A. R. and Associate members, Sons of Veterans, Woman's Relief Corps, town officials and invited guests, Belchertown Volunteer Fire Department, and children of the public schools with their teachers.

The line will then reform and proceed to the "Roll of Honor" where a short ceremony will take place.

The exercises at the Cemetery, Monument and Roll of Honor will begin with singing by the school children.

The procession will march to the Congregational church where the Memorial exercises will be as follows:

- 1 Prayer by Rev. H. P. Rankin
2 Reading of General Orders by Dr. P. W. Stone
3 Reading of General Orders of the Relief Corps by the secretary
4 Solo Selected by Carl F. Aspengren
5 Reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by Donald Sherman
6 Music Quartette
7 Reading Selected by Mrs. Nettie Shaw Allen
8 Address by Prof. Edward M. Lewis of Amherst
9 Closing exercises: Prayer by Rev. C. G. Burnham and singing of America in which the audience is requested to join

Apples Then and Now

A clipping from an old Homestead in the Belchertown news column reveals quite a contrast in the price of apples, considering the fact that Belchertown apples sold as high as $15 a barrel this spring, and first class apples sent to France from America sold for $1.00 apiece last winter.

"I sent ten barrels of good apples to Boston last fall to be sold on commission and received in return $3.09. Deducting the cost of 10 barrels at 15 cents ($1.50) would leave a net income of $1.59 for 10 barrels, less than 16 cents a barrel, put up with great care and delivered at our depot. I think that did not pay.

In the month of November I sent 25 barrels to a man in New York, who wanted every barrel should be new and carefully washed, every apple to be perfect in all points, and put up with the greatest possible neatness and care, designed for the rich merchants that were willing to pay extra for a nice article, giving me to understand that I might expect $1.50 a barrel for them. I received no return until last week, when there came a check for $15 for the 25 barrels, and it is doubtful whether I receive much if anything more.

"I put nearly 200 bushels into my cellar last fall, and now I am asserting them over and throwing away a great many bushels of them on to the waste heap, having no stock to feed them to, and am selling the sound fair ones at 50c per barrel; of the small and partly decayed ones, I have given ten bushels for one pound of butter, and that is a good bargain for both parties. The buyer wants them for his stock, and the seller wants the butter and is glad to be rid of the apples. I suppose that apples are worth $1 a barrel in Springfield, and they were selling in Boston last week for $1.30, and in New York for $1.50, but the middle men and the railroads want the lion's share and leave a small margin for the producer."

"Jack and the Beanstalk"

To combine beauty and utility is well worth while. J. W. Jackson of this town illustrated this combination last year in his bean vine arbor which was thoroughly practical and yet formed a summer house of beauty. Its construction being neither technical nor involved and so far as we know the patent not having been copyrighted, we pass on the idea to the readers of the Sentinel.

At planting time Mr. Jackson set his poles in two rows eight feet apart. These poles were not out regulation height, but were used full length, the slender, more or less bushy tops being bent to the center or ridge pole and tied, thus forming the framework for the sides and roof of the summer house. The vines proceeded to finish the structure, adding beauty and grace with each day's growth. It was merely incidental that they supplied the family with plenty of beans and that within this summer house lettuce found an ideally shady spot for summer growth. To crown all from the flag pole in front our national colors swayed in the breeze mingling in harmony with the tendrils of leafy green.

One of our citizens who is very well read and has lived in other places besides Belchertown, suggested that this idea ought to appear in print, remarking that it was equally as good as suggestions in "Country Life".

We are glad to pass on this idea with the hope that others may take the trouble to work out this or some similar scheme. We take the liberty of referring any one interested to John W. Jackson, nature lover, who has pictures of this bower of beauty and would give more explicit directions if needed, we are sure.

Circus Here This Week

The children of the town have long since read and digested the circus literature which has been posted for the Irwin Bros. shows to be run at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m. on Saturday of this week. The show will be staged in the vacant lot just above the factory site near the station and is run by the same management as when it appeared here thirteen years ago. During the last few years it has been run as a railroad show in the West.

Floyd Grover, advance agent for the circus, states that over one hundred men are with the show which contains besides acrobats, gymnasts, acrobats, etc., educated horses, mules, ponies, goats, sheep, dogs and monkeys. Wild animals and all the other attractions incident to a show of this kind will be on hand. From here the circus will go to Amherst.

The Kettle Ad

The kettle ad of a few months ago, plates of which we ran for the Purina Company, drew forth no prize-winning responses from our constituency but our readers may nevertheless like to see the clever productions of those who took prizes, so from time to time will sprinkle them in.

THE $100 PRIZE

Now, listen my children, and you shall hear
Why the iron pot is on my rear,
In Boston the pot means merely beans,
It suggests molasses in New Orleans;
In a poker game it represents money,
In Frisco it's filled with honey.
But-horse aloft upon my tail,
It stands for feeds that cannot fail—
The Purina brand of Checkerboard fame,
You can't forget the pot and name.

To Perpetuate Their Memory

In accordance with an idea being carried out in other towns and cities to perpetuate the memory of the soldiers who gave their lives in the recent World war, by naming streets and avenues for them, J. W. Jackson very pertinently suggests that the same thing be done here and that New St. which is no longer new, and East Walnut St. which has little psychological reason for the name, be given instead the names of Walker St. and Wright St. respectively, in memory of Corp. Chauncey D. Walker and Warren B. Wright who died in the service.

As this suggestion seems to us to be a good one we are glad to pass it on to our readers for their opinion and hope to hear from them in the near future as to what they have to say regarding it.

Memorial Day Sermon

Rev. H. P. Rankin preached the Memorial day sermon in the Congregational church last Sunday morning from the theme "A Soldier's Sacrifice", Rom. 12:1.

He said that our wars had meant sacrifices in lives and money. They also entailed sacrifices in the pain incident to separation. The Civil war was fought as was the present World war, on foreign soil. Our boys left homes, firesides, friends, mothers, fathers, sweethearts, brothers and sisters to meet a formidable foe and suffer and die away from home.

Our wars have also demanded sacrifices in that they have called for the sufferings incident to the hardships of war. In the Civil War and the present World War our boys met a formidable, relentless and brave foe.

Mr. Rankin said that it is hard to die at home when one is surrounded by friends and loved ones, when a mother's touch can cool the fever and ease the pain, when a spiritual leader and teacher is on hand to help and comfort, but to die away from home alone and unattended when one thinks of home and longs for familiar faces is a different matter. He wove into his sermon many dramatic incidents connected with the leaving of our boys for the front and their heroic bearing in the strife.

Referring to Belchertown's contribution in the several wars he quoted the following statistics:
Served in Revolutionary War 217
" " Civil War 170
" " World War 71

The Services Today

The Memorial services today will be held in accordance with the program printed last week. Capt. H. W. Eliot will be in charge of the veterans of the World War. Special services will be held at the monument and at the Honor board. Postmaster Sargent will address the Civil War veterans and Lieut. Paul R. Squires the boys recently returned. Readings will be given by Miss Alice Booth and Miss Irene Jackson. Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Belchertown volunteer Fire Department drum corps.

Memorial Letter

Mrs. Abbie Walker received this week from the Clerk of Co. G, 104th Infantry, a letter which is a testimonial to the life and service of her son, Corp. Chauncey D. Walker, a member of that company. Corp. Walker died for his country July 18, 1918, one of the two Belchertown boys to offer the supreme sacrifice. The letter follows:—

Three Rivers, Mass.

May 27, 1919

Dear Mrs. Walker:

Just at this time I know you will feel the loss of your son Chauncey. I hope that the few words I have to write may be of comfort.

I was the clerk in Co. G., 104th Infantry, and I considered your son as one of my closest friends; in time of trouble we always talked things over, and in joy we rejoiced together, and when I learned of his death it came as a great blow to me.

You may not have heard the cause: Chauncey was in charge of the ration detail; all rations at this time had to be brought up at night, and the detail was obliged to carry them considerable distance to the woods where the company was located—and it was at this time that your son was hit in the arm and thigh with "Shrapnel", passing away at the 103th Field Hospital a few hours later, and was buried at LaFute, Seine-et-Marne (State).

Your son was held in the highest esteem by all officers of the regiment who knew him and had the reputation that when in charge of a detail

Soldiers' Service

H. L. Hadlock, who served in the Civil war, and Serg. Albert Wydeen, just returned from the World war, spoke at the service Sunday evening of their experiences in fighting for their country. Both men saw active service and their tales were in a way similar, each suffering hardship enough himself and seeing others suffer sufficiently to testify that "war is hell".

Serg. Wydeen's experiences were so recent and were given with such vigor that they gripped the audience, but the story of Mr. Hadlock was no less thrilling than that of his younger brother in arms. Both revealed a devotion to country which was one and the same.

Mr. Hadlock took his hearers back to the firing of the first gun at Fort Sumter, which started a wild fire of patriotism that spread all over the country. He told of the call for 75,000 men, of his friends and comrades entering the service, of his own enlistment August 19, 1861 with the 1st Mass. Reg. then at Worcester, of his being sent immediately to Baltimore and to Annapolis, of the launching of Burnside's expedition and of his participation therein, of his first experience under fire and of his ill health which led to his discharge.

He then pictured the dark days of the war which led him to re-enlist after his health was sufficiently regained. He told of the threatening of Washington, of Lincoln's call for more men and of his becoming a part of the 37th Mass. Regiment, which included nineteen boys from Belchertown and was composed mostly of farmer boys of an average age of twenty-two years.

After re-enlistment he went to Washington, to Arlington Heights and was at the battle of Antietam. He pictured very vividly the hardship of the first winter when the soldiers of his regiment suffered severely for lack of covering and proper food. Salt meat and hard bread were the only rations.

Mr. Hadlock's portrayal of the relief of Gettysburg was most interesting. His army corps was ordered to reinforce the men at that place which was forty miles away. With no opportunity for rest and

Our Debt

We knew that this Memorial day would arrive, the Memorial day following victory. Other Memorial days have meant much, but this cannot help but mean more. It means that the world has once more freed itself from another of its evils and that autocracy bids fair to perish from the earth.

After the world's supreme sacrifice we gather today to pay tribute to those who gave "the last full measure of devotion". Their mortal eyes cannot view the results but their hands and their efforts made the era now arriving, possible.

A great man of our day has said that we cannot truly pay for the blessings we enjoy. We go to college, but we cannot really pay for the accumulated knowledge of the ages. In any line of activity, no matter which way we turn, we are debtors. It is the same as we gather today to pay respect to the dead. We cannot pay for the birth or the rebirth of freedom, or for this freeing of a world. No words, however eloquent, can pay our share of the price.

The only way we can begin to pay our debt to the dead is to grapple tomorrow with the agony of the world yet remaining. The millennium has not yet arrived and there is a work for all who would "carry on" the task so magnificently begun. In business, in politics, in affairs national, state, county and town, the call comes for the realization of greater freedom, greater justice, and real democracy. Therefore as we today bow in reverence in honor of those who "have fought the good fight" let us face the call of a waiting world and on the morrow, imitating their example, "Fall In".

I SEND YOU MY HEART'S DEVOTION

The vast and altogether lovely OCEAN reminds me of your love - a love whose tide ever comes in and never flows out. The serene and sunny SKIES remind me of your perpetual good cheer - a good cheer which like sunshine warms all the areas of life where you move. The bold and rock-ribbed MOUNTAINS remind me of your courage - a courage undismayed by any hardship, loss or sorrow, standing like granite against the storms of existence. The ever-present and blooming FLOWERS remind me of your beauty of soul - a beauty that has made me desire to revere all womankind and that helps me to believe in God.

with couriers constantly coming up with the message "For God's sake, hurry up," the situation was most intense. When they finally arrived on the scene, with only an hour's rest they were ordered to double quick, something apparently impossible after a 40-mile march but which was surely done, and hurried into the line and saved the day.

Mr. Hadlock says that although the men had marched 158 miles in 6 days, and had received no food for 3 days, not one murmured because of the hardship they were required to undergo. He then went on to tell of other battles but time was insufficient to relate all that was indelibly impressed on his memory of the four long years of struggle.

Sergeant Wydeen then gave the story of his life overseas, with its privations and dangers. He said that water was very scarce and that he went without washing for long periods in spite of mud and dirt, in order to have it to drink. He described his first glimpse of German prisoners which apparently would take two men to tackle, but he said, "We soon found out that all there was in them was just nothing at all."

After his arrival in France he rode three days on cattle cars to LaCourtime where he was until Aug. 6. He then went two and one-half days further to the Toul sector at the front. At this point he first heard the hum of the German air planes.

Wydeen told of his work as observer, which necessitated the making of sketches in dangerous observation posts. He described the location of batteries and the way the large guns were loaded and fired. He told of being in Manerville, in the St. Mihiel salient, of going to the Argonne and of his being wounded at Flaville. He was hit in the leg by a bursting shell and had to be taken to the hospital where he was for several months.

Sergeant Wydeen gave many interesting side lights on life across. He pictured the French house, barn and chicken coop, which were all in one. He said he had no experiences with cooties but he did have with the French flea which "didn't know enough to let go." He said some people call it "Sunny France" but it didn't strike him that way. Back from the front he saw the sun only about three days in seven, while at the front it rained about six days in seven.

He also told of the dropping of German propaganda from air planes. This literature was especially for soldiers of the U. S. A. and was intended to weaken the morale. Sergeant Wydeen said that many of the boys had become more religious by reason of facing death. He said that he overheard one young man saying, "Oh God, if you'll spare me I'll be a better boy". After the service the townspeople greeted the speakers whose messages were greatly appreciated. Preliminary to the speaking Donald Sherman recited Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Memorial Day Observance

Memorial Day was observed in town last Friday with true dignity. A larger number than usual came out, and reverently paid their respects to the veterans of two wars. After the dinner served by the Woman's Relief Corps in the chapel at noon, the graves in the cemetery were decorated with the usual ceremony.

Then followed services at the monument. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. P. Rankin, pupils of the High school sang followed by an address by E. E. Sargent. Miss Irene Jackson then gave a reading, and after remarks by F. G. Shaw, officer of the day, a wreath was placed in memory of the unknown dead.

The line then reformed and marched to the Honor Board where appropriate services were held. Prayer was offered by Rev. C. G. Burnham, the High school sang, and E. E. Sargent paid a tribute to boys of the younger generation who offered their lives at their country's call. An impressive part of the services was the presentation at this time by M. S. Barton and H. L. Hadlock, boys of '61, of two wreaths in honor of our two present day crusaders who died in the service, Corp. Chauncey D. Walker and Warren B. Wright. Thomas Allen on behalf of the High school then presented a wreath as a token of their remembrance. The honor board, thus decked with three wreaths and a beautiful set piece made and contributed by Mrs. A. E. Dodge which had on it in white the names of both Walker and Wright, testified to the fact that they were not forgotten.

After a reading by Miss Alice Booth, Lieut. Paul R. Squires addressed the gathering and made many allusions to the conflict just ended and the responsibilities now incurred. All then marched to the Congregational church where services were rendered in the following order: Prayer, Rev. H. P. Rankin; reading of general orders of the G. A. R. by Lieut. P. W. Stone; reading of general orders of Relief Corps, Mrs. Julia Hubbard; solo, Carl Aspangren; Lincoln's Gettysburg address, Donald Sherman; music by quartet consisting of C. F. Aspangren, C. W. Morse, Mrs. H. A. Hopkins and Mrs. Bertram Shaw; readings, Mrs. G. C. Allen, Jr.; address, Dean Edward M. Lewis of Amherst; prayer, Rev. C. G. Burnham; America.

The Blue and the Khaki, marching in the same ranks, the former representing the united country and the latter a united world, was very impressive, tending to make this new Memorial day and its services take on added significance.

Edward M. Lewis, dean of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, delivered the Memorial day address in the Congregational church last Friday afternoon. He said that in his imagination he saw on one hand a tottering line of veterans, which were composed of those who remained of the many who fought in the Civil war, and on the other hand a strong line of young men who have just returned from the World war. To the Civil war men he said, "The lesson you taught was well learned. The torch you carried has been caught up by the younger generation and the flame shone just as brightly at Chateau Thierry, the Argonne and Cantigny as it did in the battles of the war in which you were engaged.

"The story has been repeated. Boys in their teens and early twenties went to the conflict, the same as in your war. I have always tried to imagine how you looked when you went; and it has been somewhat difficult to do so but in the last two years I have been able to visualize you. I have had the privilege as a college teacher to look into the faces of five hundred American fellows, I have seen them listen with eagerness to the news of the front and I have asked myself what kind of soldiers would they make; were they similar to those of foreign universities who leaped to the colors? Were these careless, playful Americans, interested in baseball and football, their equal? Yes, I have seen these same students become stern and their faces set, and have seen them jump forward to the call—have seen them sacrifice all, these playful, happy faces become stern and with lips set together, for the welfare of our country, seen them go over the top, not as boys but as you were fifty years ago. Yes, the American boy in his teens and early twenties proved himself a man. As long as they manifest that spirit we need not fear.

"As I see you in imagination marching south, this feeling surges upon my heart and I am again ready to say that you taught us. Let me repeat it again, the lesson was well learned.

"But the war is not won. When November 11 came we had a patriotic rally. Germany was defeated, we were safe, but the war was not yet won. Unless we come out with a good peace, safe for democracy, unless another war of a similar nature is father away because of it, the war was not won. If we must go back to the status of things before the war, if the same forces could as easily again be kindled into flame, then ten million of our best young men and two hundred billion of dollars have been spent in vain and

Chronic Objectors

Some of us have come to be chronic objectors. During the period of the War we held ourselves in check in our burning desire to win in the Cause. The partisan spirit was under control. We let trivial things pass in order to bend every energy on the important things to bring the War to a successful and speedy conclusion. We were not looking for defects, so eager were we to find some place where we might render a service.

Now that the War is over some of us have gotten into the fault-finding mood. Our eyes are now open to the defects, and the more we look for defects the larger number do we find. We are hearing now about all the mistakes which the Y. M. C. A. made, we point out the terrible waste in money and the reckless extravagance of the War, we dwell upon the incompetence of men in high places, we call attention to the graft and the greed and the selfishness in the men of whom we have expected larger things, we complain because of the slowness of the progress of the Peace Conference. Some of the boys who return to us will have some grievance. Somewhere along the line they were not given proper attention.

Now all this is to be expected. If this office were suddenly called upon to carry on ten times as much business as it is at present doing there would be an abundance of mistakes made, it could hardly be otherwise. So with the Government in carrying forward the greatest war in history.

Instead of pointing out the defects, we should rather dwell on the excellencies. It is amazing what the Y. M. C. A. accomplished and we can never repay that organization for the glorious work it did. The Delegates at the Peace Conference should be commended because they completed within five months a greater task than has ever faced men before, and it should be remembered that they trod a path which was absolutely new.

We are not advocating that a man should shut his eyes to all defects, but some have closed their eyes and stopped their ears to all excellencies. If the War has left us cynical and critical and peevish, and pessimistic and chronic objectors, unable to speak unless we find fault, we need to take ourselves seriously in hand and go off and have a good laugh at ourselves. This is a time to cultivate generosity and magnanimity and patience and charity. B.

Memorial Day Address

nothing has been accomplished; the battle has not yet been won.

"The Civil war was not won when you returned. If we had not started to weld the country together, if there had been no emancipation proclamation, if the virus of slavery had been allowed to exist, another war would have been inevitable.

"This is a serious day—a war has not been won. Unless the world is made safer for democracy, unless it is harder to have another war, the war was a failure and an amount equal to the wealth of the United States—including absolutely every item of value therein—and twenty-six billions more than that, has been spent for nothing.

"Do you know why Germany had to stop. I believe she had to stop. From the moment the Americans went in at Cantigny and Chateau Thierry she never came a foot farther. She stopped and went back never to return. At the Argonne our troops drove them twenty miles farther than their original orders specified. But I have heard it whispered that Germany stopped because we were manufacturing gas a hundred times more deadly than anything yet and that a new variety had been evolved which would when dropped in a given area kill everything within twenty miles.

"Do we want another war with all these inventions developed? Whatever you can do you ought to do in the next five, ten and fifteen years in this era of reconstruction. You ought to think seriously about national and international problems. Our leaders usually do as the people say. Let it be the right thing that we say. Let us be thoughtful and guide and instruct those whom we sent to the state legislature. Let them know that in Belchertown and Amherst there is an educated public opinion—so that we will have a real share in winning the war, otherwise the war will be lost.

"The war of the rebellion was fought for the preservation of the union but the real cause was slavery. There would have been no secession if there had been no slavery. Slavery needed protection. What did you go into the battle for? Saving the Union? Back of it all there was a moral impulse; you couldn't say it; but you were striking at slavery.

"Into the constitution of the United States had crept this evil; Washington didn't want it, Franklin or Jefferson didn't want it; but it was because of the old game of compromise, the same that is going on today. This peace is bound to be a peace of compromise; every party to it is going to be disappointed. You can't have a compromise and have every one united or satisfied. Every charter of liberty is a compromise. Washington gave his slaves up and Jefferson said he couldn't help but fear for the future. This peace is the same; we've got to be satisfied with something not ideal; we must be satisfied if the machinery is started so that we can have something to amend when times become more normal. Our own constitution was amended thirteen times in two years and its tenor radically changed. It now stands before the world as the finest ever written.

"God challenges us with difficulties at this special time. It may be, however, that it is for our own good; it may be that we need just this moral challenge."

Dean Lewis paid a high tribute to William Lloyd Garrison who had the strength of will to speak the truth about slavery when great men were playing with it, and to Abraham Lincoln who knew and fought the nation's peril.

Dean Lewis said, "You won not because you outnumbered the South or were more brave, but because you were on the side of God and right, the side which always had and always will be victorious.

"Your individual bayonet helped to win the struggle and no matter how much time may intervene, we shall never forget you."

The Circus

They had the darnedst circus
Here in town last Saturday,
That ever I attended
Whether here or far away.
They were supposed to open up
At two o'clock p. m.,
But of course they didn't get here,
The roads were all to blame.

They opened up the side show
About an hour late,
To show the bear and lion
And nature's freaks and fakes.
There were the colored singers,
The blackbirds lookin' on;
They gave an entertainment,
And then we moved along

To where a man ate fire, or At least pretended to;
He didn't do a single thing
But what any one could do.
There was the "little" bear girl, (Bout fifty years of age);
She had no knees or elbows,
It wasn't camouflage.

On that very platform, was
The greatest freak of all;
She was tattooed like the pictures
We have upon our walls.
The dolls called Punch and Judy,
Next had an awful scrap;
And every one who saw them,
Just had to laugh and laugh.

There was the great magician
Who did some sleight of hand,
And just as we were going
They started up the band.
At eight o'clock that evening
They opened up the doors
To the animal performances,
And, gracious, how it poured.

Everywhere there was a "dry seat"
There was water by the peck,
And every time I sat down
I got it in the neck.
The ponies didn't do much
And neither did the sheep,
But while the dogs were acting
You couldn't see two feet, because ("Twas raining rakes and pitchforks, And leaking worse than that),

You couldn't tell if they were Cows, or pigs, or rats.
The clowns were rather funny
And did some queer stunts,
But I should think the way they slipped

They'd got some queer bumps.
I've seen a lot of circuses,
The largest in the world,
But I never saw such leaky cloth,
Over a show unfurled.

Now maybe 'twas the weather,
And maybe 'twas the show,
But if they had another
You bet I wouldn't go.

AT THE HONOR BOARD

Memorial day should be remembered with more than usual thankfulness this year, as we celebrate the close of the greatest war in the history of the world, fought to extend the same spirit that animated "the boys of '61", throughout the whole world.

The spirit of sacrifice which you have displayed during the war, was to be expected of the descendants of the men who preserved the Union, whose love for the flag you inherited, and whose spirit of loyalty and devotion you have duplicated on every field on which you battled in the cause of world wide freedom.

It is eminently fitting in the observance of this day, that we honor all men who served the stars and stripes. More especially should we honor those heroes who sleep their last long sleep, and in their memory as a testimonial of our regard, esteem, respect and honor, we place those laurel wreaths of Victory—consecrated and dedicated to the memory of those men who made the supreme sacrifice, for country and flag.

LIEUT. PAUL R. SQUIRES
AT HONOR BOARD

I want to tell you that I feel all unworthy to speak in behalf of the veterans of the World War.

Their share in the glory has not been mine, but at least I can honor them with the rest of you. And the thought I want to give you is the one which I believe Chauncey Walker or Warren Wright or George Hannum would give you could they be with you to-day. I know that every one of them would be proud to confide in every one of you,—because you did your part even as nobly as they did theirs. They would say to you, "Foster the thing that made us see it through."

And what is that thing?—Patriotism. Search your minds and ask yourself what that word has meant to you. Ask yourselves if the magnification of your individual patriotism by a hundred million would produce a national spirit such as exists to-day. It has lived in all of us,—but dormant, sluggishly dormant. And now that it is awakened for the emergency, shall we let it lapse back into a stupor whence nothing but the horror of fire and steel and blood can recall it? Is not this rekindled patriotism one of the biggest things bought for us by those who "sleep in Flanders fields"? Is it not essential alike in peace and in war? Is it not the only weapon with which we can, in the years of peace to follow, prevent the recurrence of such a scourge as modern warfare? And will it not compel us, as patriotic citizens, to insure against our great country ever again being mistaken for a collection of feeble, impotent, dollar-worshipping individuals?

William the Second thought our patriotism was dead. It was only dormant. It rose up in its might and crushed him. Let us keep it alive; "If ye break faith with us who die, We shall not sleep, though poppies grow In Flanders' fields."

Farm Bureau Meeting

Although not largely attended, the meeting in Community hall Monday evening was an exceedingly interesting one and should have received more hearty support. Three county leaders were present, Messrs. Farley, Gould and Rice and their presentations in word and picture were not only interesting but practical.

Mr. Farley gave a summary of the work carried on in the county and the reasons therefor. He said that in 1914 the U. S. government passed a bill for the furtherance of agriculture and home economics, in an effort to interest men and women, boys and girls in these lines of endeavor. The need of this was felt especially in this state where we import three-fourths of all the food we eat. Mr. Farley enumerated several kinds of clubs which have been formed in this state by county leaders in compliance with the new law. He mentioned garden clubs, corn clubs, potato clubs, pig clubs, poultry clubs and onion clubs, and cooking and canning clubs. He also said that every girl ought to know how to sew and there were therefore home economics clubs. In this connection he told of boys who also had become interested in this line of work. He also spoke of calf clubs, mentioning one in particular that had been formed in Hardwick where the young people had, through the courtesy of a dealer in registered stock, secured at very reasonable prices several registered calves with which to start their work.

Mr. Farley said that club work was carried on to raise more food but also to make more fun and more money. He said that members of any of the clubs were required to do the work themselves, keep a record and write a story about it. He said that all this created responsibility on the part of the young people and illustrated it by citing cases of boys who had gotten into "little difficulties" in their work and because of them had to exercise considerable ingenuity and common sense.

Mr. Farley said that young people like to see things grow and they also like live animals. If they can only be interested in these they will want to stay on the farm, but he said

The Peace Conference

Recently we have had the pleasure of listening to two gentlemen who have been present at the Peace Conference and thus have had the opportunity of getting news first hand.

One thing which is to be very much regretted is that we have been compelled to look at the Peace Conference through a "highly colored medium, which often distorts, and leaves us with wrong impressions".

Both of these gentlemen report that the work of the Conference has moved with amazing swiftness for a Peace Conference. The task which these delegates have had on their hands has been so gigantic that it would seem to be beyond the power of the human mind to settle them so as to give impartial justice to all.

We shall never know how much we are indebted to these delegates for the magnificent work they are doing. They have made mistakes and the Covenant will be far from perfect but as the Sentinel of last week said, our own Constitution was amended thirteen times within two years.

Extracts from Grange Paper

We print the following poem with explanation by the author, Mrs. A. D. Moore Jr. who contributed it to the Grange paper which was a feature of a recent Grange meeting.

The crimson glow of the Aurora which shown in the Northern sky Sunday evening, brings to mind the Northern Lights of March 6th 1918.

Many who saw the shades of red, white and blue (the colors of our own beloved flag) which appeared so vividly in the sky that night, believed it portended a decided victory for the Allies through the help of the United States.

These beautiful lights inspired the writer to compose the following lines:—

It was the colors of "Old Glory" Emblazoned on the sky, Painted there by the Mighty Hand Of God, who rules on high.

Shafts of light like slender fingers Pointing to an upward goal, Beaming to the faint, down trodden, Courage to the weary soul. Shafts of rose red, these for valor; Streams of white for purity;

Blue for justice, for which we're fighting, To give the World security.

Ever shifting, ever changing, On silent wings they softly steal. "The Heavens declare the glory of God,

The Firmament His works reveal." Then onward! Brothers, Do your duty!

To the fight with all your might! Your Heavenly Father bears the colors

Through the darkest hours of night! Ah, soon shall dawn the glorious morning,

When the thunder of the guns shall cease, When the rising sun shall smile upon A World once more at Peace.

The Country Boy's Creed

Clipping sent by subscriber

I believe that the Country which God made is, more beautiful than the City which man made; that life out of doors and in touch with the earth is the natural life of man.

I believe that work is work wherever we find it, but that work with Nature is more inspiring than work with the most intricate machinery.

I believe that the dignity of labor depends not on what you do, but on how you do it; that opportunity comes to a boy on the farm as often as to a boy in the city, that life is larger, freer and happier on the farm than in the town; that my success depends, not upon my location, but upon myself—not upon my dreams but upon what I actually do, not upon luck but upon pluck.

I believe in working when you work and in playing when you play and in giving and demanding a square deal in every act of life.

Still an Opportunity

E. E. Sargent wishes to pass on the word that returned soldiers who have let their insurance lapse have still an opportunity to get reinstated and thereby obtain a lower rate of insurance than will ever be possible again. For this reason Mr. Sargent calls attention to the following official document.

All discharged soldiers and sailors should be advised to keep up the payment of the premiums due on their War Risk insurance, applied for while in the military service.

Within a short time those who have kept up such payments will be permitted to convert their present insurance to other forms without another physical examination. Any discharged soldier who has permitted his insurance to lapse should correspond with or call at the office of Major T. J. Johnston, Department Insurance Officer, Headquarters Northeastern Department, Room 717, 99 Chauncey Street, Boston, Mass., as soon as possible, as it is not yet too late to be reinstated. Information may also be obtained there with reference to the new kinds of insurance to be issued and the premium rates therefor. In writing, in addition to asking the information desired, the person should indicate the date of his discharge and whether he has paid any premium since such discharge.

The officer above mentioned will also be pleased to assist the allottee of soldiers in cases where allotments and government allowances are not being received.

Card of Thanks We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the sympathy and many acts of kindness tendered us, and for the beautiful floral tributes received in our recent bereavement.

Farm Bureau Meeting

that if you want to drive them away then let nothing be done to create responsibility. He pled for action that would lead them to a feeling of ownership. Let them know that some hens, a garden, a pig are really theirs. Once get them interested, and deserted rural New England will be no more. Give them good things, too. Don't let them have the poorest land on the farm to work. Interest them in things around the home where they live instead of studying so much about things a thousand miles away which they will never see.

Mr. Farley said that a home had been defined as "a place of shelter where people live" but that now it was getting to be more of "a place of shelter where people sleep". He went on to ask what Belchertown would be twenty-five years hence. Would we be interested in Massachusetts, in rural New England and in Belchertown? If so the adults must take an interest now and make home the best place on earth. Mr. Farley said, "Does this mean you are going to be bothered? Of course it does. Yet isn't it the biggest job and won't you be doing the biggest job if you get busy helping the growing-ups in Belchertown enjoy every day living. Let's take the future right around us and do our part to make it what it ought to be?"

Previous to the moving pictures showing boys and girls engaged in their club work, etc., Mr. Gould said a few words regarding pig clubs in Belchertown. With a club of fifteen in Franklin school, one of four at Rockrimmon, one of four or five at Blue Meadow, one of three or four at Dwight, all either already formed or in process of formation, and the expectation of one at Liberty, he was able to report some activity in this direction. In his explanation of the pictures he said the Northampton National bank was willing to co-operate with boys wishing to join pig clubs but who lacked necessary capital. He also spoke of the home economics club in Blue Meadow, referring to it as one of the hardest working clubs in Hampshire county.

The pictures then shown by Mr. Rice were of human interest. Following the ones on the manufacture of rubber rings for fruit jars, and others relating to the cold pack method of canning corn, the audience was treated to complete picturization of a pig club member doing business from "Squeal day" when he received his precious animal till it was ready for the market.

The pictures dealt with the weighing of the pig June 1, inoculation, cleanliness of the pen and utensils, the raising of forage crops, the record of feeding, the occasional oversight of the county leader, the exhibit on fair day, the final weighing Dec. 1, and the writing of the story. During the whole of the enterprise, the boy in years, but a man in endeavor, showed a healthy American grin that betokened a real interest in the growing responsibilities in life.

Pictures were also shown of young people at a summer camp at the Massachusetts Agricultural College where prize winners of the various clubs throughout the state are privileged to go to spend a few days of pleasure and profit.

Typical of all from the Farm Bureau who have been to Belchertown in recent years, the party Monday evening expressed a willingness to come again if a larger hearing could be secured. Thus patiently, though undeserved, our county leaders, in a sincere desire to be of service, wait upon us in a spirit that must eventually awaken our interest.

Train Hits Auto

Edward O. Stebbins and John Stropski, while driving home from Palmer Monday evening were struck at the railroad crossing at Skeeterville by a south bound Central Vermont freight and were badly injured. The Ree car in which they were riding was completely demolished and it is a wonder that the occupants escaped alive.

The train stopped and took on the injured parties, carrying them to Palmer. Dr. Smith of Bondsville took Stropski to the Wing Memorial hospital in Palmer, and Dr. Schaal der of Palmer who cared for Stebbins, took him to the Springfield hospital. It was found that Stebbins' right leg was fractured and the knee pan broken in three pieces. His left foot was so badly crushed that some of the toes had to be amputated. His condition is as good as could be expected. Stropski suffered severe injuries to his head and shoulders. Both men are employed at the Wright wire mill in Palmer and were returning home from work.

Home From France

SERGEANT HERBERT STORY

Sergt. Herbert Story, a member of the 25th Ambulance-Co., 5th Division, Reg., and also of the 23rd Ambulance Co., 2nd Division, Reg., arrived in town last week from service over seas. Story enlisted August 25, 1917 and after training at Fort Slocum, N. Y., Fort Ogelthorpe, Ga., and Camp Logan, Texas, sailed from New York May 29, 1918, arriving in Liverpool June 7. He left Southampton June 11 and arrived at LaHavre the following day. He went into action immediately at Gerdermer in Vesges and on August 7 participated in the first offensive at Fraple. On August 17 he was in the Toul offensive and from September 9 to 16 was at St. Mihiel. He was also in the first and second Meuse-Argonne offensives. When the armistice was signed he was in the front at Stenay and Loupy.

He then joined the army of occupation and later attended Beauce university which he left May 5. He sailed from Bordeaux May 24 arriving in New York June 4. He was discharged from Camp Mills June 11.

Story received gas wounds at Fraple, but otherwise came out unharmed. He had the dangerous work of driving ambulances to the front and in the performance of this duty had many narrow escapes. Story pays high tribute to the American boys for the spirit they put into the conflict.

LINCOLN A. COOK

Lincoln A. Cook, who has been a member of the 111th Engineers and later of the 312th Salvage unit, has arrived home from France. Cook entered the service May 26, 1918, and went to Camp Upton, N. Y. and then to Camp Joseph E. Johnston, Florida. From there he went to Texas and the border and then to Camp Stewart, Va.

He sailed from New York August 22 and arrived in Brest September 3. On October 6 he entered the front and was on many of the important battle fields, including the Argonne and Chateau Thierry.

He sailed from Brest May 22 and landed in New York the 31st. He then went to Camp Meade and later to Camp Devens from which he was discharged June 12. He arrived in town last Friday, the same Lincoln he was before his departure. During his stay in France he has probably written to the townspeople more than any other of our boys who have been across. We trust that the letters written to the boys over there have been half as happy as his letters to those over here.

Catholic Mission Supper

The supper and entertainment given by the Catholic mission Wednesday evening in Grange hall was a most successful affair. From six-thirty, the hour of opening, until late in the evening the tables were filled almost continuously with patrons from all sections of the town and from neighboring towns as well.

The entertainment which followed consisted of the following numbers: solo, Miss Anna Shea of Bondsville; solo, Miss Cavin of Thorndike; solo, Miss Sullivan, Bondsville; solo, Miss Anna Shea; talk, M. J. Moriarty of Holyoke; stories, Mr. Griffin of Williamsett; piano solo, Miss Anna Shea; America, audience.

The musical numbers were cordially received and the readings by Messrs. Moriarty and Griffin were very popular. Father McGrath of Bondsville, the mission pastor, heartily thanked Mrs. Garvey, chairman of the committee of arrangements, and all those who contributed to the success of the evening, and hoped that similar suppers would be held in the fall. He said that in the not distant future he trusted that something might be had in the form of a chapel here in the center.

Illustrated Lectures Tuesday

A children's food and child welfare exhibit of unusual interest and importance will be held in Community Hall during the afternoon and evening of Tuesday, June 24, under the auspices of the State Department of Health and local health agencies. There will be speakers from the State Health Department and a large, interesting and educational exhibit devoted to health building, homemaking and especially the choice and preparation of nourishing food for infants and children. Motion pictures will be shown at the afternoon and evening sessions and there will be many attractive stereopticon views.

Miss Genevieve R. Jules, R. N., public health instructor of the State health department, will be in personal charge of the exhibit. She will be assisted by Mrs. Alsira Wentworth Sandwall, probably the best known New England lecturer on health building food, and by other representatives of the division of hygiene of the health department.

Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, Dr. George T. O'Donnell, State district health officer, will deliver an address.

In connection with the exhibit there will be many interesting demonstrations. The State health department exhibit is a new one which has aroused great interest in Haverhill, Attleboro, Canton, Taunton and other cities in which it has recently been shown. To make it interesting to all members of the family a number of features have been added primarily for amusement, but taken all in all the exhibit is of great educational value.

In order that the day might be perfectly free from any other engagements that would conflict with these meetings it was decided to hold them on Tuesday, instead of Monday as previously planned. It is hoped that the people of Belchertown will come out and greet the visitors who are anxious for the large hearing which is their due.

Grange Notes

All children of Grange members are requested to meet at Grange hall Friday afternoon directly after school.

A Call to the Colors

Dean Lewis in his Memorial Day address correctly stated that the war had not been won. He said that whereas the immediate danger was past, unless measures were taken to clinch the victory it would have been fought in vain.

This truth is becoming more and more apparent. In our national capitol today the stage is being set for a battle of great significance. Will the ideals for which America entered the war be there maintained or will they be vanquished? The boys are coming home but the final battle is not won.

As they don their civilians' clothes they may have a feeling of satisfaction that it is all over, that the piece of paper they have been looking for is theirs and thus for them it is over, but it is not becoming more and more evident that it is not over here.

If ever in the history of our country we need to be alert to see that justice, love and mercy permeate the life of the world, it is today.

Now that the devils of autocracy have been banished from our common household we need to exercise eternal vigilance that devils seven times worse do not enter in.

The task before us is a gigantic one. It calls for a vital interest in every endeavor to bring about righteousness, a fight that will last forever and in which there is no discharge. And it all begins at home. Not in some far away realm of glory does our pathway of service lie, but at our very doors. We must in Belchertown actively support every righteous cause, must promulgate lofty ideals and worthy ambitions and see to it that we are ready to enter into that new age for which our returning boys consciously or unconsensually fought.

President Wilson has presented high and holy ideals but if the common people do not grasp their meaning or study into their significance his battle for the time being will have been lost. It is true indeed that a great leader cannot advance much farther than the ideals of the common people.

Let us therefore study into truth, let us find out for ourselves upon what basis men and nations may dwell together in unity, let us look honestly at the arguments from every standpoint, and let us demonstrate our conclusions in our own community.

Who then is willing to answer this call to the colors, this call to service monotonous and unnoticed, this call that will bring us no wreaths of appreciation or inscribe our names on any visible honor board, but which is nevertheless the call of a world clamoring for righteousness, clamoring for truth and crying out for a better day that it thought was coming.

We trust that our boys now coming back to us will not consider their discharge too seriously and that they will lead us in this post war campaign, which if lost will make their former efforts vain, but which if won will bring to completion their unfinished task. We would not undervalue what has already been accomplished, but let it be indelibly stamped upon our minds that the ideals for which men died in France still hang in the balance and that for us in every field of endeavor there is a beckoning call that we all must answer.

Extracts from Grange Paper

An ad. given by D. L. Hazen Jan. 1, 1895

We have opened a store on the top of the hill Near the site on the brook where once stood a mill, And the waters of Jabish inflowing now sing, Of the merchants in Belchertown, Hazen is king.

We sell not tobacco, wine, whiskey nor snuff, Let men without conscience, deal out the vile stuff, But articles useful, conducive to health, Which make the home happy and lead up to wealth You can find in our store, all pure, fresh and clean And at prices the lowest you ever have seen.

We have stockings and mittens and all kinds of gloves, And all kinds of spices, mace, pepper and cloves, With flour, hams and butter, buckwheat, pork and beans, For Fridays, salt fish, or a box of sardines.

We've all kinds of canned goods, green corn, beans and peas, And also the choicest and best flavored teas, No use to enumerate, we can't tell you o'er The names of the articles, we have in store; But accept our expression of faith and good cheer, Long life to our patrons and a Happy New Year.

Frost Injury to Fruit Buds

Article contributed by Everett C. Howard to Grange paper

Fruit buds of all varieties of fruit and berries will, in a normal winter, pass the season in safety and be ready when warm weather comes to burst into bloom. When a severe winter comes with very low temperature, the tenderest varieties of fruits such as peaches and apricots are almost sure to be killed and in the spring will show no signs of starting. The experienced horticulturist will know long before spring if he can expect a crop of peaches or not, by an examination of the buds, by cutting them open with a sharp knife.

The two outside buds in each cluster of three are the fruit buds while the one in the center is the leaf or terminal shoot bud. The last bud mentioned is always green in the center in all varieties of fruit, no matter how severe the winter has been. The outside or fruit buds should be green or yellowish green all the way through, but if dark or black in the center then the life germ of the coming peach is killed and no fruit is possible. With the winter past the danger is not yet over, for a hard freeze some cold night in spring may kill many of the buds. On examination of buds or open flowers which may appear all right to the casual glance, the fruit embryo may show the dark centers and thus be dead. Blossoms of all varieties of fruit may in this manner be destroyed by a hard freeze and yet the tree may burst forth in full bloom, in all its glory and beauty. Even after the fruit has set and is in full evidence a freeze may destroy it, causing the fruit to be black and withered and in a few days fall to the ground.

The editor is in receipt of the following letter relative to Mrs. Hazen's articles.

My dear Sir—

I want to express my appreciation of the articles yet have published from time to time, written by Mrs. Hazen. When I child, I in company with my brother and sister spent hours roaming over those woods and fields. As I read Mrs. Hazen's descriptions those days and people live again.

Yours truly,

Health Day Meetings

Two meetings were held in Community hall Tuesday under the auspices of the State department of health and local agencies. The afternoon meeting was attended principally by children of the public schools. These were there in good numbers, coming in from the outlying districts. A large number came from Franklin school near Beardsville.

The afternoon meeting, however, was rather disappointing as the allotted speakers did not arrive till a few minutes before the scholars from Franklin school had to take the train. Dr. George T. O'Donnell, who had the meetings in charge, said that it was entirely his fault and promised to come back in the fall when they would be "only six months older".

Mrs. Ayers, a member of the party, but who came up to Belchertown some other way, very kindly addressed the scholars in the absence of the regular speakers and threw out several suggestions for the welfare of the child life of the community. She said that the slogan which they had to present was "The common health of the commonwealth". To better the common health she said that there are things we ought to do and there are things we ought not to do, both for our own sakes and the welfare of others.

Among the things not to be done were to use common drinking cups and common towels. She also said that the habit of taking turns in biting an apple was a bad one and might cause the transmission of disease.

Among the positive things to be done to safeguard health she mentioned the cleaning of teeth at night and in the morning and after each meal where possible, the washing of hands before eating, the cleaning of finger nails, and the necessity of living in fresh air, and eating such nourishing things as milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables. All of this advice were presented the children in a manner tending to show their desirability from a standpoint of comfort as well as resulting health.

Mrs. Ayers said that in the fall she hoped to see the children in their school rooms when in all probability they would be able to

Isaac-Allen Wedding

Olive May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Isaac was married to Lester J. Allen Saturday afternoon at 2.30 at the bride's home, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. The bride wore a gown of white silk georgette crepe with veil and carried bride roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Marna R. Isaac of Fitchburg, a cousin of the bride, and her gown was of pink silk georgette crepe with pink roses. The best man was Robert J. Drummond of Gardner.

The ceremony was performed under a bell of roses. The color scheme was pink and white. The wedding march from Reginald D. Koven was played by the sister in law of the bride, Mrs. Edward Isaac. The bride's gift to her maid was a gold pendant and chain, and to the pianist an opal ring. The bridegroom gave to his attendant a stickpin.

The wedding was attended by many relatives and friends from Fitchburg, Essex Junction, Vermont, Medford, Mass., and Suffield, Ct. The gifts were beautiful and costly and consisted of cut glass, silver ware, linen and money, also a sewing machine. J. W. Jackson eastered.

Mr. Allen is a veteran of the World war, serving thirteen months, ten of which were spent overseas.

Mrs. Allen attended the High school for two years and was a member of the class graduating this year.

The couple motored to Essex Junction, Vt., with Wm. A. Thompson, uncle of the bride. From there Mr. and Mrs. Isaac will go to Plattsburg and Saratoga Springs, later making their home with the bride's parents.

Home From France CORP. WILLIAM C. BISHOP

Corp. William C. Bishop has been honorably discharged from the army after twelve months' service overseas with the 328th Infantry. He entered Camp Devens October 6th, 1917, and was transferred to Camp Gordon October 12th to the 82nd Division which was then mobilizing there. The division moved to Camp Upton

B. H. S. Graduation

The season's events came to a climax Wednesday evening when the class of 1919 of the Belchertown High school received their diplomas at the graduating exercises in the Congregational church.

The themes for the evening were well chosen and thoughtfully developed. Miss Bernice Cook, salutatorian, based her essay, "Realities and Ideals" on the lines of the poet, "Hitch your wagon to a Star." She said, "Those who aim, make a place for themselves, while those who do not, have a place made for them by the world and one not wholly desirable or to their liking". Applying her subject to the present world condition she said that France was near to realities and thinking in terms of fact while Americans are the visionaries of the new era. The difficulty lies she said, in hitching the wagon of realities to the star of ideals. She pointed to Roosevelt as an exemplification of one able to do this, and closed with the thought that while "we must never lose our grip on the realities, we must press on to ideals".

Miss Dunbar gave several illustrations in her essay, "Woman's Work in the War", of women who had been conspicuous in activities during the war. She said that for every boy in khaki there was a woman engaged in war work, making shells, and all kinds of munitions, or else serving in places of danger near the front, some of them even nearer to it than our own generals were allowed to go. The heroism of the men was matched, she said, by the women and we are coming more and more to find that women are people and will have to be reckoned with as never before.

Robert J. Hanifin gave a declamation on "Americanism" by Lodge which was a plea for a greater love for country and a thrust at hyphenated Americans. It called for a solution of social questions, where the yoke of all is not easy nor their burden light.

The essay on "Woman Suffrage" by Miss Bowler was most timely. She said "We cannot call this a government of, for and by the people with half the people disfranchised". Woman should have a voice in the

A False Argument

A lawyer said recently regarding the League of Nations: "Such a League has always failed and will always fail as long as human conditions remain as they are." Oh! That is the same old story we have heard a thousand times. It has been the cry that has been made to every forward step the world has taken. Men take refuge in the old, old notion that, "human nature being as it is, things must remain as they are." It is a notion that ought to have been thoroughly exploded by this time.

Other visions which men have had have not failed; there is no sound reason why the vision of a world brotherhood should fail. Men had a vision that the black man should be freed and the vision came to pass. Men had a vision that thirteen commonwealths could be joined together in a League of States. Nearly all the wise men in Europe predicted failure and many in this country, but it has not failed yet. Men had a vision that the saloon should be eliminated. And the opponents have raised a hue and a cry and have said, "Prohibition does not prohibit. Since man's nature is as it is, men will always drink. Men will brew beer in their kitchens." But we are about to see the day when the saloon will be banished.

There is no reason why the League of Nations will not work. It may not prove to be the success which some think, but it will be a long step toward success. One who has recently toured the country and also visited Europe, states that the great bulk of those opposing the League here and there consist of the reactionaries, the stand patters, the traditionalists. Let no one be deceived by the age long argument that "human nature being as it is, things must always remain as they are."

making of laws they must obey. What concerns all should be decided by all who have the sense to decide. He who has it in his head that woman is inferior has a weak spot in his own. In the readjustment of labor, which has to do with men, women and children, in the world of finance and the world of health and morals, women are equally interested. Men, who won the war for democracy abroad have no right to deny them the symbol of democracy here at home.

The class historian, Miss Fleming, stated that there were twenty-one members of the class when it entered the High school but that many had fallen by the wayside. She spoke of the death of Miss Eva Bostock, who although removed from town, had been a valued member of the class. Miss Fleming also gave the class prophecy which she said was the result this year of no dream or trance.

Bernard J. Bowler gave the declamation "Vesuvius and the Egyptian."

The valedictorian, Miss Sullivan, in her essay, "Appearance and Principle" said that on the street or in school the one with a smart appearance is likely to get our confidence but that it is not always a safe basis for judgment. She said we are apt to think that the clothes make the man and look down upon one not well dressed. One with principle is like a tree which weathers all sorts of gales and stands secure. Principle is a passion for truth and without it we are like an unmanned ship.

At the close of the exercises W. F. Nichols, chairman of the school committee presented the diplomas.

He said, "I congratulate first, the parents of the graduates who have allowed their children to remain in school, second, the teachers for their earnest and conscientious work, and you for the successful work that has brought you here. I beg to remind you of one thing. The work has not been yours alone. Your parents have labored and sacrificed and the tax payers have been generous. There is an obligation on your part therefore to pay this debt to your parents and the town. You are no doubt repaying your parents day by day in increased love and devotion and I trust you will as gladly pay the town when opportunity comes, not alone with money for that may be the easier part, but with your time, talents, and service in every good cause that will tend to better the community."

The reception was held on the chapel lawn immediately following the exercises.

Health Day Meetings

tell her things.

Dr. O'Donnell, in the closing minutes of the session, pleaded for a greater attention to the matter of sore throat from which might develop tonsillitis and diphtheria. He told the children not to think it was brave and wonderful to keep quiet when their throats were sore but to let it be known that they might receive attention. He said that it was possible for a healthy child, while not becoming infected himself, to transmit a germ to another who would be infected.

Mrs. Sandwall, lecturer on health building food could simply be introduced. As the children passed out, however, she threw them the parting suggestion that milk was one of the best foods obtainable, containing as it does so many body building qualities, and hoped that they would make it a prominent article in their diet.

In the evening everything was in readiness for a full program. The children's food and welfare exhibit, in charge of Miss Genevieve R. Jules, R. N., was an interesting one. At one side of the platform was a life size doll baby surrounded by the latest scientific appointments for his comfort and the mother's convenience. Of especial interest was the standard bath for the baby, which could be made from a sewing table, removing the top and tacking to the frame work rubberized sheeting or some similar material to hold the water.

At the other side of the platform might be seen model luncheons for the growing boy or girl. An ideal mid-day meal consisted of egg on toast, spinach, carrots, a baked potato, bread and butter, desert, and a glass of milk. Emphasis was placed on the value and necessity of milk for the growing child, a quart a day being the needed amount. On this table also were models of an iceless refrigerator and fireless cooker.

Along the back of the platform were many pictures illustrating the fundamentals of right living. In this way many essentials of good health and good citizenship were brought home to both boys and girls as well as their elders.

Dr. O'Donnell, prior to the presentation of stereopticon slides and moving pictures gave an outline of the state department of health which it seems is a result of a reorganization of what was previously the State Board of Health. He said that its work was the suppression of communicable diseases; engineering such as installation of water supplies; food, hygiene, tubercular and venereal diseases. There are eight district health officers, one for each district. Belchertown comes in District No. 7.

Dr. O'Donnell said that the department refused the autoeratic power offered to it in the carrying on of its work, and comparing it with results in other states, thought our methods better.

He said that this year emphasis was being placed by the Massachusetts Department of Health on one particular item—diphtheria. He said "We know the cure. We have the antitoxin which is the biggest discovery in the medical age, which will counteract it if used early enough, but we have the same number of deaths." He attributed this to the carelessness of the public in the matter of sore throat, waiting to call the doctor until it is too late. He said that no one can tell the difference between tonsillitis and diphtheria without an examination of the culture, which the state was willing to analyze. He said to go out for what the state has to offer and not to be afraid of other injury to the system by the use of antitoxin. Dr. O'Donnell repeated what he said in the afternoon, viz, that a perfectly healthy person can have and transmit germs and yet escape himself.

Speaking on matters of general health he said that water is the natural flusher of the body and we don't drink one-tenth enough. He emphasized the need of sanitary methods of dispensing water in schools and advocated a rolling up of a tremendous public sentiment in this or any community that would serve notice on the proper authorities that modern health conditions must be fulfilled.

Dr. O'Donnell then exhibited a number of slides which showed the dangers of the common house fly, the common drinking cup, the common towel, drainage near wells causing typhoid germs in the water, and the dangers accruing from habits due largely to thoughtlessness. Many of the slides were diagrams showing food values; especially convincing was the one showing the enormous food value of milk and the total lack of it in coffee. Between the slides Dr. O'Donnell related incident after incident in his own observation that convinced him of the truth of things of which he spoke.

After his talk two motion pictures were shown. One, "In His Father's Footsteps," showed a farmer wholly disregarding of sanitary conditions on his farm, contamination of the water supply resulting in his daughter's serious illness with typhoid fever, the cause of it pointed out by the district health officer and the removal of the danger, by sanitary readjustments.

The second film portrayed the curability of the young man afflicted with tuberculosis, who had contracted the same in unhealthy quarters but who had thought recovery impossible.

Those who braved the warm weather of the evening were appreciative of the efforts of the visitors who are engaged in a genuine desire to better health conditions in Massachusetts.

Killed by Train in Cushman

Mrs. Mary Ayres, 75, a former resident of this town, was killed by a freight train while crossing the Central Vermont tracks in Cushman Monday morning on the way home from the post office. The papers state that she was oblivious to the whistles of the engine or the calls of firemen and engineer.

Mrs. Ayres was born in Pelham, the daughter of Philanda and Mary Ward. She was the sister of John, George, Aaron and Sumner Knight and lived on the Knight place at the time of the death of her husband, William Ayres, a few years ago.

She leaves two sons, William Ayres of Enfield, N. H., and Benjamin Ayres of Worcester.

Mrs. Ayres was a member of the Cong'l church and was highly respected by all who knew her.

The funeral was held in Amherst yesterday with burial here in the afternoon. Rev. H. P. Rankin had charge of the committal service.

first not wholly desirable, but when the parents found out the scope of the work and the remarkable results they were most enthusiastic in their praise. That same town has now become the center of the surrounding towns in athletic events.

Pledge cards were distributed for the work of the organization which is asking for $5000 to be expended in this county the coming year. Northampton has raised about one-half, and Easthampton a third of the remainder. An effort is now being made to secure the balance. Any of our citizens who were not present on Sunday morning can remit direct to the Hampshire County Young Men's Christian Association at Northampton.

Mr. Reynolds says that he is anxious to cooperate with the boys here and help them all he can. He says that a definite program should be mapped out and that the young people should be the mainspring of all the social and athletic events in this community.

Defeats

It is too much to expect that every good cause will succeed. Sometimes we have the feeling that every noble enterprise will triumph in our lifetime.

Statistics tell us that most business men have had defeat stare them in the face at some time or other in their life.

The temptation is strong for us to desert a cause if it is clear that the forces against us are insurmountable.

A League of Religions

Rev. H. P. Rankin, in his sermon Sunday evening, commenting on the signing of the peace terms and the formation of a league of nations, said that it marked a great day in the history of the world. He expressed the hope of many that the covenant now in its first stages will forever make it impossible for a weak nation to be at the mercy of an unjust aggressor.

He said that history may condemn the United States for not entering the conflict the moment that the neutrality of Belgium was violated.

Rev. Mr. Rankin then spoke on "A League of Religions", taking for his text "That they all may be one". He said that there were in this country 140 denominations and mentioned some of the trivial differences that had brought some of them into existence.

Class Song— Graduation Friends and classmates, we must sever, Ties that bind us fast; Though we long delay the parting, We say "Fare-well" at last; From our teachers kind and friendly We must part with a sigh; To each other slowly, sadly, We must say a fond "Good-bye". We must leave the dear old school house, So well known to our sight; And our happy year of school life, We must leave to-night. But amid the cares and duties Which through our own lives must throng, We'll remember one another Though the parting may be long. Though our school days may be ended, The work of life is just begun, There are noble paths to follow; There are vict'ries to be won; Let us ever "aim to attain" The greater duties and small That in life's great field of battle, We may conquer, one and all.

My Mother

In a high, old-fashioned rocker, Swaying gently to and fro, Sits my mother, old and feeble, Reading in the Sunset's glow. Soft and white her wavy hair, Wrinkled are her face and hand, But she's happy sitting there, Thinking of the "happy land". She's a Christian, my old mother. And she taught us all to know Christ is closer than a brother, Yet we reap as we will sow.

You will see upon her table, If you chance that way to look, Neither fairy tale nor fable, But a worn and faded book. It has been in use for ages; Many a story has been told From those yellow, fringed pages— Stories ever new, yet old.

"It is all I have to give you When I'm called away, my dears; Promise me to often read it, It will wipe away all tears."

Dear old book! Who would not love it, Cherish it with tender care? For it taught our dear old mothers To have faith and trust in prayer. K. C. S.

HIDDEN GRANGE MEMBERS
A story by Mrs. H. F. Putnam

On a mild October morning many of the members of Union Grange with their families started out for an auto trip across country. There was many a Fair child in the party. See if you can guess the correct number?

Their starting place was the old headquarters beside the village Green. It seemed they were Dodging Stones most of the time for a while but afterwards the Rhodes were much better. They journeyed by the broad fields of the Connecticut valley, and the Akers of onions and men Cutting tobacco attracted their attention.

Some wished to go to Northampton and Florence to visit the (Belden) silk mills but as we were expected to meet an old Granger in Springfield from an important city in Texas (Austin) we turned to the south through Pearl city and South Hadley; at the latter place the upper classes were Haz on the freshmen.

On the Holyoke bridge we saw a man which reminded us all of Abraham Lincoln. The party stopped at Bardwell's drug store for refreshments and one Gay young man ate so much ice cream (about a Peck I should think) that he had Sauer stomach causing very severe Pains. The whole party was alarmed until one member produced a bottle of good old Sanford's ginger. The place appointed to meet our friend was a well known florist in Springfield. Our friend was not there upon our arrival and we were shown through the greenhouses through the Curtis y of the proprietor. We saw vast quantities of sweet Pease, sweet Williams, Daisies, Margarets, Roses and blue Balls in bloom. Our friend now appeared and as it was nearly Noon oy suggested that we go to No. 362 Main street (Jackson's) in the 2nd Ward for a lunch but the party were intent upon going outside of the city where a cool Moose y brook flowed by the wayside. Here they were to Cook their dinner having brought corn and beans to

Something Permanent

There is considerable interest in the Holland anniversary to be celebrated on the 24th. The program has not been fully made out but will be published next week and will contain many interesting features.

The celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of this noted poet has brought to the minds of many the opinion that something should be done to permanently mark his birthplace, of which there is nothing left but the old cellar hole, the presence of which nature is kindly obliterating.

At one time or another it has been suggested that a bronze marker be erected on the spot, or a boulder be inscribed with the significance of the place. One thing is sure; the measure of our appreciation of Holland and his work will be manifested, not only by listening reverently to his poems but by permanently designating in a satisfactory manner, the spot of soil which links him to Belchertown.

Between now and the 24th, we trust that our townspeople will work out a fitting way to truly honor Holland.

Home from France

Stanley DeMoss, who recently returned from France, has received his discharge and is at his home in town. Pri. DeMoss enlisted April 20, 1917, and for nearly eleven months was on the Mexican border. On Mar. 16, 1918, he sailed from Hoboken and landed in Livarpool Mar. 28. From there he crossed the channel to France and for six months was stationed at Bordeaux. He was then transferred to Givres, a large veterinary camp, and later to Vendome.

Pri. DeMoss tells of the great preparations made by the cavalry department for the big parade which was to have been held in Paris, but which finally was called off.

He sailed from St. Nazaire June 16, arriving at Newport News on the 29th. After a stop in New York, he went to Camp Devens whence he was discharged July 8.

A pleasing feature of his homecoming was the unexpected meeting on Sunday with his brother, yeoman Alden DeMoss, who had not been home for some time and whom he had not met for three years.

Single Men Win by Two Run Margin

BY W. L. N.

A fifth inning rally, which resulted in the scoring of three runs, of the baseball game at the "new" park on the morning of the Fourth of July, won by the Single Men, 9 to 7, was enough to give Buck Davis's tribe a slight edge over Jack Fairchild's married team and was probably what sent the "older" crew down to defeat in a ball contest that was full of "pep".

William Kimball, former high school pitcher, was on the mound for the singles and he pitched a beautiful game from start to finish with the exception of the sixth inning, when he weakened and the married tribe put across a couple of runs. He managed to whiff fourteen by the strikeout route, allowed seven hits and gave three bases on balls.

John J. Fairchild, veteran pitcher, was on Slant Hill for the Married Men and pitched a good game also. The second and eighth were his best innings, when he forced his opponents to hit in the infield. He was touched up for eleven hits, gave a pair of walks and struck out six which is not at all bad for an "old timer".

The Single Men had the ability to hit at the right time and surprised many fans who thought that they would be easily trimmed. The team was in charge of Buck Davis and he kept them hustling from start to finish.

The two teams were about evenly matched. The Single Men's team was composed of former high school players, with the exception of Jimmy Leman, who has always played with different teams in this section. Among the Married Men's team were Roy Shaw, Sid Atwood, George Williams, Andy Sears and John Fairchild, all former players on the old Independent team; Frank McCain, formerly of the Cubs A. C. of Holyoke; Ray Blackmer, former high school player and Hawes, Cook, Mead, Kidder and Smees who are newcomers. Score:

Single Men	9	2	0	1	2	1
AB. R. H. O. A. E.
Barrett's	4	2	0	1	2	1
Leman, of	4	0	0	2	0	0

The Sequel of the Peace Conference

Rev. H. P. Rankin, pastor of the Federated church, preached a sermon of civic interest on Sunday evening, taking for his subject, "A Sequel to the Peace Conference".

He related the causes which led up to the war and the consequent violation of sacred treaties. He said that treaties had been violated before but that the conscience of the world was never so stirred as it was over this latest offence.

Another sequel, he said, would be the revaluation of the worth of our young men. The sacrifice of ten million of them would cause the people of the world to rise up and say that it should not happen again.

Mr. Rankin also mentioned the banishment of the saloon as one of the great results of the war. In contrast to many who think that things that always have been, always will be, he said that he who does not come up to this new banner of world righteousness will find himself left in the rear.

Mr. Rankin said we must strive to bring in this new heaven and new earth and stressed the great truth that religion is to fit men for this world as well as for the next and that he who would find heaven in the hereafter must in a great measure take it with him.

Grange Paper

While there we saw many birds. There was quite a dispute as to whether one was a downy or Harry Wood pecker. A small boy espied a Blood red bird in a tree and had a stone which he was about to hurl but his father saw him in time to prevent it. A pair of Brown thrushes were in a hedge nearby. At the signal-Allen we started on.

An amusing sight was an animal Trainer whom we saw at work in a field training some 2-year Olds. Our friend from Texas inquired how we were getting along in the Grange and we answered, him that we were trying the Spenserian system which worked very well.

At Southwick we stopped to see the Miller grind wheat. There were many Baggs waiting to be ground. We asked him what he did with the chaff. He replied, "O Shaw! Barnett." Here we would have had a short boat ride had there been any one to Row.

In Palmer one auto broke down and the people returned home in the train by way of Barretts' Junction. The cars seemed fuller than usual and one stupid fellow inquired of the conductor as they passed cattle guard is that a Bridgman? But received no reply. All together it was a very expensive trip but realizing that those who dance must surely pay the Piper we put our hands in our pockets and settled for our pleasure.

As there is so little of Witt or wisdom in this, you will surely be glad there is no Moore to my Story.

THANKSGIVING HYMN

J. G. HOLLAND

Tune, Duke Street

For Summer's bloom and Autumn's blight
For bending wheat and blasted maize,
For health and sickness, Lord of light,
And Lord of darkness, hear our praise!

We trace to Thee our joys and woes,
To Thee of causes still the cause,
We thank Thee that Thy hand bestows;
We bless Thee that Thy love withdraws.

We bring no sorrows to Thy throne;
We come to The with no complaint;
In Providence Thy will is done,
And that is sacred to the saint.

Here on this blest Thanksgiving Night;
We raise to Thee our grateful voice;
For what Thou doest, Lord, is right;
And thus believing, we rejoice.

Normal Living

The man who believes in exploiting his brother or in the principle "every man for himself" is abnormal and is on the road to utter defeat.

The man who loves is living a normal life and not the man who hates. If hate was normal then each nation should pile up increasing armament.

The League should receive heartiest support because by it war is most likely to be averted and the nations of the earth are to be greatly served.

His Thoughts of Home

He came back to us the other day, Safe from across the sea; I asked him what he'd missed the most, And he answered this to me:

"I have missed the hilltops braising air, The churchbell's evening toll; But most of all, it seems to me, I have missed the swimming hole.

"I did duty in muddy old Flanders; The slime was up to my chin; Our dugouts were full of trench-rats, And the cooties bit like sin;

"When the 'whizz-bangs' fell around me, And the air was foul with the dead, When the mustard gas was the thickest, A strange thought entered my head,

"Of a beautiful spot in my home town, Where the water ran clean and cool; Where green-leaved thickets of alders Sheltered our swimming pool.

"Oh, I've longed for a chance to spend my roll In the heart of gay Parris; I've seen the time when a U. S. smoke Would have meant the world to me,

"But when I was sweltered and dirty, It seemed like I'd swap my soul, For just a short half hour In the Jewish swimming hole!"

Calls Proposition Extravagant

A representative of the local grange has called to our attention an article in the National Grange Monthly for July, which is in the nature of a protest against the Lane Reclamation plan, now before Congress. We print the following extracts.

"There is now pending in Congress a proposition of serious moment, which threatens one of the most extravagant and unwarranted raids upon the public treasury that American history has ever recorded; and to whose far-reaching significance the whole people of the United States must be immediately and fully aroused, if the catastrophe is averted.

"Reference is made to the Mondell Bill, so-called, better known as the Lane Reclamation Plan, which in brief is a proposal to employ a vast amount of government funds in irrigating arid lands in the West and in draining swamp lands in the South, for the use of returning soldiers, whom Secretary of the Interior Lane declares will flock by the thousands to the new farm lands so provided. For this project the enormous sum of $500,000,000 is sought, to be expended as Secretary Lane sees fit, with practically no restrictions upon him as to where, or how, or when this tremendous outlay shall be used. These best informed on the real plans back of this only partially-announced project declare that $500,000,000 will prove only a beginning of the cost of the scheme, and that once the government embarks on this "reclamation road," it will have to see it through even though millions become billions before the end is reached.

"Powerful influences have backed the Lane Plan from the start and a desperate struggle is now in progress to rush it to enactment before the American people wake up. Hence the earnestness with which this warning is addressed to the farmers and to the rural people everywhere - taxpayers all - in the name of the National Grange, which is using every ounce of energy it possesses to defeat the Lane Plan."

nights. We have some fifteen, I believe, in the village. We were glad to welcome them when they were first placed in our streets. We were rather proud of our city fashions, when we could walk through our streets in a dark night, and find them illuminated by more than a dozen brilliant lights. They were all trimmed and burning then; some of them burned all night until the sun greeted us in the morning. But now we seldom see but one or two burning, even in the darkest night. Oil is cheap now, if public spirit is scarce. I hope there will be an improvement in this matter now, as the evenings are growing longer."

Seventy Years Ago

C. F. D. HAZEN

We were not out of Log Town in the last paper. I mentioned the copper plate cloth. But there was another bed chamber at the Dwight homestead, the bed dressed all in white dimity—high post—and window curtains with an edge made of white netting edged with fringe. This was one of the old time trimmings of our grandmothers, netting. Mine made a tidy for each of her daughters and some of the grand daughters. Then they knit tidies of coarse white yarn on big wooden needles and they were very pretty over the big chairs.

Now Log Town has changed. It boasts of a store and post office. The name is Dwight. It looks like quite a place on the map. Two railroads pass through and there is a school house and church. Formerly the school house was someways on towards Amherst. It was quite large and built of brick. Just here is the Dwight grave yard. Then there is Pansy Park but it has lost some of its beauty.

I asked a resident of Dwight if there used to be log houses up there. He said not as he knew of, but that folks in Hadley used to go up there and steal the logs. Well, that seems queer, but may be the folks in Log Town as well as in all the towns stole the shad in Hadley, which were plenty in the Connecticut river. Anyway, if reports are true, things looked very suspicious. It is said that if a family were at the table and were eating shad it would be blipped out of sight if a neighbor called. They were ashamed to be seen eating shad. But shad became very popular and what was better than a nice fat shad broiled before the good bed of live coals?

In my childhood days stoves were made so you could see the fire and my mother had not forgotten the cooking by fireplace. The hearth was in front of the stove. You draw it out, parted the ashes from the fire, set the pan of shad down on the edge and the fish was broiled beautifully. There was added a dressing of sweet cream. They did not fry or broil beef steak in a frying pan. The hearth was taken up and a nice bed of coals brought out and the steak on an iron grid iron set over and turned often. That was beef steak.

I don't know as I can tell any more up this road. There were the Goodales and Thayers but I did not know them. The Goodales were fond of flowers and built up Pansy Park by planting gardens of choice flowers.

Most of the outlying districts I knew by the people that came down to church. Pond Hill sent down a load from the houses, certainly the Hannums. George Hannum was my S. S. teacher. He had a class up in the cross seats where Dea. Sabiu formerly sat. Before he was teacher Andrew Sawyer taught the class. Strange that I have not mentioned Andrew Sawyer. He came from Troy, N. Y., and married Mary Filer. He was very much of a gentleman. I think he had been a druggist. He was fine looking. He might have been Mr. Filer's bookkeeper, I am not certain. Harrison Dwight's family attended church and got their mail in Belchertown, one post office for all the town and no letter carriers, so when a new church was built it cut off quite a bit from the church goers here.

It is strange how fashions have changed even in fancy work. A woman would come to town and get a class to make some sort of fancy work. It might be wax flowers, wonderfully natural. They must be covered with a glass globe to keep the dirt from spoiling them. Then it was hair flowers from their friends' heads. They might go into a frame. Or it was paper flowers, some natural and very nice and more otherwise. Then it might be a worsted wreath of flowers on black broad cloth, or may be a parrot.

I remember my Aunt Frances made a very nice wreath; so did Ortentia Cowles. They both took their work to Cattle Show and Miss Cowles took a premium and how set up grandma was. She knew Frances's was the best. I dare say there was not much difference. These flowers were drawn in and combed—a good deal of work. Later some one learned how to make some that showed the thread, very pretty.

Then there were nice leather frames, black roses, grapes, etc. I doubt if there are any in existence

now. Pretty frames were made of pine cones, especially the white pine. They were pulled open and put on inside out. Then there were paintings—water colors and oil, Oriental glass painted with black paint and then the flowers—this was placed over tin foil—crayon portraits, drawings, and I don't know how many kinds. I wonder how much of this is still about.

On the one hundredth anniversary of his birth

Holland, thy name is like a magic spell That beckons back the long forgotten years. Thy voice is vibrant to New England ears And quaintly solemn like the village bell That calls to praise and prayer. Oh, it were well To pause, amidst these present doubts and fears, And be as one who for the first time hears The simple message that was thine to tell. Then let "Kathrina" call, and "Bitter-Sweet", And "Bonnicastle" hold its lure again, "Gradatim" summon upward lagging feet, And "Gold-Foil" speak to humble listening men. So shall the turmoil of our time retreat, And we shall feel the wisdom of thy pen.

—Charles Washburn Nichols

Josiah Gilbert Holland

BRIEF SKETCH OF HIS LIFE

Josiah Gilbert Holland, the one hundredth anniversary of whose birth was celebrated last evening, was born in this town July 24, 1819 on the Amherst road, just below the lake which bears his name. He was the son of Harrison Holland and Anna Gilbert Holland and was one of six children. The family were evidently of a migratory disposition as they moved from here to Heath, back again, then to Granby and later to So. Hadley and Northampton. He attended Northampton high school and later took up the study of medicine, first in a doctor's office and later in the Berkshire Medical college of Pittsfield. Receiving his degree in 1844 he and Dr. Charles Bailey set up an office in Springfield. In 1845 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Chapin of that city. Holland, after practicing only a few years was convinced that medicine was not his calling, and turning to the literary field, began in 1847 the editing and publishing of the Bay State Weekly Courier, an enterprise which lasted about six months. He then taught school in Richmond, Va., and later accepted a position as superintendent of schools in Vicksburg, Miss. The illness of his wife brought him back to Springfield where he was almost immediately taken on the staff of The Republican in the capacity of an editor, serving that paper from 1849 to 1866. During his term of editorship he wrote a history of

Letter From Holland's Son

In response to a special invitation, Theodore Holland of Denver, Col., son of J. G. Holland, sent the following letter to be read at the Holland Anniversary Exercises.

Denver, Colorado
July 18, 1919

It was a pleasure to receive your letter and to hear that Belchertown proposes to recognize the one hundredth anniversary of my father's birth.

It is difficult for me to realize that a century has elapsed since he first saw the light and that a generation has passed since his death.

You ask me to write a message about my opinion of his aims and ideals.

It seems to me that he was pre-eminently a teacher and wrote in the didactic vein, but a teacher whose heart went out in love and sympathy to his audience.

His great aim was to tell the truth as he saw it and to help his fellow men face the personal and public moral and social questions of his day.

The end he had in view was undoubtedly clean individual and public life and the advancement of Christian ethics. Before all else was he a Christian and deeply imbued with religious sensibility.

If I interpret the times correctly, he lived at about the end of strict Puritanism and at the beginning of an era of much more liberal ideas.

Some of his contemporaries called into question his "orthodoxy". There is no doubt in my mind that his nature shrank from the cold and hard attitude of the narrow type of New England mind and reached out for a doctrine of greater love, charity and mental freedom.

Mr. Eggleston said of him "After all the great heart was a large part of the man. He cherished high and generous ideals himself and nourished them in others. His sympathies and sensibilities nothing could blunt. He had words of kindness for the humblest, and he loved the common people with a sympathy which reacted upon his own life and character."

Another contemporary wrote "In quietness he worked and ate his own bread. He studied to be quiet, and I can never think of him without a

The One Essential

The one thing necessary to keep communities and nations from stagnation is vision. Increase of wealth or luxury or pleasure or armaments have not prevented nations from running headlong to destruction. The thing to save a nation from pitfalls is vision.

Men of vision pictured to themselves a world free from slavery, and then they straightway set themselves to the task to make the vision a reality. They kept the nation from perishing. Men of vision saw a world with the saloon abolished, and it was that vision that kept them laboring night and day to bring the vision to pass. Men of vision saw these United States bound together "one and inseparable" and they were not content till the vision became real. Men of vision today are seeing the whole world as one great brotherhood, and war eliminated. The vision may not become a reality in the days of the readers of the Sentinel, but these men of vision are those who keep the world from perishing.

We need men of vision not only in international affairs but in the smallest community in the land. Those who are real builders in the town in which we live are those who have a big vision of what the town should be in business life, in social life, in the educational life and in the religious life.

Every man should get his eyes on the really big things in human life. With every new year his horizon should be broadened and the vision become clearer. For the clearer the vision, the sooner the reality.

The Town Pump

A kindly friend is the old town pump. In his coat of rusty brown, Not much for looks, with his back a-hump

And his one arm hanging down; But "handsome is that handsome does"

I know and so do you, And judged that way there never was

A friend more kind and true.

That arm is lifted countless times, Each hour of every day, And those who seek his help are sent In comfort on their way.

The rich and poor alike he treats— One blessing for them all; Alike for old and young we see His benefactions fall.

The dusty traveler, parched with thirst, Rejoicing, takes the road: The weary, heavy-laden drink And lighter grows the load.

Unlike man's many earthly friends, This friend expects no fee; Each time his willing arm extends, The gift he makes is free.

God's blessing on the old town pump At the farther end of the town; May Time deal lightly with his pump And his coat of rusty brown!

Seventy Years Ago

G. F. D. HAZEN

I will return as far as the Pelham road. In the first place lived S. Kenfield and family. The next place, a very pretty one, was owned by William Shaw. The house and all the buildings were removed by the Springfield Water Co. in order to have pure water.

We are now up to the old turnpike that crosses over to the Enfield road. Mr. Snow lived here, had a farm, saw and cider mill, a prosperous man. He owned the land toward town and there were berries growing beside the fence. We had a summer boarder at the Belcher house, Mr. Caruthers. He used to ride around town and he liked the looks of Mr. Snow's berries, so he gathered and ate some. Mr. Snow did not like that and there was no end of bad words, followed by a law suit in which Mr. Caruthers' friends went to Northampton to court to see the case tried. The papers were full of the proceedings, even Boston papers. Guy Allen summed it all up in verse. It was the sensation of the day. I have the account in an old scrap book.

Mr. Caruthers had with him his wife, a daughter and two ladies, all feasting on Mr. Snow's raspberries, and they did not leave when asked to. His anger and abuse was of long duration as he came here in the winter when there was a prospect of getting a Normal school and wrote a letter to the House of Representatives in Boston why we ought not to have the school. Alvertus W. Morse was our representative and G. H. B. Green was in the Senate and they explained the matter.

A FAMOUS LECTURE IN RHYME

By Guy C. Allen

A lecture was advertised once from this hall And all were invited, the great and the small, The Pa's and the Ma's, John's, Martin's and Luther's, To list to the brilliant Mr. Caruthers. The Pa's and the Ma's early hied to the hall, Their daughters, too, went; they were named in the call. The sons and the brothers, John's, Martin's and Luther's, To know how to farm must hear James Caruthers. He opened his lecture with prelude so long, Insult and abuse were the burden of song; He offended the parents, John's, Martin's, and Luther's Who lost all respect for Mr. Caruthers.

Our Master West went on the stage To be a kind of hooster

And shout Here is the coming man— A New York crowing rooster.

But Howard never came to time He never said, "In truth, sirs,

This is the man to talk about farms, The honored James Caruthers." He said West needn't introduce him,

But when James opened his remarks West thought he did traduce him. The next to catch his seething tongue

Was our good friend, the deacon, Whose compass is the Holy Word, Whose chart the self same beacon.

He simply read all that was wrote Nor went off in ecstasies; He didn't strew the way with palms, So deacon had to catch it.

The church, too, roundly was abused; He claimed 'twas ne'er converted Because it would not open its doors To hear God's ways perverted.

There's some who heard the lectures read Who could not think it witty.

They wouldn't have it given in church

But snubbed him, that's a pity! I'd like to wear the sacred robes

Although I hadn't orter, But if I could convert Six James, I'd keep him long in water.

I doubt the advice he gave, If water has the power To make a gentleman of him I'd keep him in an hour.

And when he touched our neighbor Snow, He said it beat all holler That he should pay for berries each Our legal courts, a dollar.

That life he could enjoy much more On hills or prairies In summer's heat or winter's cold Without Snow in his berries.

He wanted roads laid very wide And talked about their construction: Perhaps he travels one that's broad, That leadeth to destruction.

When next a crank comes into town Who wishes to abuse us, Just tell him of the model plan Practised by James Caruthers.

The bathers were hanging on to the boat rowed by another member of the party and let go in deep water, evidently not realizing the depth, as neither one could swim. They came to the surface only once and nothing could be done for their rescue. The bodies were not recovered until the middle of the afternoon.

Western Massachusetts, a novel, "The Bay Path", a series of letters, "Max Mannering to his sister in the Country" and later his "Timothy Titcomb" letters which were a great success.

In 1858 Holland wrote "Bitter Sweet", one of his great poems. In 1866 he published a life of Lincoln, of which there were 100,000 copies sold. After Holland resigned from The Republican he went to Europe with his family. Upon his return he became the first editor of Scribner's monthly which he was influential in starting and which increased in ten years from a circulation of 40,000 copies to 100,000 copies. Aside from the literary work he did upon the various periodicals with which he was connected, Dr. Holland was constantly in demand as a lecturer.

He died October 12, 1881 in New York city and was brought to Springfield for burial. In his memory, a few years ago, Upper pond was changed to Holland Lake, and the glen, not far distant, to Holland Glen. Thus in an appropriate way Belchertown has sought to perpetuate the memory of one of its citizens who went out into the world in comparative poverty but who rose to a place of prominence and made great contributions to the life of his fellow men.

feeling of restful enjoyment. Dr. Holland was resolute, patient, judicious and industrious. He was exceptionally endowed with tact and pluck and pertinacity. He was painstaking, and willing to bide his time. No rebuff could dishearten him. It was perfectly natural for him to go at it, and stick at it, to try again and keep trying."

I am using these quotations because they show some of the judgments of his contemporaries. It is a rather difficult matter for a son to estimate judiciously in character of his father. You will appreciate this I am sure. It is peculiarly so when that son can recall no cloud that ever came between him and the warm sunshine of a father's sympathy and affection.

I trust there is nothing indelicate in my testifying in the town of his birth to those qualities that made him the best and most loving of fathers and to the purity of the ideals that he exemplified in his family life. It seems to me that the last words of his will, deliberately written, are more significant than any words of mine could be:

"I am thankful for having enjoyed the privileges of labor and influence, thankful for wife and children, thankful for all my successes. I have intentionally and consciously wronged no man, and if I know my heart I have forgotten all my enemies. For the great hereafter I trust in the Infinite Love, as it is expressed to me in the life and death of my Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ."

To this I can add and from it I would take nothing.

Sincerely yours,
Theodore Holland.

Farmers' Week

The Massachusetts Agricultural College will hold its first annual Summer Farmers' Week July 28-August 2. Heretofore, "Farmers' Week" has been held in March on the theory that farmers could better come at that time, and could not leave their business during the busy season in the summer. This, therefore, is for us an experiment, but one in which we have much faith and confidence. A day or two at the college with friends and experts along your own special lines will not only afford fellowship, rest and relief from the strain of the summer's work, but also, we believe, a great deal of helpful information and inspiration.

There will be something for everybody; farmers, wives and children. We are glad to report that the following organizations have agreed to have Field Days at the college during that week:

Massachusetts State Grange, July 29th.

Tobacco Growers' Association, July 29th.

Massachusetts Holstein Breeders, July 30th.

Massachusetts State Dairymen's Association, July 30th.

WANTED

The college is your college, farmers of Massachusetts, and we want you to know it better than some of you do, and to know it in all its aspects. Your coming will be not only a help to you, but also, I am sure, a great help and inspiration to us.

C. F. D. HAZEN

I recently saw in the Union: "You should wear nothing unless it is necessary. A necktie is not necessary, but I have not the courage to go down town without one." Well there is a sect that discards the necktie, or did, years ago, the Free Methodists, a people that left the Methodist church, may be in the seventies, at least that was when I first knew them.

My husband was teaching in Christown, N. J., and the Free

The Holland Anniversary

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Josiah Gilbert Holland was appropriately celebrated in the Clapp Memorial library last Thursday evening. The library desk, which was removed for the occasion, allowed a long tier of seats to be placed the entire length of the building and these were nearly all filled by the large company that came out to pay tribute to the noted poet and listen to selections from his most famous poems.

In front of the stage, at the right, on an easel, was a large photograph of Holland, before which was placed a jar of ferns and daisies, while near by was a table containing nearly all of Holland's works and also books and manuscripts which have been written about him.

On the spacious stage which was brilliantly lighted with electrical combinations especially installed for the occasion sat the participants in the evening's program.

This, then, formed the setting for the anniversary numbers which were taken from Holland's works. The first was a Christmas Carol, "There's a song in the air," sung by the chorus. "Incidents in the life of Holland" were related by Miss Dorothy Holland, a cousin of the author. She prefaced her remarks about Holland with brief glimpses into the lives of other members of the Holland family. She said that the first that is known of the Hollands is of one Joseph Holland in London. She also spoke of Nathan Holland, a member of the Plymouth Colony who lived in Watertown, Petersham and Belchertown. Regarding Capt. Park Holland, a great uncle of Josiah, she said that he served seven years in the Revolutionary War, enlisting in Petersham. He helped survey the province of Maine and was also active in the suppression of Shay's Rebellion. He lived here for ten years, from 1790 to 1800. He represented the town or district of Belchertown in Boston, and lived in the house now occupied by Walter Morse. He built a store, intending to be a merchant.

Coming down to Harrison Holland, father of the poet, Miss Holland said that he was a wool carder but that machine made goods soon forced him out of business. He came to town in 1810 with his brothers and after a short residence here moved to Heath and Granby but came back again in 1834. He worked with his brother Luther on inventions. He was ingenious but not practical. He invented wooden pill boxes and boxes to hold silk while his brother invented the first fire engine in this country, also a horizontal pump. They worked in a shop near the Holland residence on the Enfield road.

With improved machinery in manufacturing they never made any money however. The Hollands, she said, were interested in the perfection of machinery to manufacture silk and it was largely due to them that there was a decided interest here in the mulberry business at that time.

Harrison Holland and his family left town sometime between 1834 and 1840 but were always interested in Belchertown, coming back every year until Mrs. Lather Holland died.

Regarding J. G. Holland, Miss Holland said that he quite disliked work on a farm and would use every means to get out of it. Once when in the hayfield he pretended to be overcome with the heat and went to the house where his grandmother made him drink to the last drop a bowl of thoroughwort tea. It is said that after that experience he was never afflicted with sunstroke while his grandmother was in the house.

Miss Holland described the poet as about six feet tall with black hair and black eyes and of a quiet but pleasant disposition.

She said that the impression had gone out that Holland did not care for Belchertown but she doubted the truth of that very much, stating that the ties of kinship which brought him back were broken and that after all that is what links people to the place of their birth.

She also said that he was chagrined with being unauthoritative but described him as one having a broad outlook upon life and not particularly attached to creeds or sectarianism.

She said that he sang in the choir, was plain and straightforward. He

Sterling-Drohan Wedding

A wedding of interest to Belchertown people took place in South Hadley Falls Tuesday evening, when Joseph Drohan, formerly of this town, and Miss Amelia Sterling of South Hadley Falls were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist church, Rev. J. P. West officiating. The single ring service was used.

The bride was a graduate of the Holyoke high school while the groom was educated in the schools here. He was in France with the 104th and while there wrote back many interesting letters of his experiences.

The couple have gone to Philadelphia for a wedding trip, and on their return will live in South Hadley Falls. Mr. Drohan is employed by the Crocker division of the American Writing Paper Co.

The Art of Letting Go

A minister once learned a lesson from his mother-in-law. It was a lesson on getting rest during vacation.

Few of us have learned how to rest. Some men can get more real rest in a half holiday because they let go of everything, mentally, physically, nervously, than others get in a week because they don't let go.

This lesson the mother-in-law taught the minister is a good lesson for everyone of us to learn whether we have a week's or a month's vacation or none.

School teachers find it hard to let go of their problems as they leave the school room. Ministers find it hard to let go, or else they wouldn't have "Blue Monday".

A Culinary Song

There's a tune that's loved by all good men,

From the age of ninety back to ten; It's made by bubbling, sizzling fat In a kettle, large and black as that Used by the witches, sorawny and thin,

To brew their essence of rat tails in.

There's an odor adored by normal males,

That live in palaces, hovels, or jails; It rises from round, brown hunks of dough,

And fills all the air, above, below, With an aroma as sweet as any perfume

Bottled up in a maiden's room.

There's a product which comes from this song and scent,

By eating which the memory's bent To the kiddo coming home from school,

Finding it waiting, hot or cool, In a great big dish on the pantry shelf,

Where he could go and help himself.

The soldier, just back from the dirty muddle,

That recently ended across the puddle,

Gives thanks and praise to the Y. M. C. A.,

And the Red Cross nurses, fair and gay,

Who risked their lives, their lives, their all,

To lessen the dread of death's grim pall.

But his thanks are loudest, his praises most full,

For the lassie who stood, serene and cool,

O'er a bit of a stove that was nearly a wreck,

And made up doughnuts by the peak,

To fill the doughboy's harassed mind

With thoughts of the home-folks left behind.

Now here's a moral for the bright, young thing,

That, some day, hopes for a wedding-ring;—

Forget the fudge, the rarebit, the pie,

(And believe me, kid, this aint no lie;)

Haste ye to the doughnut pan,

And when you've learned how, you'll get your man.

Reminiscences

Methodist tried to get a foothold in the city. Husband had taken The Earnest Christian since it started and he liked to attend the meetings. They had a conference there and ministers from New York and other places were there. We were invited to dinner at the minister's house. It was on Sunday. They would not buy milk on the Sabbath so we had none in our tea. We sat round a long table and each one said a verse of scripture. Mine was, "Trust in the Lord and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land and verily thou shalt be fed." There was a loud Amen from these ministers. I did not know why but you were expected to have something about eating.

After dinner we walked to the hall for the afternoon service. There was quite a procession and it fell to my lot to walk with Mr. Joseph Mackey of New York, a noted publisher. He was very social and nice. We reached a bridge and he wanted me to say, "Praise the Lord," which I did, but it was not of the Free Methodist sort as they would have made it known. The leaders of the company began to sing, "Children of the Heavenly King, As you journey sweetly sing." A policeman stepped up and put a stop to such doings. The proud city of Merristown could not tolerate such doings. The ladies dressed very plain but I never saw a prettier bride than the wife of one of the ministers, Moses Downing. She wore a light silk, prettily made, and a very fine Dunstable hat, trimmed to match the dress.

Years later Joseph Mackey left the denomination. I think he did not walk straight enough to suit. The Free Methodist church did not stay in Merristown but when we went to Los Angeles there was a church there, and after a while we heard that the people in the east wanted a school in southern California and Mr. Esty, one of the preachers, and a real estate man, Mr. Rogers, hit on a trade. Mr. Rogers had land, barren hillsides south of Pasadena Avenue, also of the Arroyo, brown in summer time and prettily green in winter. Mr. Rogers said he would give land to build the school, also a church; then he would give a lot on the streets for every one Mr. Esty would sell. They named the streets for some person in their church; so one was named Roberts for the leader of the sect and so on till several streets were named, and Mr. Rogers said, "This street we will call Esty for you." "But," said Mr. Esty, "These men are all dead." "Well," he replied, "you will be soon enough." In a very short time there was a thriving village, a nice large school and church called Hermon. It is situated half way between Los Angeles and Pasadena.

So much is said about air planes. We had them in Los Angeles years ago. Among the first a Frenchman, Paulhan and his wife came from France and we were all interested in both as every time the man went up she was there to welcome him in true French style when he came down. January 14, 1910, there was a great aviation meet, 50,000 there. He flew nearly a mile high which broke all records then. They had an exhibition in a park below Los Angeles which drew crowds but before I left they were very common. The dirigible balloon—we saw many. It is cigar shaped, and many sailed along very near us on the way to Pasadena. It seemed to be their route, following up the top of a very high hill east of the Arroyo which begins above Pasadena and flows down into the Los Angeles river before it reaches the center of the city. Now the Arroyo is dry most of the year but when the winter rains set in, the ground is so dry it all runs down the high hills in streams and the Arroyo is a raging, angry river, taking even houses and the underpinning of a big brewery; but that's since I left.

was an admirer of Lincoln and Garfield because their sympathy with the humble drew them to the hearts of the people, a characteristic which he himself possessed.

In closing Miss Holland presented to the Historical Association the Park Holland diary which was acknowledged by Miss Marion Bartlett, clerk of that organization.

Next on the program was a letter from J. G. Holland's son, Theodore Holland of Denver, Colorado, who paid a high tribute to his father. This was read by Miss Bartlett and was published in our last week's issue.

The Cellar Scene from "Bitter Sweet" was then given by Belding Jackson and Miss Eleanor Bardwell. Mrs. H. F. Curtis then read selections from "Daniel Gray," a pen picture of the author's own father.

A trio consisting of Mrs. H. A. Hopkins, Mrs. H. F. Peck and Miss Bernice Cook sang the Lullaby Song from the "Mistress of the Manse". This was followed by two cradle songs read by Mrs. A. D. Moore, Jr., and a recitation, "Wanted" by Donald Sherman.

Mrs. Myron Ward followed with selections from "Bay Path" in which was related the story of the naming of Mt. Tom and Mt. Holyoke.

"Gradatim" was recited by Miss Mable Randolph of Dwight, and the mountain scene from "Kathrina," a popular poem, was rendered by Mrs. G. O. Allen, Jr., of Coldbrook.

"Hither Sleep! A Mother Wants Thee," was sung by the trio, after which were given two selections "A Call to Arms" by Dr. E. P. Bartlett and F. Dudley Walker, both recently discharged from the service. "Peace" was read by Mrs. Roy G.

Shaw.

The Songs of "Doubt" and "Faith" from "Bitter-Sweet" were given by Miss Irene M. Jackson and Miss Alice Booth.

A sonnet, written especially for the occasion by Dr. Charles Washburn Nichols of Minneapolis, and which we printed last week was read by Miss M. E. King, and the program concluded with a thanksgiving hymn from "Bitter-Sweet," sung by the audience.

Miss M. Louise Allen presided at the piano for all the musical selections. At the conclusion of the exercises a vote of thanks was given Wilbur F. Nichols who had charge of the evening's program and was acting chairman of the committee which consisted of Mrs. M. D. S. Longley, Miss Sadie Demarest, Miss Edith Towne and Rev. H. P. Rankin.

Edward G. Sargent and Earl Witt are deserving of special mention for their work in arranging the lighting both outside and inside. A unique feature of their work was the illumination of the tower which could be seen from some distance.

Taken all in all the celebration was one worthy of Holland and gave all who attended a better idea of the poet's life and work than many of them previously possessed.

Loses Valuable Cows

Henry Gould has had the misfortune to lose four cows this past week, one of them the best in his herd. Death was due to eating skunks cabbage which brush cutters in his pasture had cut.

Mr. Gould has been a milk dealer in town for nearly twenty years and has just sold his route to J. V. Cook.

A Bit of Arbutus

C. F. D. HAZEN

Mrs. Lyman Randolph sent her daughter Bessie who is in a hospital in Chicago, a box of trailing arbutus last spring. Bessie gave each of the nurses a bouquet and one of the doctors said he never saw any flowers like that but he had heard his mother tell of the pretty flowers she picked in Belchertown when she was a girl.

The Randolphs wondered if it wasn't one of the Masons of Federal street, but I more thought it was Addie Mason who has sisters in Pasadena. On inquiry they write, "We had a bit of that arbutus sent in a letter from Dr. Albert Hunting, sister Addie's eldest son."

Now this question comes: Were these Randolphs related to Hamilton Randolph who was a neighbor to us when we lived on the farm? I expect so.

There is no romance about this. But it all comes from a bit of our earliest and sweetest little flower, one which is not found in California where there is no end of roses and beautiful flowers—though of the wild flowers there they are mostly on paper, or that was my experience.

You read of the generosity of the people in California. They meet you with oranges and roses. Miss Seaborn in her book tells of having a bushel of roses given her. Well, we are not all Kate Seaborns and you will get no more attention there than any where else unless they think they are to get pay for it in some way.

When Johnny Took Off His Head

Great grandmother was getting ready for bed. Little black-eyed granddaughter was watching her. She stared. Never before had she seen a person take off her hair and lay it down beside her. Frightened but fascinated she watched, but when great grandmother put her hand to her mouth and drew out a handful of teeth, the frightened baby fled.

But perhaps she was no more surprised than I was to see Johnny in bed with his head off. There he lay kicking vigorously at the bed clothes and trying to turn over in bed, while his head and neck lay at one side quite separate from his body. No, this is no "Alice in Wonderland" tale.

When I first saw Johnny he was on a raspberry leaf, a strikingly handsome fellow, with his beautiful yellow velvet clothes decorated with touches of red, and with three long brown plumes which may have indicated his high rank in the army. He did not take kindly to prison life and on his escape was found med-

Death of Darius Otis Chickering

PACKARDVILLE NEWS

Darius Otis Chickering died in the Hampden Hospital, Springfield Friday night following an operation. He was the son of Otis D. and Sarah Winter Chickering and was born October 14, 1852 on the farm where he had always lived. This farm has been in the family for more than one hundred twenty-five years.

Mr. Chickering was a member of the class of 1876 M. A. C. and attended Boston University in 1877. August 16, 1879 he married Lillian Smith of South Deerfield. She died in 1914. Two sons, George O. of Dorchester and Bertrand of Enfield survive him.

The funeral was held at the late home Monday at 1.30. Rev. Amos Lord officiated assisted by Rev. Leroy Lyon. Mrs. Lottie Stevens McNulty, Mrs. Belle Knight Davis and Mrs. Dora Knight Spaulding sang "Abide With Me."

Mr. Chaffee, a near neighbor, voiced the feelings of the community when he spoke of Mr. Chickering's helpfulness and good neighborliness and said that in the fifty years he had known him he had never known him to do one unchristian act.

Mr. Chickering has served the Packardville church in many positions. At the time of his death he was a trustee and serving his twelfth year as Sunday School Superintendent and his seventeenth as deacon.

Turkey Hill Night at Grange

Tuesday night's Grange meeting was Turkey Hill night. Mr. Wm. Barter of Malden sang a solo and assisted the Young Men's quartet which sang "Sipping Cider Through a Straw". There were several other musical selections and the Turkey Hill chorus sang some of the popular songs, asking the audience to join them.

Three guessing games of egg, bird and age were read. Mrs. H. F. Patnam had arranged forty native shrub and tree leaves for a guessing contest. Mrs. M. G. Ward had the highest number correct.

Other Things to Let Go

A week ago we spoke of "the fine art of letting go" of our business cares when the work hours were over.

We ought to let gossip go. There are many things, not exactly wrong, but things which had better not be circulated.

We ought to let prejudice go. How we do cling to them! Have you ever seen a child when commanded to let go of a certain article just hug it all the more closely?

We ought to let pettiness go. Petty things to engage our thought that it leaves us no time to lay hold of the best things in life.

Notice to Property Owners

You are hereby required on or before October 1, 1919, to destroy the gypsy and brown tail moths on your property in this town.

This notification is in accordance with Chapter 381, Acts of 1905, as amended by Chapter 268, Acts of 1906, which requires cities and towns to destroy the eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests of the gypsy and brown tail moths under heavy penalty for failure to comply with the provisions of the law.

If a property owner fails to destroy such eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests, then the city or town is required to destroy the same, and the cost of the work, in whole or in part according to the value of the land, is assessed upon and becomes a lien on the land.

The Selectmen ask owners and tenants to co-operate with the town in its work on highways and other public grounds by doing effective work on their premises. Citizens who have cleared their premises of the moths, but find their trees endangered by the neglect of owners of adjoining estates should make complaint to the Selectmen. The infestation of a residential neighborhood by the neglect of a few will not be tolerated.

The eggs of the gypsy moth should be destroyed at once with creosote. They should never be scraped off the object on which they are laid. Careful search should be made for gypsy moth egg clusters, not only on trees, but also on house walls, stone walls, fences and in rubbish heaps, etc. Trees in which cavities occur and which it is not desirable to cut should have cavities tinned or cemented. This is important. The present and future cost of combating this insect can be greatly reduced by cutting and burning worthless brush, hollow trees, etc. A few trees well-cared for are more valuable to the property owner and the community than a large number of neglected trees.

The nests of the brown tail moth should be cut from the trees, carefully collected and burned in a stove or furnace.

Full instructions as to the best methods of work against the moths may be obtained from the Local Superintendent, or from the State Forester, Room 408, State House Boston, Mass.

Work done by contractors should be inspected and approved by Local Superintendent before payment for the same is made.

"On the job"

Certain-teed forms a complete, seamless surface that sheds rain, snow and sleet year after year with almost no attention. It is always "on the job."

The most severe weather makes no impression on Certain-teed--nor can sparks, fumes, gas, smoke or insects impair its protective strength.

Yet Certain-teed costs no more--less in fact than other types of roofs. It is easily and quickly laid by anyone who will follow the simple directions that come with the roll. Upkeep expense is too slight to consider.

Your buildings, old or new--large or small--in city or country--should have the protection of Certain-teed.

Certain-teed is made in rolls, both smooth and rough surfaced, (red or green) also in handsome red or green asphalt shingles for residences. Certain-teed is extra quality--the name means certainty of quality and satisfaction guaranteed. It will pay you to get Certain-teed--most dealers sell it. Ask for Certain-teed and be sure to get it.

The Sequel

"The habits of insects are very mines of interesting knowledge, and it is impossible carefully to watch the proceedings of any insect, however insignificant, without feeling that no writer of fiction ever invented a drama of such absorbing interest as is acted daily before our eyes, though to indifferent spectators."
—J. G. Wood.

When I reported to the Sentinel last week about Johnny Caterpillar's strange doings, it was with no idea that there would be a sequel for this week's paper. Of course you and I both guessed that some day the chrysalis which had been a caterpillar would develop into a moth or butterfly, that is, under normal conditions.

Now the cocoons which we have had in the house before have hung dry and lifeless, apparently, for months. In fact we often have decided that the tenant was dead and that we might as well throw the things away. Then suddenly some one would discover the beautiful, satin-winged creature poised on the outside of his long-time prison house, very gently moving his wings, stretching and drying them. And always we wondered at the miracle and marveled at the skill which folded those great wings about the body and tucked all away in such a small compass. As we looked closely at the covering we saw that once it had been a green leaf, that it had hung from the parent stem through all the winter's storms and sun, carefully wrapped about the sleeping beauty within. But even after the last of the ice and snow had gone, the tiny creature waited, often well into the summer, until, as I have said, we generally thought it dead.

But to return to Johnny Caterpillar, sleeping in his silken nest in the bottom of a tumbler, sleeping a sleep which, according to my previous knowledge, would last many months. Imagine my surprise, then, a few days later. At one end of the white woven covering was a round opening not quite as large around as a lead pencil. At the other end of the cocoon hung a softly brown, fuzzy little creature, head and antennae, legs and body, all like those of any moth, but—with no wings. We watched. Were they

Death of Nelson Blackmer

Nelson Merritt Blackmer, 61, died of heart trouble at his home in the north part of the town at 6.30 o'clock Tuesday morning. He had been in ill health for some time but the end came suddenly.

Mr. Blackmer was born August 4, 1858 and was the son of Hiel and Lydia Blackmer. January 15, 1888 he married Nettie Chamberlain. All their married life was spent in town with the exception of four years when they lived in Pelham.

Nine children were born to them, seven of whom survive, Mrs. Myron Bush of Sunderland, Mrs. Wilbur Pierce, Mrs. Theron Pratt, and four in the home, Myrtle, Milton, Leila and Doris. There are four grandchildren, Edwina, Westina and Douglas Pierce, and Frances Pratt. Mr. Blackmer leaves besides his wife and children, a brother, Bernard K. and a sister Mrs. R. Sophia Wilson, both of Madison, Wis.

The funeral will be held in the chapel at two o'clock this afternoon. Rev. H. P. Rankin will officiate and burial will be in the South cemetery.

Field Day at Red Bridge

A Field Day of the Red Bridge Community League will be held at the home of Mr. Merriek Allen, (the old Bishop Morgan place) August 16, 1919, if pleasant weather; if stormy it will be postponed to August 23. There will be sports of all kinds for young and old. Bring your lunch and plan to have a good time. Mr. George E. Farrell, secretary of the Hampden County Improvement League will be with us.

Application for Testimonials

Postmaster Sargent has on hand for distribution application blanks for testimonials which will be issued by the Commonwealth to honorably discharged soldiers who at the time of mustering in were residents of Massachusetts. In case of death the certificate or testimonial will be delivered to the heirs or to such person or persons as the adjutant general may deem to be entitled to the same.

Auto Accident

An auto accident occurred near the top of Depot hill last Saturday afternoon when a roadster driven by Mrs. George Oliver collided with a touring car driven by L. W. Johnston of Amherst.

Mr. Johnston took a sign of greeting by Mrs. Oliver to a friend to mean that she was going to turn into a driveway on the side of the road on which she was on. Instead, both cars shot to the opposite side of the street where they came together. Mr. Johnston's car was badly damaged and one wheel on Mrs. Oliver's roadster was broken. No one was injured.

Picnic at Forest Park

A community picnic, basket style, will be held at Forest Park, Springfield, Wednesday, August 27.

The following committees have been appointed to make arrangements for a joyful occasion:

Besides his widow, Mr. Hunter leaves eight brothers and sisters, this being the first death among the children.

The funeral was held in Warren on Monday with burial in Greenwich where he was born. Rev. W. O. Terry, formerly pastor of the M. E. church here, had charge of the services.

The Fine Art of Living Together

The family that has acquired the fine art of living together in peace and happiness has made a great achievement. A man takes to himself a wife after his own heart and while they may agree on fundamentals, yet there are a multitude of minor points on which they are likely to disagree. The husband may come from a home where the emphasis was laid on practicality and utility, the wife from a home where stress was put on the aesthetic and the artistic. If such a couple can live together without friction they have made large attainments.

And then the problem is greatly increased if the home contains in addition a quiet grandmother and a romping boy and a girl bubbling over with vitality. A fine art has been accomplished if a family of seven can live happily under the same roof.

The community that can always live and work together happily is a community among a thousand. The marvel is that there are so few quarrels and jealousies in communities as there are. When one considers that in communities are families who are very poor, and others very rich, some families of rare education and others who can boast of no book apart from the Bible; some families who are always in the public eye, and others who have no social standing whatever, the miracle is that so many communities live together pleasantly.

Capital and labor are finding it increasingly hard to live together happily. But they are in the same world and must live together. It would be well in these days of unrest to study carefully the methods which are used in cases where the relationship between employer and employee is most amicable.

Whether we have a League of Nations or no—the nations of the earth cannot live apart in these times, they must live together, no matter how we may feel about it.

As you have already guessed, this foamy white mass is a nest containing many tiny eggs. Just how many I cannot tell. They are large enough to be seen easily with the naked eye but owing to the foamy covering which might be called the nest, they can be seen for the most part only through the glass. Only by tearing down the nest could they be counted accurately. At a guess there may be fifty eggs, quite probably more, very possibly less. The eggs themselves are spherical, rather yellow in color and about the size of the white pebbly sugar which decorates the top of round, sweet chocolate candies about the size of a cent piece.

The nest itself needs a bit of explanation. From its appearance it might be the stiffly beaten white of an egg, only hard and brittle as glass. A tiny particle, seemingly one bubble, under the microscope becomes a number of bubbles, frail as soap bubbles, and sparkling and glittering in the sunlight as an ice-encrusted tree shines and sparkles on a winter's morning.

Now why all these bubbles? "There's a reason" in nature as in Grape Nuts. This covering is a protection for the tiny eggs. How? Just as a meringue over ice cream protects it from the heat of the oven so that it does not melt at all while the meringue is baking. (See recipe for Ice Cream Baked with Pistachio Souffle in the Woman's Home Companion for August, page 80.) The air imprisoned in the bubbles, being extremely refractory to heat, absorbs the heat of the oven and prevents it from reaching the frozen cream. The souffle which surrounds the eggs of this moth acts in the same way, except that it protects them from cold instead of from heat for because of the presence of this covering we have a right to judge that the eggs under ordinary conditions must survive the rigors of winter before hatching. Eggs which hatch before winter do not have this protection.

One other word of explanation. We noted the absence of wings. Turning to "Moth" in the cyclopedia we read, "The females of a few species are wingless." Also, "There are some groups of moths in which it (the proboscis) is merely rudimentary, and these are supposed to take no food after they pass from the larva state." My charge certainly had no food after passing from the larva state.

Thus endeth my tale. The cycle is rounded. Her task finished, her body emptied of its contents and shrunken and flabby lies beside her eggs, a little brown leaf which, its work perfected, has fallen to earth. 8.

Notice to Property Owners

You are hereby required on or before October 1, 1919, to destroy the gypsy and brown tail moths on your property in this town.

This notification is in accordance with Chapter 381, Acts of 1905, as amended by Chapter 268, Acts of 1906, which requires cities and towns to destroy the eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests of the gypsy and brown tail moths under heavy penalty for failure to comply with the provisions of the law.

If a property owner fails to destroy such eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests, then the city or town is required to destroy the same, and the cost of the work, in whole or in part according to the value of the land, is assessed upon and becomes a lien on the land.

The Selectmen ask owners and tenants to co-operate with the town in its work on highways and other public grounds by doing effective work on their premises. Citizens who have cleared their premises of the moths, but find their trees endangered by the neglect of owners of adjoining estates should make complaint to the Selectmen. The infestation of a residential neighborhood by the neglect of a few will not be tolerated.

The eggs of the gypsy moth should be destroyed at once with creosote. They should never be scraped off the object on which they are laid. Careful search should be made for gypsy moth egg clusters, not only on trees, but also on house walls, stone walls, fences and in rubbish heaps, etc. Trees in which cavities occur and which it is not desirable to cut should have cavities tinned or cemented. This is important. The present and future cost of combating this insect can be greatly reduced by cutting and burning worthless brush, hollow trees, etc. A few trees well-cared for are more valuable to the property owner and the community than a large number of neglected trees.

The nests of the brown tail moth should be cut from the trees, carefully collected and burned in a stove or furnace.

Full instructions as to the best methods of work against the moths may be obtained from the Local Superintendent, or from the State Forester, Room 408, State House Boston, Mass.

Work done by contractors should be inspected and approved by Local Superintendent before payment for the same is made.

Also, "There are some groups of moths in which it (the proboscis) is merely rudimentary, and these are supposed to take no food after they pass from the larva state." My charge certainly had no food after passing from the larva state.

Thus endeth my tale. The cycle is rounded. Her task finished, her body emptied of its contents and shrunken and flabby lies beside her eggs, a little brown leaf which, its work perfected, has fallen to earth.

Notice to Property Owners

You are hereby required on or before October 1, 1919, to destroy the gypsy and brown tail moths on your property in this town.

This notification is in accordance with Chapter 381, Acts of 1905, as amended by Chapter 268, Acts of 1906, which requires cities and towns to destroy the eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests of the gypsy and brown tail moths under heavy penalty for failure to comply with the provisions of the law.

If a property owner fails to destroy such eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests, then the city or town is required to destroy the same, and the cost of the work, in whole or in part according to the value of the land, is assessed upon and becomes a lien on the land.

The Selectmen ask owners and tenants to co-operate with the town in its work on highways and other public grounds by doing effective work on their premises. Citizens who have cleared their premises of the moths, but find their trees endangered by the neglect of owners of adjoining estates should make complaint to the Selectmen. The infestation of a residential neighborhood by the neglect of a few will not be tolerated.

The eggs of the gypsy moth should be destroyed at once with creosote. They should never be scraped off the object on which they are laid. Careful search should be made for gypsy moth egg clusters, not only on trees, but also on house walls, stone walls, fences and in rubbish heaps, etc. Trees in which cavities occur and which it is not desirable to cut should have cavities tinned or cemented. This is important. The present and future cost of combating this insect can be greatly reduced by cutting and burning worthless brush, hollow trees, etc. A few trees well-cared for are more valuable to the property owner and the community than a large number of neglected trees.

The nests of the brown tail moth should be cut from the trees, carefully collected and burned in a stove or furnace.

Full instructions as to the best methods of work against the moths may be obtained from the Local Superintendent, or from the State Forester, Room 408, State House Boston, Mass.

Work done by contractors should be inspected and approved by Local Superintendent before payment for the same is made.

The Massachusetts Commission on Mental Diseases invites sealed proposals for grading about 950 feet of roadbed for a single spur track, from a point on the Central Vermont Railroad about 1700 feet northwest of Belchertown Station to a point in the grounds of the Belchertown State School.

Plans and specifications may be obtained at the office of R. Loring Hayward, 18 Crocker Building, Taunton, Mass., or at the office of Warren A. Merrill, Financial Agent of the Commission, Room 6, State House, Boston, Mass.

The work will consist of handling about 1100 cu. yds. of excavation; the construction of a 6 x 4 culvert with rubble masonry walls and reinforced concrete cover; and the construction of about 38 cu. yds. of rubble masonry retaining walls. An engineer will be on the grounds Friday, August 15, at 11.30 A. M. to show the location to prospective bidders.

Each bid must be upon the form provided by the Commission and must be accompanied by a certified check for $200 payable to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, these checks to be returned upon the execution of the contract. A security bond will be required. All bids must be plainly marked and should be left with the Financial Agent, Room 6, State House, Boston, Mass. on or before 12 noon, August 18, 1919, at which time all bids will be publicly opened and read. A Tribute to Holland

by Rev. P. W. Lyman
in Fall River Evening News

We have just passed the centenary of the birth of an American author of distinction. The anniversary was made the occasion of a celebration of the event in his native place, Belchertown, Mass. Essayist, poet, novelist, historian, editor, when he died he left more of his works on the book shelves of the American people than could be found there of any other American writer.

Dr. Holland's early nom-de-plume was Timothy Titeomb. Under that name he wrote for the Springfield Republican a series of essays on life's various phases. His "Letters to the Joneses," "Gold Foil" and other essays had wide currency and gave celebrity to their author. One of his early works was a two-volume work, "The History of Western Massachusetts." His poems, "Bitter Sweet" and "Kathrina" and "The Mistress of the Manse," should outlive his generation. Some of his novels were "The Bay Path," "The Story of Seven Oaks," "Arthur Bonycastle" and "Nicholas Minturn." "The Story of Seven Oaks" "The Observant Citizen" of the Boston Post characterized as one of the most delightful stories he had ever read. The tragedy of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln called forth many stories of that wonderful life. Among the others, Dr. Holland wrote a volume portraying that marvelous career. Of this we believe, something over 80,000 copies were sold. But Dr. Holland's great fame will rest on his editorship. He took an inconsequential monthly magazine, published by the Scribner firm, and made it Scribner's Monthly, which he placed alongside Harper's and the Atlantic. After he had accomplished this literary feat he gave up Scribner's and started The Century, as an entirely new venture, and made of it a great success, editing it till his death.

His early literary life was spent at his home, "Brightwood," in Springfield. But later he went to a residence in New York on Park avenue, where he was privileged to entertain first or last most of the literary men and women of his time.

The influence of Dr. Holland's works was healthy in moral tone and infused with a warm Christian spirit. The philosophy of life which is shot through his earlier essays, as in his "Lessons in Life," was salutary in a very high degree.

His poems may not give him a place with Longfellow, Lowell or Whittier, but he was much more than a poet. Essayist, novelist and editor, especially maker of great magazines which have a permanent place in American life, he made for himself a most worthy name among American men of letters. He used his pen for the glory of God and for the good of his fellowmen. A century has passed since he came to bless the home of the man whom he described with inimitable tenderness and grace as "Old Daniel Gray." In his coming multitudes of his countrymen were blessed.

Picnic at Forest Park

Arrangements are being made for the picnic at Forest park next Wednesday. This is not simply a church affair but something to which all the people of Belchertown are invited.

Cars will leave the church at 9 a. m. All the children will be provided for free of charge. Committees have been appointed for sports for people of all ages. "Come and have a good time" is the slogan.

Belchertown White-washes Enfield

The fans who attended the state grounds last Saturday afternoon were shown a gilt-edged game of base ball. Many a League game in Boston or New York would be tame in comparison with the game Belchertown played with Enfield. Not once in the nine innings did the Enfield delegation get a man across the plate, while Belchertown scored four runs.

Other games have been closer, but few have been more interesting. The pitching of Fairchild for Belchertown and Gage for Enfield was of a superb order. Only one error was marked against Belchertown, and three against their opponents.

League game stunts were indulged in, Fairchild nearly making a neat steal from third base.

Scoring began in the second inning. Taylor reached first by a pretty hit. McCain flied out. Taylor reached second by a passed ball, and advanced to third by a one base hit by Walker. Lemon struck out. Riley came up to bat, made a clean hit and Taylor and Walker crossed the plate. Then Fairchild faced the pitcher and likewise reached first. Hayes followed suit and was put out at second but not before Riley had scored.

The score stood 3 to 0 till the eighth inning when Belchertown added another score. McCann reached the first bag by a clean hit, stole second, and scored after two men were struck out, when Riley hit into right field. Riley was put out at second attempting to make two bags with a hit that had only one bag legally attached to it.

Enfield, the whole game through could get only seven men transported to first. Four men managed to reach second, and three had the courage to venture to third, but beyond third no one dared go. Twice it looked as though Enfield would surely send a man all the way around, once in the second inning when Avery was on second and Harwood on third with none out and a gain in the 8th when Jackson was on second and Avery was on third with one out, but the pitching of Fairchild held the men close by the bags.

Welcome Home Celebration

There will be a "welcome home" celebration for the returned soldiers of Belchertown on Monday, September 1.

The committee, consisting of F. D. Walker, Dr. J. L. Collard, G. E. Scott, Harry Sessions and John Hayes, have made arrangements for a mammoth clam bake in charge of a caterer from Springfield to be held on the common on that day.

This will be followed by a baseball game on the park between Enfield and Belchertown to decide the series of three games between the two teams, and in the evening there will be a concert and dance at the Park View, music to be furnished by the Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield.

The returned soldiers will be furnished free tickets to all the events. Money to defray part of the expenses will be available from the town treasury, thus making the town bear the burden or rather share the opportunity of a life time in welcoming home the men who represented it in the world conflict.

The public will be welcome at the events of the day and will pay only such a sum for the bake as the prospective attendance will seem to proportion the actual cost.

It was at first proposed that the "welcome home" celebration be held in connection with an old home day, but the wishes of the boys seemed to be to cut out the "glare" and have a good old time amongst the good home folks.

Morse Reunion

The Morse families held their reunion at the Advent camp ground in Palmer Wednesday. Between thirty and forty were present, people coming from the eastern part of the state and many from the surrounding towns. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: M. A. Morse, pres., Mrs. C. O. Buffington of Ware, vice-pres. and treasurer, Mrs. South of Monson, secretary. Committees were also chosen for a meeting place and entertainment next year.

Stewart-Shaw Reunion

The Stewart-Shaw reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Austin of Walnut street last Saturday. Thirty-four were present including people from Springfield, Westfield, Southbridge, Northampton, Ludlow, Enfield, and Prescott.

Officers chosen for the ensuing year were Mrs. F. E. Austin, president, Mrs. Raymond Austin of Springfield, secretary, and Mrs. Harry Austin of Northampton, treasurer.

It was voted to hold the reunion next year on August 21.

Dairymen's Meeting

The attention of Belchertown people is called to the field meeting of the dairymen of Hampshire county to be held at Mt. Hermon school next Wednesday, Aug. 27. The trip is to be made by auto, the party leaving the farm bureau office in Northampton at 9 o'clock on that day. There will be a basket lunch and ladies are especially invited.

Those who would like to take in the meeting and have no means of transportation are asked to communicate with Henry Witt.

Bennett Family Reunion

Again the Bennett Family reunion is an event of the past. About 55 Bennett friends and relatives gathered in Oak Grove at Ludlow Center, Wednesday, August 20, for the 26th annual reunion. Tables were set and dinner served at 12, after which the business meeting took place. There was no change in officers except secretary and treasurer. The literary program consisted of a bird talk by Bessie Graves of Southampton, songs by F. G. Shaw, stories by G. H. B. Green and J. M. Knight, a paper "Hidden Names" by Rosabelle Putnam and a prize speaking by Mrs. A. D. Moore, Mrs. Luella Deolittle and Mrs. H. F. Putnam, Mrs. Moore receiving the prize.

Sports consisted of an apple peeling contest, a young men's button sewing contest, a young ladies' nail

A letter has been received from Mrs. Emily A. Bruce, telling of conditions in Montana. We have read of the drought and fires in the west. She writes that all their early vegetables are blasted, and that it is a great loss as they do not have much meat and depend on canned vegetables. The heat has been almost unbearable. Then came the prairie fires and the air was full of smoke. Her son went to help put it out. It came within a mile of them but the wind turned and they were saved. The last of the letter they had had two days of rain and hoped they could still grow late vegetables. The drought extends all over the state, in some places worse than others. Cattle are starving.—Mrs. Bruce is confined to her bed. Ashley Randall, who sold his farm in Blue Meadow last spring, has bought a farm in Granby. Mrs. Rose Coffin returned Tuesday from a visit with her sister in the west. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Aspengren left yesterday for an auto trip to Maine. Caustic

There are some roads in Belchertown That need repairing still: There's one that leaves the Amherst road. And leads to Packardville. And as one nears the Pelham line The road's unsafe to travel. The man in charge should dig the rocks And put on loads of gravel. The man in charge of Pelham roads On hill, or in a hollow Could give our learned men some points They would do well to follow. On hills he makes the ditches low To carry off the water. The level roads are smooth enough To gratify a trotter. Now let me tell my townsmen all And one our superintendent, It's cheaper far to fix this road Than in lawsuits be defendant. Just see that road right in our town That leads to the hotel! So rough it hurts the landlord's "biz" That's why he wants to sell. On hills no waterbars are made To irrigate the ditches. The roadbed is the channel now As found on steepest pitches. Today a plow is little used, Depending on the scraper. On hardest spots the dust spread on Is almost thin as paper. We learn that there are thousands, six, To spend on our highways And if that sum is wisely used Our roads should meet with praise. This last I write, fearing their fate, If profanity is a crime Some men, who ride on our town roads Are condemned for all time. Guy O. Allen

Depot hill was the scene of another auto accident Tuesday, when a limousine containing some ladies from Holyoke, got out of control and overturned on the bank near F. B. Shaw's residence. One of the ladies was cut by the breaking of a pane of glass which was the only injury to the car.

Community Picnic

Belchertown people captured Forest Park, Springfield, Wednesday morning at about 11 o'clock. Several trucks and autos carrying upwards of 150 people, rolled on to the grounds and took in everything in sight.

The natives were completely submerged and soon realizing their minority, made themselves scarce. Only those who could at some time claim a residence here dared invade "Belchertown" avenue.

The Belchertownites, some young and giddy and some old and hilarious, squinted through the iron bars to view the monkeys and the bears and were equally edified. They admired the flowers and the gardens and gazed with wistful eyes on the wading pool, the water in which, sad to relate, was being gradually replenished by sprinkles from the skies which at the hour of starting were fair and bright.

The crowd, however, took the situation philosophically and promptly at 12 o'clock went "under the top" at the grandstand for the shining event of the day, the picnic dinner, which they could not be denied.

Death of Miss Armenia Munsell

Miss Armenia M. Munsell, who sustained a shock Saturday afternoon, died Thursday morning at 4 o'clock at the home of her brother, Emory Munsell. She was born in Three Rivers, Aug. 7, 1837, but moved while very young, with her parents, Reddington and Rebecca Munsell, to Great Hill where she lived for many years. Since the breaking up of the home there she has lived on Turkey Hill and in the village.

She was one of a family of four; one brother, Emory survives her, also two nieces, Mrs. J. W. Harburt of this town and Mrs. Chas. Newcomb of Northampton, and two nephews, Charles Munsell of Orange and Geo. Blair of Mittineague.

Prayers will be held at the house at 12.15 p. m. Saturday with funeral in the chapel at 1 o'clock. Rev. H. P. Rankin will officiate and burial will be in South cemetery.

Back to School

School opens the door of opportunity. Every boy and girl should enter this door. If you have graduated from the 8th grade, go to High school. If you have not completed High school, return and graduate. Think of the future. School training in youth leads to success in the future, higher wages, better health and happier lives. Inefficient schooling and early employment often leads to poor jobs and low wages, unemployment, sickness and crime. Children's Bureau, U. S. Dept. of Labor.

Home From France

The last Belchertown boy to return from overseas is John W. Jackson, Jr., who arrived in town Monday evening after nearly two years' service in the army, eighteen months of which was spent overseas.

Mr. Jackson went to Camp Devens September 21, 1917, with the first party of young men to go from this town, and was a member of the 5th Training Battalion. In February he went to Camp Upton, being transferred to Co. H., 308th Infantry, 77th Division; sailing from Hoboken March 18, 1918 for Liverpool. After a short stay in England he sailed from Dover and landed in Calais, France. This Division was the first National Army Division to reach France.

His outfit went into the lines with the British near Mt. Carmel, in Northern France, May 17. They were there until June 16 when they went down to the American Sector.

The last of June they were at the Alsace Front where Jackson was gassed, being cared for at a French hospital. He returned to his outfit in time to take part in the Moran offensive the middle of July. The first part of August he was at the Vesle front where he received machine gun wounds.

At Fismes he was gassed a second time. This necessitated his being taken to base hospital No. 7 at Tours, where he was for three weeks. There he was classified and put in Class C, and transferred to the Postal Express Service as a dispatch carrier, being stationed at General Headquarters in Chaumont. He was there until the 19th of July when he went to Brest, sailing from there on the 27th on the U. S. S. Wilhelmina, arriving in New York August 6. He went to Camp Merritt, being there a week, then going to Camp Devens, receiving his discharge on August 25.

Mr. Jackson had the privilege of visiting several countries, England, France, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland and Italy, and brought home several souvenirs of his travels.

Welcome Home Celebration

The committee appointed by the townspeople for the Welcome Home celebration is doing everything in its power to make the events of next Monday a success. Invitations have been sent to all the Belchertown boys who are or have been in the service to attend the celebration which will begin with a parade at 10 a. m. This will be made up of decorated automobiles and other vehicles, floats, etc., which the public may care to enter. Eugene F. Flaherty will be chief marshal and an effort is being made to get a drum corps or band for the occasion.

The veterans are asked to meet at the engine house hall at 9.30 where transportation will be provided.

The bake will be served on the park and will begin at 1.30. The Woman's Relief Corps, Red Cross and Community Club, in conjunction with H. F. Peck will supervise the dinner, tickets for which are selling fast. As many people from out of town are buying up tickets it is desired that our townspeople secure theirs before Saturday at 1 p. m. so that they may not be left out. The committee have only a certain number of tickets to sell.

There will be a ball game on the common at 3.30 between Belchertown and Enfield, the fourth in a series of five games. Enfield has won two and Belchertown one.

In the evening there will be a concert and dance in Park View Hall with music by the Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield.

The dance committee consists of Walter McKillop, chairman; Edward G. Sargent, treasurer; Roy G. Shaw, floor director; H. F. Shaw, F. F. Dwyer, E. F. Flaherty, aids.

The citizens in the center are asked to decorate their stores and residences and do all in their power to make the celebration a right royal welcome home.

Reunions

August is a month of reunions. All over the country families are gathering together to renew old-time associations.

The age in which we live seems to swarm with meetings and clubs and organizations and one finds it difficult to get time amid them all to give proper attention to one's vocation in life.

In the mind of the writer the gatherings for family reunions are very important engagements and should not be omitted by the busiest among us.

The value of these reunions depends upon the number observing the day. If only ten per cent come together, relatives will soon come to be strangers.

The trouble in these busy days in the home is that we do not take the time to get acquainted with one another.

None are so dear to us as these in the immediate family circle. Be-

The Nature Lover

As wise men count it, I am a fool, Dull, unlearned, useless in a school Or laboratory. In mathematics, though I pore for days O'er Euclid's problems, yet they phase Me entirely.

I can not tell, after the book is shut, Whether an angle was right, oblique, or what It was.

In science, the same; I have been told, Time and again, what makes the buds unfold And blossom,

Why the tide comes in, and then goes out again, And how my mind works to drive the pen Over this page—I have forgotten now.

But credit me with this; I am not like the man Who, slavish tool of dollars, can only plan To gain in gold;

Who walks along, his eye upon the ground; Whose only joy is when he's found Another way to fortune.

At least, I note the beauties of the world; The countless glories, daily unfurled, Like some great flag.

I know when skies are clear, when days are bright; I see the brilliant stars at night Shine on the earth.

I love the ocean's grandeur, the streamlet's gleam, For me, there is more radiance in each white moonbeam

When roads are muddy. Despite my ignorance of the wherefore and the why, I can not miss the spot where finny monsters lie Deep in the brook.

Though pedants hunt in vain the deer, I find the spot where, without fear, They graze and sleep.

So, when book-taught teachers look my way and smile, And sneer if I uphold my style Of living,

Why, then I can betake me to the wood, Whisper to the pines that God is good And forgiving.—I have not forgotten how!

Old Home Day Poem

We print herewith, by request, a poem by Guy C. Allen, our veteran auctioneer, who wrote the same for the Old Home Day celebration in Prescott last Friday.

Town of my birth, firm seated 'midst the hills, Long since removed, yet still my bosom thrills At thought. These scenes familiar to you, here, Were once familiar to my kindred dear.

Here nature's charm abundant harvest yields In brooks and hills and cultivated fields. The brooks flow onward to the ocean's shore, The rock-ribbed hills withstand the thunder's roar,

The fields still feel the cultivator's hand, That helps to feed the people of the land. Men in professions, be they far or near, With love and pride, acclaim their birthplace here.

And others too, perhaps of less renown, Whose lives do honor to their native town.

It's here our fathers worked this stubborn soil With wives to counsel and to aid in toil, Here children reared, and taught, to us appears, To learn when young, what they would use in years.

Though few in numbers, yet in strength they sought To build a church; without it all was naught. To them a town, without religious teaching Was like a shipwreck, on the rocks left bleaching.

Those granite steps my parent's feet have trod, Entered those doors, into the courts of God. Beneath the roof, did angels join the sight? They held their babes for th' baptismal rite.

That group of ten, but one remains to mourn; The rest asleep in undiscovered bourn.

In time of Shay, this town was Pelham East, And men from here partook of Conkey's feast. The word "Rebellion" passed from lip to lip, As by the open fire they drank their flip.

A moment pause; let us in kindness say, Those men had wrongs to right, who joined with Shay. Excessive tax was laid on every home, Nothing but script, and new its value gone.

Men of today, what course would you pursue? No money here and taxes overdue, And counties west as badly off as you.

Payment refused, what reason could you give, Save you and yours should have the right to live? The sheriff's writs were served on debtors poor, Of claims unpaid, were driven from their door.

A feature worse, if, should a payment fail, The poor, though honest, could be lodged in jail. More than two thousand left their homes and farms And marched to Springfield to secure their arms.

They were defeated as the records show, The men disbanding as they homeward go. Was the cause lost? Was this revolt in vain? Did not the people's cause more numbers gain?

A sense of injustice throughout the state Led many to fear a second outbreak. The General Court, well knowing its cause, Convened, and enacted more humane laws, One was expunged, to the Shylock's regret And the poor were no longer jailed for debt.

Another name on my historic pea, A share is yours, this all was Pelham then. It's Stephen Burroughs, who when here could join Preacher, and maker of counterfeit coin.

He came like a wolf in a lamb's disguise, Read his Pa's sermons with his sinful eyes, Went to a town for the alchemist's stone: May the Lord in mercy his sins atone.

His ride to Palmer past Priest Forward's place Brought out his true name, brought on his disgrace, Was driven from town ere he could do harm, His last sermon preached in the loft of a barn.

When I worked for my brother, Reverend Bancroft was here then, His life his best sermon, "known and read of all men." By loving the people, the people's love won.

Thou good faithful servant, thy work was well done, The choir in the gallery, "Coronation" would sing. Charles Hodgkins to aid with his violin, In voices triumphant, repeating the call, "Bring forth the royal diadem, and crown Him Lord of all."

In youthful days I walked your tidy street. Few, few are living that I used to greet On Saturday nights, went to Hodgkin's store, Where the farmers would meet, a score or more.

They would talk of their crops and the price they bring, Deplore the weather or its praises sing. While some spun their yarns as though to deceive, We listened and laughed, but did not believe.

One told that his hens were laying right well, Last week he had fifty dozen to sell. Another sold pigs five weeks in the pen, At six dollars each, 'twas a big price then.

They bragged 'bout their cows, their milk in pounds' weight, The best one, I think, gave just eighty-eight.

Where are those men and their honored wives! Where? In the city of graves, you will find them there. They peacefully rest in their final sleep, While the angels, above their vigils keep.

Notice to Property Owners

You are hereby required on or before October 1, 1919, to destroy the gypsy and brown tail moths on your property in this town.

This notification is in accordance with Chapter 381, Acts of 1905, as amended by Chapter 268, Acts of 1906, which requires cities and towns to destroy the eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests of the gypsy and brown tail moths under heavy penalty for failure to comply with the provisions of the law.

If a property owner fails to destroy such eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests, then the city or town is required to destroy the same, and the cost of the work, in whole or in part according to the value of the land, is assessed upon and becomes a lien on the land.

The Selectmen ask owners and tenants to co-operate with the town in its work on highways and other public grounds by doing effective work on their premises. Citizens who have cleared their premises of the moths, but find their trees endangered by the neglect of owners of adjoining estates should make complaint to the Selectmen.

The eggs of the gypsy moth should be destroyed at once with creosote. They should never be scraped off the object on which they are laid. Careful search should be made for gypsy moth egg clusters, not only on trees, but also on house walls, stone walls, fences and in rubbish heaps, etc. Trees in which cavities occur and which it is not desirable to cut should have cavities tinned or cemented.

The nests of the brown tail moth should be cut from the trees, carefully collected and burned in a stove or furnace.

Full instructions as to the best methods of work against the moths may be obtained from the Local Superintendent, or from the State Forester, Room 408, State House Boston, Mass.

Work done by contractors should be inspected and approved by Local Superintendent before payment for the same is made.

After the repast, typical of the day, the crowd drizzled here and drizzled there and finally drizzled home, not as downcast as one might think, for a picnic you know, a real picnic, doesn't always depend on the weather.

The Welcome Home Celebration

Belchertown paid its debt, or at least part of its debt, to its returned soldiers on Monday last. The parade, clam bake, ball game, concert and dance presented a varied program of events and few there must have been who were not satisfied with some one of them. Anyway if the boys were pleased, that was sufficient, for it was in their honor the celebration was held. All the other people attending were in reality hosts and not guests.

The town was decorated for the occasion with flags and bunting, and signs with the word "welcome home" were hung across the streets as one entered the center. The honor board was also artistically decorated with flowers and flags.

Shortly after ten o'clock the Lafayette drum corps of Holyoke struck up some popular airs at the south end of the park and the festivities were on. After a few numbers, the corps, headed by Marshal Eugene F. Flaherty, marched to the school house whence they escorted the veterans of the world war to their place at the head of the parade, the line of which had already been formed around the common. Immediately in the rear of the marching soldiers were two cars containing Civil war veterans and town officials.

Then came the decorated automobiles, one quite elaborately trimmed, owned by J. F. Robinson, one neatly decorated, entered by J. C. Hawes, and three cars owned by E. A. Fuller, the first a touring car, the second a grocery exhibit and the third, a truck load of grain. These were followed by several privately-owned automobiles. The line circled the park twice, the young veterans receiving considerable applause as they passed.

After the parade a game of ball was played at the north end of the park between a team composed of members of the drum corps and a team of local boys. The game resulted in a victory for the home team.

By the time the game was over, it was nearly 1.30, the hour for the bake, which was being prepared near the town house by Mr. Mahan of Ware, who had been laboring good and hard since early morning to get these two banks of steaming claims, lobsters, potatoes and corn ready for the waiting crowd. Not far from the hour determined they were ready and the men waiters, clad in white frocks, transported the "welcome" dishes to the people at the tables on the park which had been put in order by the ladies' organizations of the town. So while the band played in the grand stand, the Civil war veterans at one table, the world war veterans at another

Welcome Home Address

E. E. SARGENT
Men and women of Belchertown, we have gathered here today to honor these young men who did their part in winning the great world war. I wish to call to their attention the fact that while they were performing their task in camp and field, we people at home were also doing our duty.

As I look into the faces of the men and women present here today, it brings forcibly to my mind the sacrifices they have made, not only in depriving themselves of the luxuries of life, but of the very necessities, so that you men might have what you required.

I wish I might have had the time and privilege of telling you the wonderful results accomplished by the women of this town—work performed by the ladies of the Woman's Relief corps, the Red Cross, the Community Club and other kindred organizations who gave not only of their money, but of their time, their labor, their brain and their energy; to call to your mind, that on every war time campaign and drive for funds and contributions we many times doubled and trebled the amount called for and on every occasion went over the top.

Two years ago we heard much of the proposed building of a bridge of ships across the broad Atlantic, a project that was hailed by the nations of the earth as an impossibility, a mere dream, a flight of the imagination; they could not realize that the giant had awakened and that the peace loving peoples of the United States were about to accomplish the greatest feat in the military history of the world, compared with which the accomplishments of Napoleon—heretofore recognized as the world's greatest military genius—even his successful crossing of the Alps and his unsuccessful expedition into Russia—were as mere child's play. In a comparatively few months, however, the seeming impossibility was accomplished, and more than two million of our men were landed in France, fully armed and equipped, which resulted in the defeat of the Hun and the winning of the war.

Honorably Released

One of our citizens has received a letter from the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations, which contains an estimate of the work of Rev. E. P. Kelly, who has recently been released from the department of books and periodicals of that organization. The head of that department says:

"In releasing Mr. Kelly from service in the Department of Books and Periodicals, I take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation of his work. Mr. Kelly has rendered faithful and conscientious service in performing whatever tasks were assigned him. He was uniformly courteous, kind in his demeanor and well liked by all his associates."

In war we have learned the lessons that have prepared us for

A Message to the Boys and Girls

We hope we speak every week to boys and girls. The message is always for them fully as much as it is for men and women. But this week, as we write this editorial, we have in mind only the boys and girls who are in September beginning or continuing their studies in Belchertown schools. Will you listen to a bit of advice from us?

Remember that each day of the school year is important. We predict that not a single one of you will fail in your studies if each day you do an honest day's work. Failure comes by working half time or by being listless or by wasting the hours. A proper amount of hard work on each day's lessons is sure to win for you success. You will lose fear for tests and examinations if you get each day's lessons well.

Remember that your teachers are your best friends outside the home circle. Sometimes we get it into our heads that our teachers are interested only that we study hard and to see to it that we are punished for every little wrong we do, and we come to fear them rather than to love them.

Now get this notion out of your head. For your teachers are those who are trying to do their very best for you. Your teachers will always be glad to help you in every way that they can. Your teachers have been selected with great care. The community has placed them as your teachers for the very purpose of giving you as much help as possible.
Be sure to call upon them to solve any problem however little it may seem to you.

We shall be very proud of you if at the end of the school year you can say you have remembered these two bits of advice. R.

table and the civilians at the other tables, revel in the luxuries of the hour and appreciated, may be, the blessings of peace. In all, three hundred and fifty people partook of the bounteous feast. By invitation of the committee, as the veterans of the world war were finishing their repast, Edgar E. Sargent, who has been a friend to the boys in more ways than one, gave a few appropriate remarks after which he proposed three cheers for the "old boys of '61", three for the "boys who beat the Hun to a frazzle" and three for the "good old town of Belchertown."

The ball game between Enfield and Belchertown then attracted attention and drew a large crowd to the north end of the park where an exciting game was served with all the "fixings." Belchertown labored hard but was defeated 10 to 7.

In the evening the concert and dance proved a popular feature, the music by the Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield being especially pleasing. The dance completed the day's festivities which demanded considerable forethought and energy on the part of the committee, but of which it seemed very capable, and were gladly given to help perform a duty which Belchertown people have been anxious to perform.

If we have learned from war lessons that will help us live better in times of peace, if we have learned that men should work shoulder to shoulder in any cause they wish to promote, if we have learned to make this world, including our own town, a better place in which to live, then indeed, the war has not been fought in vain. Veterans of the great World War, we people of Belchertown desire to extend to you our kindly greeting and a hearty welcome home, and wish to express our thanks and gratitude for the honor you have conferred on our town by the service which you rendered the nation. You will agree with me when I say that your efforts have been appreciated by your fellow townsmen and by the great Commonwealth of Massachusetts. You will agree with me that no other country on the face of God's footstool, has ever so well provided for its soldiers as has the United States government. You will agree with me when I state that your services will never be forgotten,—and, lest we forget,—let me remind you, that we have with us today, the veterans of the Civil war, those men who fought to preserve the Union, and who primarily made it possible for us as a nation to serve the world, the veterans old and gray, a mere remnant of the G. A. R., for whom, and for you there is a great big warm spot in the hearts of the people in this community.

Seventy Years Ago

Ed. Note—This concludes the series of articles entitled, "Seventy Years Ago," which have been running for several years in the Sentinel. They have been full of human interest and in years to come will be of historical value. Many of our readers have expressed to us their appreciation of Mrs. Hazen's vivid reminiscences of the olden days.

As we pass on up the Pelham road we soon come to the Eddy Shumway place. There were two sons, John who married Mary Holland, and Charles who married Mary Pratt. Miss Pratt lived some where near the Enfield road in a place that is not there, now. The Shumways had a saw mill and one spring Luther Holland's little boy and the children were gathering sap and this little boy crossed a stream on a log they used as a bridge. He fell off and was drowned. It was a sad blow to the Holland family. There were a number of girls but only one boy.

There were a number of children at John Shumway's. I can see Mr. Shumway as he stepped out of the side seats at church where there was a post, in his arms a baby in a long white dress to present for baptism. One boy was William and came down to the center to school. He was a tall lad and they tell me this family was the first to follow the advice of Horace Greeley which was, "Go west, young man." From time to time we get a letter in the Sentinel from Mr. Abby who tells us something of the country. We would like to know more, about the trees and shrubs natural to that state.

Samuel McCoy later lived at this place. His wife was sister to Mary Pratt. All these people have long been gone. The saw mill is gone. We go on till we reach the Pratts. They own a large saw mill and it is still there. Almen Pratt is one of the fathers of the town. Years ago his admirers sent him as Representative to Boston. I think in early years Belchertown sent a representative every year. Now it is divided into districts and few men are chosen.

The road to Pelham is all the Culling Demonstration

Quite a company of local poultry men attended the culling demonstration at W. F. Nichols's last Friday morning. The demonstration was held under the auspices of the Farm Bureau and was in charge of county agent A. F. MacDougall, who introduced Prof. Banta of M. A. C. as the demonstrator.

Prof. Banta explained very fully the qualities possessed by a laying hen and pointed out the characteristics of good and poor layers on contrasting fowls which he had selected from Mr. Nichols's pens. He went into minute details and also answered questions put to him by the poultry men. Some of the questions brought out interesting side lights on the profitable keeping of poultry. Prof. Banta was quite enthusiastic over lighting hen houses by electricity, stating that for the last three years he had personally tried it and with good results. He said that whereas a hen under those conditions would only lay about a dozen eggs more per year, the eggs would be laid at a time in the year when they would bring the most money. Prof. Banta advocated thirteen hours of daylight and artificial light combined.

After his talk, which was principally on culling, he culled from Mr. Nichols's flock the poorer layers, in many cases stating the reasons as he did so, that those present might get pointers regarding it. Prof. Banta had the art of culling down to such a science that he could with a fair measure of accuracy tell what a hen's egg record had been. This might not develop that the hen would maintain its record, but was a good indication of what it might do.

Prof. Banta stated that this was the season of the year when culling should be practised in order to determine what hens would be practical to keep over the winter. He said that as long as a hen had the marks of being a good layer, it was practical to keep her, no matter how old she was.

For the benefit of those unable to be present at the demonstration we pass along the following points which were the substance of Prof. Banta's remarks:

"In order to lay well, a bird must have a sound body. As a first con-

Millinery Class

Attention is called to the Millinery class of the Home Economics branch which will hold an all-day session in the chapel, Tuesday, Sept. 23, commencing at 9.30 a. m. The class is not yet quite complete, therefore new members will be accepted until the limit of fifteen is reached.

Pomona Grange

Pomona grange held its monthly meeting in town last Thursday, about seventy-five attending the exercises which began in the morning with a discussion on the high cost of living, in which Frank Williams, Chester Warner, Mr. Scott and G. H. B. Green took part. Mrs. Williams of Sunderland and Mrs. Shaw of Amherst road from the morning's papers extracts relative to the subject.

Union Grange furnished music for the afternoon session. The young ladies' quartet rendered several selections and Miss Cook sang two solos. A large part of the session was taken up with folk dances by Misses Helen Dudley, Leona Leclair and Carmella Leclair, three young ladies of the public schools of Amherst, to demonstrate what is being done in the schools there.

The dances were as follows: Tiger Rose, Pipes of Pan, Tambourine, Irish Jig, Ox Dance, Three Step, Army and Navy quick step, Jumping Jack, Minuet, and Kamarinskia. These were given in costume.

The speaker of the afternoon was Prof. Watts of M. A. C., who spoke on the service of the Agricultural college to the state.

State Road

Men and teams are at work on the state road between Belchertown and Enfield. Work was begun at a point where it was suspended a few years ago. E. C. Witt is in charge.

Spur Track

Wm. Orlando and Chas. Austin have a force of men and teams at work grading for the spur track to be laid to the state school grounds. The contract calls for completion this month.

Convictions

The world is always in need of men of convictions. Most of us have notions or fancies or opinions or views, but few of us have deep-seated convictions. And convictions are altogether of a different texture. Most of us have prejudices and many of us are stubborn; few of us have strong convictions. And convictions are of a different fiber than these.

One has rightly said that a conviction is "an idea that has crystallized, becoming so hard that the sun cannot melt it or the rain wash it away." Convictions are not formed in a single night. We get a fancy in a moment and it quickly vanishes. We may hold to a view a longer period of time, but we change our views frequently. It takes a longer time to form opinions, but they are not as deep-seated as convictions. Convictions are a long time in the making and do not depend upon the last newspaper we read or the last person we have conversation with.

Convictions are a part of our very lives. A man can overthrow a notion very readily, because it has little grip on him; he cannot so easily part with his convictions.

Conviction comes to us after a deal of hard thinking and meditation. The matter about which we have convictions, we have thought about from every angle. We have considered it in all its aspects, thought of all the objections, weighed all the arguments, and as a result have come to certain conclusions which are unshakable. Such a man is not driven by every wind that blows.

A man should often ask himself what convictions he really holds and whether the convictions are worth while.

The Special Two-year Courses

Relative to the special two-year short courses at M. A. C., about which the college has written the local grange, we quote further from their letter:

"Tuition is free to residents of the Commonwealth. Students who are not residents of Massachusetts pay a fee of $20.00 a term. Board may be obtained at the college dining hall for approximately $6.00 a week. There are small laboratory fees in connection with some of the subjects.

"The advantages of the college staff of specialists and the college plant with all its resources, are thus made available to young men and women who may not have had the opportunity of securing a high school education.

"This course will appeal not only to young men and women but also to men and women of mature years and practical experience who wish to know more about the business of farming. The instruction is not preparatory or elementary in its nature but is so arranged that it will be of practical value to all. The course begins September 24th and closes March 19th for the first year. The second year consists of nine months' study at the college. Students who have not had practical farm experience are required to work on a farm for six months before entering the second year. This experience may be had on the home farm.

"For further information write to John Phelan, Director of Short Courses, Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass."

sideration, a bird must be vigorous and healthy if it is to be able to lay well. Vigor and health are shown by a bright, clear eye, a well set body, a comparatively active disposition and a good circulation.

"Further, the bird must be free from physical defects, such as crooked beak, excessively long toe nails, eyelids that overhang so that the bird cannot see well, scaly leg, or anything else that would keep the bird from seeing or getting an abundance of food.

"A laying fowl uses up the surplus fat in the body, especially it removes the fat from the skin. In yellow-skinned breeds this loss of fat can readily be seen by the loss of yellow color. The different parts of the body tend to become white, according to the amount of fat stored in the body and the amount of circulation of blood through that part. The changes occur in the following order:

"The vent changes very quickly with egg production so that a white or pink vent on a yellow-skinned bird generally means that the bird is laying, while a yellow vent means a bird is not laying. It should be recognized that all yellow color changes are dependent on the feed, coarseness of skin and size of bird. A heavy bird fed on an abundance of green feed or other material that will color the fat deep yellow will not bleach out nearly as quickly as a smaller or paler colored bird.

"The eyering, that is, the inner edges of the eyelids, bleach out a trifle slower than the vent. The carlobes on Leghorns and Anconas bleach out a little slower than the eyering, so that a bleached carlobe means a little longer or greater production than a bleached vent or eyelid.

"The color goes out of the beak beginning at the base and gradually disappears until it finally leaves the front part of the upper beak. The lower beak bleaches faster than the upper, but may be used where the upper is obscured by horn or black. On the average colored, yellow-skinned bird, a bleached beak means heavy production for at least the past four to six weeks.

"The shanks are the slowest to bleach out and hence indicate a much longer period of production than the other parts. The yellow goes out from the scales on the front of the shanks first and finally from the scales on the rear. The scales on the heel of the shank are the last to bleach out and may generally be used as an index as to the natural depth of yellow color of the bird. A bleached-out shank usually indicates fairly heavy production for at least fifteen to twenty weeks.

"The yellow color comes back into the vent, eyering, carlobes, beak and shanks in the same order that it went out, only the color returns much more quickly than it goes out. A vacation or rest period can sometimes be determined by the outer end of the beak being bleached and the base being yellow.

"A laying hen has a large, moist vent showing a dilated condition and looseness as compared with the hard, puckered vent of a non-laying hen.

"The whole abdomen is dilated, as well as the vent, so that the pelvic arches are wide-spread and the keel is forced down away from the pelvic arches so as to give large capacity. The more eggs a bird is going to lay the following week, the greater will be the size of the abdomen. The actual size of the abdomen is, of course, influenced by the size of eggs laid and by the size of the bird.

"Heavy production is shown by the quality of the skin and the thickness and stiffness of the pelvic arches. Fat goes out from the skin and body with production so that the heavy producers have a soft, velvety skin that is not underlain by layers of hard fat. The abdomen, in particular, is soft and pliable. The sternal processes are very prominent and are generally bent outward. The thicker and blunter the pelvic arches and the greater the amount of hard fat in the abdomen, the less the production, or the longer the time since production.

"One of the finer indications, but yet one of the most valuable, in picking the high layer is the fineness of the head and the closeness and dryness of the feathering. The head of a high layer is fine. The wattles and carlobes fit close to the beak and are not loose and flabby. The face is clean-out. The eye is full, round and prominent, especially when seen from the front. The high layer is trimmer, that is, the feathers lie closer to the body, and after heavy production, the oil does not keep the plumage relatively as sleek and glossy, but the plumage becomes worn and threadbare.

"The comb, wattles and carlobes enlarge or contract, depending on the ovary. If the comb, wattles and carlobes are large, full and smooth, or hard and waxy, the bird is laying heavily. If the comb is limp, the bird is only laying slightly, but is not laying at all when the comb is dried down, especially at molting time. If the comb is warm, it is an indication that the bird is coming back into production.

"When a hen stops laying in the summer, she usually starts molting. The later a hen lays in summer or the longer the period over which she lays, the greater will be her production, so that the high producer is the late layer and hence the late molder. The length of time that a hen has been molting or has stopped laying can be determined by the molting of the primary feathers. It takes about six weeks to completely renew the primary feathers next to the axial feathers and an additional two weeks for each subsequent primary to be renewed.

"A good layer is more active and nervous and yet more easily handled than a poor layer. A high layer shows more friendliness and yet e-lusiveness than a poor bird. A low producer is shy and stays on the edge of the flock and will squawk when caught.

"While the characters discussed have dealt with the current year's production, it should be borne in mind that a high producer one year is, generally speaking, a high producer in all other years."

way up hill but it is more so if we go up on to Great Hill. We pass a school house which is not in use now. The bushes and small trees reach the eaves. On we go till we reach the Henry Paine place which was formerly the home of Joel Winter. He raised two sons. One became Mayor of Springfield and both were prominent real estate men.

There are many large houses on Great Hill. This may be West Hill but there is East Hill which you find by taking a road near G. C. Allen's. The first place was Jacket's, a very strong man, could lift a barrel of cider. "Jess so, jess so." On the top lived Mr. Shaw and sons, twins. They always came to town on Town Meeting day leaving their horse at home. Other days they drove it whenever they came. They stayed all day at town meeting and learned how best to run the same as they held town office later.

There was a Ward family and farther on a Brown family. There were a number of girls and one son, Charles, who was salesman for Allen Brothers on Phoenix Row, Amherst. This was a nice store and many of our townspeople went there to trade. But we are lost in the wilds of Great Hill.

Alfred Ward lived on the Pelham road. There was a large family of boys, David, Colquit, Myron and Harry. There were houses all the way to Pelham which bids fair to become a very important place, many rich people choosing it for a home. Indeed it has not been without people of note. It was the home of Wells Southworth and you may like to know who Wells Southworth was. Well, he was a descendant of Gov. Bradford's second wife, Alice Southworth. The first Mrs. Bradford

Bradford was alone on the bleak shores of New England and he wrote his former best friend, whom her parents thought too good for Bradford, and explained how the Pilgrims were situated and asked if she would come in the next ship and be Mrs. Bradford. The ship came but Mrs. Southworth was the last to reach the deck. They were married and there are many descendants of the Bradford's scattered over New England. Wells Southworth became a rich, influential man of New Haven and a great philanthropist, was president of a bank.

Well, it is not strange I didn't know all the people in a town that is fourteen miles long and six miles wide. We have had many smart men and women that have called Belchertown "home". Sen. Foster, U. S., and his brother, E. W. Foster, were born in Belchertown. E. W. Foster is still living in California. Their father built the brick store on the corner of the common and they also lived on Depot street. Senator M. A. Morse was born somewhere below Merrill Williams'. They say the house is not there. Of Senator G. H. B. Green I know little of his youth. I have not mentioned all the people, neither have I tried to.

I think I will close this with Rev. C. H. Smith's poem at the Old Home week celebration, and I would add to "That the Belchertown hills, with its rocks and rills,

Is the land that raises men,"
the words, "and women, too."

Men talk of their gems and jewels,
Their treasures and works of art;
They laud the life of the city,
Its temples and busy marts.
They boast of their wealth and honors

Till the echoes sound again,
But the Belchertown hills with their rocks and rills
Is the land that raises men.

Preserving Fruits Without Sugar

Printed at the request of Miss Helen A. Harriman, Home Demonstration Agent of the Hampshire Co. Farm Bureau.

The present sugar shortage is very seriously influencing the canning of fruits in the home and the sale of fruits on the farm. The situation is an emergency one. The recent rains have ripened the fruit crop very fast and have made it imperative that fruit be used as soon and as quickly as possible.

Professor W. W. Chenoweth, head of the department of horticultural manufactures, recommends the following methods of preserving without sugar:

"In canning fruits a liquid is necessary. Generally this liquid is a sugar syrup and its use has become so common that many housewives labor under the delusion that sugar syrup is absolutely necessary in canning fruit. It is the thorough sterilization and the perfect seal of the jar which keeps the fruit. The sugar is not an important factor in the keeping of canned fruit.

"Fruit may be canned in water, fruit juice or sugar syrup. All fruits intended for cooking purposes should be canned in water or in fruit juice when sugar is scarce or high in price. The sugar can be added at the time of using the fruit without loss of flavor or quality. If the fruit is plentiful or cheap, juice may be extracted by cooking the culls in a small quantity of water, squeezing out the juice and using it instead of water. This will give a richer and sweeter product.

"While the sugar shortage is merely temporary, it is probable that it will extend through the peach canning season. There is ample sugar in Cuba, but recent storms at sea which have interrupted transportation, together with the strike of longshoremen, have made it impossible to supply Massachusetts with adequate quantities.

"Apples should be canned in water instead of syrup. Extract the juice as for jellies, concentrate about one-half and can in the same way as the fruit. Make into butter, stopping the cooking process before the (continued on page 4)

A Warning to America

Rev. C. G. Burnham, in his sermon last Sunday from the text, "Beware lest thou forget the Lord thy God", made such strong applications to the crucial times through which this country is passing, that we print herewith a part of what he had to say.

The warning of the text was spoken to a whole people as they were developing into national life. Let us note the possibility of a nation's forgetfulness of God.

We recall the predominance of religious principles and influences in the people who founded this nation. The colonies which became united in the original states of this union were Christian communities. Some of them sought to govern themselves much after the pattern of the Jewish commonwealth. God was recognized. The church was fostered by the state. We call ourselves a Christian nation. We think we were led to inherit this western land under the same guiding that led Israel from captivity to Canaan. Like Israel in the day of small things we trusted in God. Like Israel shall we forget God in this day of our increased greatness and power and wealth? Of Jeshurun when the people waxed fat it was said, "Of the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful, and hast forgotten God that formed thee." Shall it be said of this people that in our prosperity we forget our Christian principle, and turn from the leadership of divine providence to the unsafe leadership of ambition and lust of power?

A nation may acquire the warlike spirit. A passion for military power and dominion may sweep over a people and they beat their pruning hooks into spears and turn their vast energies into preparation for war and become a terrible menace to the peace of the world. We have had illustration of this forgetfulness of God and it should warn us as a nation against a like disloyalty to Him.

The land of Luther that gave the world the Protestant type of Christianity, the land that gave the Bible to the people in their common language, the land that has given us Christian hymns to sing and Chris-

Sealed proposals are requested "For construction, plumbing, heating and electric wiring for a dormitory and for a Custodial building; for the erection of a Laundry building; for the construction, heating, wiring and plumbing in a Storehouse and Bakery; for the construction of a Power house; for the erection of a 125-ft-x6-ft. radial brick chimney; the installation of two tubular boilers, piping, heating, etc., two engines and dynamos, switch board and power house wiring, plumbing etc. Proposals will also be received for the construction of about 1325 linear feet of underground concrete tunnels, and for steam and hot water supply piping and returns and electric mains therein."

"Antiquarian" Supper

Wednesday evening, September 24, at 6 p. m. in the Methodist vestry, there is to be an "Antiquarian" supper and social. If possible, it is desired that all come attired in costumes of the olden times. A program, "Our National Songs," has been arranged for the evening when different ones will present briefly the historical story and setting of the songs.

Home Service

E. E. Sargent, local chairman of the home service branch of the Red Cross, calls attention to the fact that returned soldiers who find themselves physically incapacitated, can upon application, be examined by a physician and if found ten per cent incapacitated, receive treatment for which all bills will be paid.

The home service department also assists discharged soldiers in securing employment and in getting an education. Mr. Sargent will be glad to do what he can, in his capacity as local chairman, to render such service as he can.

the senators who are advocating reservations and amendments is the same. They are more concerned with America's self-preservation than with the preservation of the world. Of course the covenant is in many respects imperfect; so was our constitution. We must go from all quarters of our land to our senators that they must do their part at the earliest possible moment to create a new international order and a federation of a world. Far better a very imperfect treaty than no league at all.

The High Cost of Living

We quote the following from a statement by Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, director of savings for the First Federal Reserve district.

"The investigation of the high cost of living at Washington has brought to light the fact that one of the reasons for the present high prices is because the people are spending money lavishly for luxuries.

"It has also been pointed out by prominent officials at Washington that no relief from high prices can be expected until the people refrain from demanding the highest quality of everything and paying any price to get it.

"If every person in New England would practice thrift for at least a year and invest their savings in safe securities such as are offered by the governments, the Federal Land banks and Savings banks, we should not hear so much about the high cost of living.

"Today there is a greater number of people in New England practicing thrift than before the war but there still remains a much larger number of people who as yet have not learned the benefits to be derived from thrift, and the proper investment of their savings in safe securities rather than in untried investments.

"I feel sure that if the people of New England can be brought to realize that a more conservative expenditure of their income will help to reduce the high cost of living, they will gladly refrain from the purchase of non-essentials.

"Today this country is in need of capital. Europe is looking to America for money to help rebuild its countries. This money America needs should not be obtained through bank loans, but from the savings of the people. There is another great reason why the people of New England must not waste money. We are still living in after war conditions. We are still in a period of readjustment and it is important that the people of this country realize this condition of affairs and gov-

Selfish Nationalism

There was a time in the history of the world when polygamy was not considered an evil but that time has long since ceased.

For centuries it did not enter the consciences of men that slavery was at variance with Christianity. Ministers defended slavery using proof texts from the Scriptures. But two generations ago men awoke to the fact that slavery was in irreconcilable conflict with the laws of God, and men were given courage to put slavery away.

Up till recently good men in America have honestly thought that the highest duty of an American citizen was a self-interested patriotism. A leading daily in Chicago was allowed to set forth in every issue the motto, "My country, right or wrong" and not be rebuked by the average citizen. A Fourth of July orator could come to us and boast of the glories of America and of her supremacy in the world. And we would applaud him to the echo as he came to the climax with the ringing words, "America first and last and all the time."

But the last four years have taught us that this is a selfish nationalism, and it is as much an evil for a nation to be selfish as it is for an individual. Our eyes have witnessed the natural outcome of the motto, "Germany first and last and all the time," and we have come to see that "America first and last and all the time" is quite akin to Prussianism and we will have nothing to do with it.

The simple trouble with Senator Lodge in his two great and eloquent addresses is that he is unable to get away from the old flamboyant Americanism. He would have our country mix in European affairs only when it is for the self-preservation of the United States. There is no hint in either of his addresses that he has caught a world vision or thinks of America as being a ministering nation.

The simple trouble with many of ern their actions accordingly.

"The way to send prices higher and higher is for everybody to cut down his production, his hours of work, the efficiency of his service, and at the same time to buy everything or to try to buy everything, in sight. There is no limit to the height to which prices may rise under this process!

"The way to bring prices down is for everybody to produce more, by working more faithfully, efficiently, honestly, and in some cases even longer hours, and at the same time economize in his buying. He can economize in his buying and thus reduce the demand for consumable commodities, by spending more money for Thrift Stamps, Liberty Bonds or by investing in producers' goods, that is, tools, machinery and everything which will tend to increase the productivity of the country. This is the one and only permanent cure for the evil of rising prices."

love into the likeness of the God of war, and the world has been in the grip of the awful agony of the mightiest war that ever cursed men and nations. Oh the shame, the shame, the shame of such a forgetfulness of God, and the sin of it!

But beware, O my country, lest thou forget the Lord thy God.

Do you remember how we longed for peace in those days when the blood of the peoples was flowing on the battle fields? Do you remember how we prayed for peace? Do you remember how our thoughts went back to that old vision God gave through the Hebrew poet we call a prophet, of a time when "swords should be beaten into plowshares and nations learn war no more," and to the renewal of that vision God gave a modern prophet we call a poet, of "a parliament of nations," "a federation of the world"? Do you remember our consecration as a nation to these ideals of peace? We longed for some realization of these ideals. We wrestled in prayer to God for some realization of these ideals like Jacob when he said, "I will not let thee go except thou bless me."

Will it be to remember God or to forget God if this nation is kept from entering with other nations into the league "to promote international co-operation and to secure international peace and security by acceptance of obligations not to resort to war"? Does not the League of Nations offer some realization of the prophets' visions? I ask you, will it be to remember God or to forget God if this nation fails to sign the treaty of peace that is before it, and enter the League of Nations? O my country, beware lest thou forget the Lord thy God.

Let us make the petition of Kipling's Recessional hymn our prayer at this crisis in our country's history; at this sad halting of the nation between two opinions, the old way of making peace that had no vision and the new way that recalls the vision of God's prophets: "Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet Lest we forget, lest we forget."

George E. Peeso Killed in Sterling

Constable George E. Peeso, nephew of James E. and Edward R. Peeso of this town, was shot and instantly killed in Sterling Friday night by a man whom he was plaving under arrest after a disturbance at Sterling-inn in which the proprietor, David J. Mahoney, was beaten after refusing liquor to three men who came from Worcester. Constable Peeso dropped dead and the murderer escaped to the woods after a revolver duel with another officer. He was later captured and is now being held for his crime.

The death of Mr. Peeso aroused the citizens of Sterling and Worcester, who pay high tribute to their brave officer who gave his life. Fraternal organizations, churches and newspapers have spontaneously contributed to a fund to be given to the widow.

Mr. Peeso was born in Belchertown, April 13, 1882, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Peeso. He married Anna Willard in 1910 and has made his home in Sterling ever since. Mr. Peeso was a member of the Sterling fire department and a constable for many years. He leaves besides his widow, four children, Eva, Elmira, Barbara and Caroline.

The funeral was held at the home Monday and burial was in Oak Grove cemetery.

Ladies' Social Union Antiquarian Supper

M. E. CHURCH WEDNESDAY EVENING

Ye shades of antiquity! From furbelows to food great grandmother held sway for one evening. Imagine sitting down to table at the head of which an antiquarian hostess in ancient rustling silks, jewelry and lace served the old-time pumpkin pie on real willow ware plates! Imagine helping yourself to good old-fashioned hash with a horn spoon, a real old-timer. Now watch the lady as she deftly (or possibly fatally) snuffs the lighted candles. Listen to the comments of the guests on the castors as they turn them, "heft" them, count the bottles and try to find something different for each of the seven, "black pepper, red pepper, vinegar, tomato ketchup, butternut ketchup, mustard," etc. And in and out among the candle-lighted tables hasten the waiters in cap and kerchief, bringing more johnny oake, brown bread, baked beans, doughnuts, coffee, with the inquiry as to whether there was anything else you wanted. Shades of our ancestors! What more could any one want? As if to give the scene a dramatic touch the weather man unexpectedly blew out the electric lights, leaving the candles, as they once were, the only source of illumination.

After the supper a very worthwhile program arranged by Mrs. B. F. Rowe was rendered. The story of our national songs was given in music and readings, Miss Demarest being pianist and playing the air of each song before the story was told. Following are the numbers:

A sketch on our national songs, Mrs. G. H. B. Green.
Exercise, The Flagmakers, Miss Alice Booth and fourteen children.
The Star Spangled Banner, Mrs. Henry Witt.
Hail Columbia, Happy Land, Mrs. H. W. Conkey.
The Story of Yankee Doodle, Miss Ruby Knight.
Columbia the Gem of the Ocean, Miss Sadie Demarest.

Real Unity

One of the lessons which the war taught us which it is very easy for us to forget is the lesson of team work. We saw the evil there was in bitter competition and the virtue there was in friendly co-operation. We found in the war that we had more things in common with the English and the French than we had at variance with them. And we gladly fought side by side with them. How often we said that when the soldier boy returned, he would take little interest in denominational lines and in petty things which divided us!

Before we learn a thing perfectly, quite often we are compelled to take many lessons, and it will be a wonder if the war gets us very far along in this lesson of working together. A glance at the Senate does not indicate that that body is a shining illustration of excellent team work.

Let it be said,—for there is much confusion here—that unity and harmony and team work do not depend upon uniformity. Uniformity is not a desirable goal in any realm. God likes variety. There may be a million leaves on a tree, but we have never found two exactly alike. Here is wonderful New England. But there are no two views exactly alike. No two individuals in the world are exactly alike in external features or in spirit. A mother distinguishes between twins. This would be a dull world if everybody thought alike and acted alike.

But there may be essential unity and real harmony and fine team work among people who differ widely in their living and thinking. This is possible even in the Senate but we fear that partisan lines are drawn so tightly that there is no desire on the part of many to work in harmony. When an affair is being decided which affects the welfare of the world it seems puerile that intelligent men should allow party spirit to take first place in their minds.

Married Life

(Clipping sent by a subscriber)

Lord, we've had our little wrangles, an' we've had our little bouts, There's many a time, I reckon, that we've been on the outs; My tongue's a trifle hasty an' my temper's apt to fly, An' Mother, let me tell you, has a sting in her reply. But I couldn't live without her, an' it's plain as plain can be That in fair or sunny weather mother needs a man like me.

I've banged a door an' muttered angry words beneath my breath, For at times when she was scoldin' mother's plagued me most to death.

But we've always laughed it over, when we'd both cooled down a bit.

An' we never had a difference but a smile would settle it.

An' if such a thing could happen, we could share life's joys an' tears

An' live right on together for another thousand years.

Some men give up too easy in the game o' married life.

They haven't got the courage to be worthy of a wife,

An' I've seen a lot o' women that have made their lives a mess,

Coz they couldn't bear the burdens that are mixed with happiness.

So long as folks are human they'll have many faults that jar,

An' the way to live with people is to take them as they are.

We've been forty years together, an bad, an' rain an' shine,

I've forgotten mother's faults now an' she never mentions mine.

In the days when sorrow struck us an' we shared a common wee,

We just leaned upon each other, an' our weakness didn't show.

An' I learned how much I need her an' how tender she can be

An' through it, maybe, mother saw the better side o' me.

Tribute to Holland

We print herewith a part of a most excellent article on Josiah Gilbert Holland which recently appeared in the Wellspring. It was written by Geo. S. Bryans and was handed us by a subscriber.

Every autumn in my New England the bitter-sweet hangs forth its red-and-yellow banners; every autumn we gather some of it from the old fences along which it has insinuated its woolly tendrils, and for weeks it remains to brighten our rooms; every autumn, as we take it homeward, one of us — so old-fashioned are we — is fairly certain to refer to J. G. Holland. Holland's "Bitter Sweet" seems to have—at least in old-fashioned hearts—a persistence akin to that of the fruitage of the climbing shrub whose name it borrows. Its literary structure would no longer find favor with the critics; its argument would not be deemed convincing by thorough-going students; but it still carries a flavor very typical of the Yankee land of seventy years since, and it still holds an ingratiating quality very characteristic of the author.

Of those who have sought to explain the secret of Holland's power and influence, probably none has done so more pointedly than Dr. Gladden, who says: "He had a quick and sure intuition of the consciousness of his time. He knew what men were thinking about. He discerned the difficulties of the average thinker, the problems with which he was struggling, and he knew how with deft and homely phrase, to put him on the track of a right solution. This was one great secret of his success as a writer, and especially as an editor. He was thoroughly on rapport with his contemporaries; not with the few foremost of them, but with the great mass of them. People of coming generations who wish to learn what the intellectual life of the average American has been through the last quarter of a century, will find it as fairly outlined for them in the writings of Dr. Holland as they will find it anywhere." This judgment was originally expressed in 1881, but even to-day it remains substantially true. " . . . Take almost any book of Dr. Holland," said George S. Merriam, "and read from it to any man or woman of intelligence: the eye responds; they understand what he means; they agree or deny; they comprehend, they are moved, influenced."

Yet this result was attained on Holland's part without any concession and without any lowering of the standards he had determined to maintain. In his journalistic work, although he sought professionally to appeal to the great body of

Most economies entail self denial but here is one that doesn't.

Buy Firestone tubes. No other tubes quite equal them.

They are hard to puncture and slow to blow-out because of their unusual toughness and because the thickness of their walls is correctly proportioned to their diameter.

They can't "wrinkle" or "buckle" because every one is a made-to-measure fit.

The pure rubber they are made of gives them wonderful liveliness and the process by which it is cured, enables them to retain it.

Naturally, they last longer. Users of Firestone tubes buy them regularly but not often.

Try one. Buy it now and get, with it, free, one of the heavy rubberized tube bags.

average thinking people and although such people heard him gladly, he was never the mountebank or the hypocrite, never an inconsistent and sham friend, minding first his own petty advantage under the cloak of an assumed concern for their welfare. Those who are interested in comparing the true with the pinchbeck would find interesting contrasts between Holland's newspaper writing and that of certain much-advertised men of later days. "I account the honor of occupying a pure place in the popular heart, of being welcomed in God's name into the affectionate confidence of those for whom life has high meanings and high issues, of being recognized as among the beneficent forces of society—the greatest honor to be worked for and won under the stars" that was what Holland himself said; and he meant every word he said. "He was," declared a prominent New Yorker, not long after Holland's death, "a man of good gifts, consecrated by a great motive. . . . Writing of plain and homely themes, he never touched one of them that he did not ennoble. . . . His writings found an acceptance that has often puzzled the critics. But their secret was not far to seek. They helped men."

A Jack-o'-Lantern Bugaboo

A jack-o'-lantern can be made to look very fierce and frightful. But it is harmless, a pumpkin and a bit of candle. It pleases the children if we go through the motions of a big scare when they come around with their pumpkin bugaboos.

The great subject before our country today is the treaty which involves the league of nations and the great question is: To sign or not to sign the treaty now before the senate. There are men, some of them called statesmen, who are trying to frighten us from signing the treaty by jack-o'-lantern bugaboo objections.

One of these objections is: We will lose our independence and sovereignty as a nation if the treaty is ratified. Shades of George Washington, Patrick Henry and all the dead heroes who fought at Concord and Bunker Hill and Yorktown that we might become an independent and sovereign nation forbid! What, give up independence, sign away sovereignty? Never, never! Who dare suggest such rank disloyalty. And we are in a fever of hysterical, patriotic indignation before we realize it. But keep calm Mr. Patriot and do a bit of thinking. Is this objection that seems so terrible a true signal light warning against a real peril or just a pumpkin-lantern bugaboo?

Who can make a treaty with another nation? Only an independent and sovereign nation. Who can fulfill the obligations of treaties made with other nations? Only independent and sovereign nations. This country has made many treaties with other nations in its past history, has it ever lost its independence and sovereignty by so doing? The supposed peril of this objection is good for pyrotechnic oratory if the people who listen to the fiery denunciations of the treaty and the league of nations do not think.

A treaty freely entered upon limits the action of the sovereign nations signing it to the requirements of its terms, it does not destroy the independence and sovereignty of the contracting nations. The constitution of the United States and its treaties are the supreme law

Girl Scout Troop Being Formed

Under the leadership of Miss Perry, assistant principal of the High school, a Girl Scout troop is being formed in Belchertown. A number of girls from the center Grammar and High schools have signed up and begun the work with enthusiasm. Meetings are held directly after school on Wednesday afternoon, and on two or three Saturday afternoons the girls have enjoyed a "hike".

In order that those interested may know more definitely what the Girl Scouts stand for, we give this brief sketch. The quotations are from the Handbook for Girl Scouts.

"Girl Scouts, like Boy Scouts, are found all over the world. When Sir Robert Baden-Powell formed the first troops of Boy Scouts, six thousand girls enrolled themselves, but, as Sir Robert's project did not include the admission of girls, he asked his sister, Miss Baden-Powell, to found a similar organization for girls, based on the Boy Scout laws, with activities and occupations properly adapted for girls." 1912 saw the beginning of this organization in America, which is now nation-wide in extent.

Eight or more girls are necessary to form a patrol, the age limit being ten to seventeen. The captain is an older person with certain qualifications. She selects a lieutenant who must be at least eighteen years old. Other officers are elected by the girls themselves from their own number.

There are three grades of Girl Scouts, Tenderfoot, or Third-class Scout, Second-class Scout, and First-Class Scout. In order to become a Tenderfoot, a girl of Scout age must know "how to tie four of the following knots: reef, sheet-bend, clove hitch, bowline, fisherman's and sheep-shank; the name of the governor of the state and of the mayor of the city; the history of the flag and how to fly it; the ten Scout laws." As soon as she passes this test, she makes the Girl Scout promise (if the captain considers her capable of living up to its spirit). This promise is, "To do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times, to obey the laws of the Scouts." After making this

Ratify the Treaty

We stand for the ratification of the treaty without amendments.
Any amendment to the treaty would require a re-opening of negotiations at Paris and it would prolong indefinitely the final settlement of peace. Other nations like our own might file amendments. Even Germany herself, who has accepted the treaty as it stands, would have full right to ask concessions if we were asked to sign a revised treaty.
No one dare prophesy what would be the outcome and when the final form would be reached if we compel a reassembling of the Conference.
It might result in the defeat of the federation of the world which now seems so near.

We stand for an immediate ratification of the treaty. There is enough unrest existing in the world today.
Some of it may have no definite relation to the war; but much of the strain and tension is directly due to it, and all of it comes as the result of the war. Every day the ratification is delayed brings new perils.
Everything possible should be done to restore normal conditions. A great peace and certainty will come to the nation when the treaty is ratified.

There is nothing that will please Germany better than to have us decline to ratify the treaty as it now stands. In case the other nations allied with us ratify the treaty as England has done we shall still be at war with Germany and will be compelled to make a separate peace with her. If we are dis-associated with the other victorious powers, we would have far less power making a satisfactory peace with the foe.

It is far better to have an imperfect treaty which can be improved upon from time to time than to have no treaty at all which would put us back to where we were in 1914 and which would mean that our boys had died in vain. R.

promise she is a Girl Scout and as such may wear the badge which is in the form of a clover leaf, the three leaves representing the three promises.

The ten Scout laws which she promises to obey are:

- "1. A Girl Scout's honor is to be trusted.
- "2. A Girl Scout is loyal.
- "3. A Girl Scout's duty is to be useful and to help others.
- "4. A Girl Scout is a friend to all, and a sister to every other Girl Scout.
- "5. A Girl Scout is courteous.
- "6. A Girl Scout keeps herself pure.
- "7. A Girl Scout is a friend to animals.
- "8. A Girl Scout obeys orders.
- "9. A Girl Scout is cheerful.
- "10. A Girl Scout is thrifty."

After one month's service as Third-class Scout, she may become a Second-class Scout upon passing certain tests. She may then prepare herself for a First-class Scout, or, if she prefers, she may work for merit badges, having a list of thirty-six to choose from. Some of these are:
first aid, signalling, marksmanship, civics, bird study, dairying, electricity, gardening, public health, home nursing, music, photography, telegraphy. In fact a girl may select almost any interest from cooking to aviation. "It is not to be understood that the knowledge required to obtain a badge is sufficient to qualify one to earn a living in that branch of industry." But to show you that the tests really mean work we give a list of the qualifications necessary to obtain one badge.

"To obtain a badge for personal health, a Scout must:

- "1. Eat no sweets, candy, or cake between meals for three months.
- "2. Drink nothing but water, chocolate, or cocoa for a year.
- "3. Walk a mile daily for three months.
- "4. Sleep with open window.
- "5. Take a bath daily for a year, or sponge bath.
- "6. Write a statement of the care of the teeth, and show that her teeth are in good condition as a result of proper care.
- "7. Tell the difference in effect of a cold bath and a hot bath.
- "8. Describe the effect of lack of sleep and improper nourishment on the growing girl.
- "9. Tell how to care for the feet on a march.
- "10. Describe a good healthful game and state its merits.
- "11. Tell the dangers of specialization and over-training in the various forms of athletics, and the ad-

Why the Red Cross Needs Continued Support

The greatest problem facing the world today is the world's health—its vitality. This problem must be solved before the great social and economic problems can be solved.

A large part of the diseases of the world are preventable diseases. The Red Cross of the leading nations is the agency through which the task of overcoming preventable disease should be carried on.

In America the health situation is a grave one. Disease is undermining the vitality of the people. It is the great mission of our Red Cross to war on disease. It is the problem to which the American Red Cross proposes to devote itself in the future.

The American Red Cross will not assume to do the work of public officials or other organizations, but it will cooperate with them in welfare work. It hopes to be the cementing influence to unite effectively their efforts.

To provide a physical union of welfare endeavor, health centers will be established, where a survey indicates the need, a small center in a small community, a large center, perhaps a building, in a large community.

All the countries of Europe look to America to lead in establishing health centers and gathering together the movements dealing with health and the prevention of disease.

"There is a possibility that a greater movement will be undertaken by the Red Cross than has ever been undertaken by any organization in the history of the world."

"12. Give five rules of health which if followed will keep a girl

The motto of this organization,
"Be prepared," embodies the ideal of every Girl Scout. Be prepared, to help others, to serve your country,
to do your duty. Merely the wish, the desire, to help others is not enough. A Girl Scout prepares herself to be of real value, of genuine service to others, and to do her duty to God and to her country.

We close with a few extracts from the Handbook. "To make others happy is the Scout's first wish."
"It is a part of the duty of Scouts to see and appreciate the beauties of nature, and not be blind to them as so many people are." "In all that you do, think of your country first."
"In order to live well, in order to possess the joy of life, and to be helpful to others, a Scout needs to apply her motto, 'Be prepared,' to herself. Strength and beauty should be hers in body, mind and spirit."

On every sort of building it is turning back logical roofing investment.

Certain-teed is made in rolls, both smooth of the land. The nation in its sovereignty made the constitution and amends it from time to time, and in its sovereignty the nation makes treaties and from time to time abrogates them if they prove undesirable, or amends them.

The United States has made treaties with other nations along the lines of this treaty to arbitrate differences and to avoid war, and this treaty is an attempt to embody in the practice of nations some of the best thought and highest ideals of what international relations should be. Why try to frighten us with this jack-o'-lantern objection of loss of independence and sovereignty. And why give the impression that this country is the only country to lose independence and sovereignty if any such essential attributes of a nation are lost.

If the United States loses any degree of independence and sovereignty by signing the treaty and becoming a member of the league of nations, England will lose in the same degree, France will lose in the same degree, Italy, Japan and every nation that signs the treaty and becomes a member of the league will lose independence and sovereignty in the same degree. Does anyone think England will sign away her sovereignty or that France and the other nations will do so? Stop, Mr. Affrighted Citizen, and take a good look at this so lurid a light. It is a jack-o'-lantern. During the late war we had buttons and wore them. There should be a new button of the shape of a jack-o'-lantern bearing this motto: "Don't get rattled".

Death of Miss Eliza Goodwill

Miss Eliza Goodwill died at her home on North Main street Monday afternoon after a long period of ill health.

Miss Goodwill was born in South Wilbraham, now Hampden, Dec. 24, 1834. She taught school for a great many years, teaching for a long time in Ludlow. She has lived in town intermittingly for the last thirty years and for the last seven years continuously. She was a member of the Congregational church.

She leaves a sister, Mrs. Alice Shaw of this place, and three brothers, Clark Goodwill of Hampden, and Harrison Goodwill. She also leaves a nephew, Harry Goodwill of Hampden, and three nieces, Mrs. Charles Kenworthy of Palmer, Mrs. William Meachan of Somers, Ct., and Mrs. Bessie Bennett of Hampden.

The funeral was held at her home Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial was in Hampden.

Death of George L. Witt

George L. Witt died at his home Thursday morning after a long illness. Mr. Witt was born in Granby August 20, 1848, and spent most of his life as a farmer in that town.

Since he moved to Belchertown he has held many important positions in the Methodist church of which he was a staunch supporter, being a long time chairman of the board of trustees. He was also a member of the Grange. Mr. Witt had many friends and was highly respected by all who knew him.

He leaves besides his widow, two daughters, Mrs. A. B. Carver and Mrs. R. A. French of Granby, and a son, Joseph H. Witt of that town. He also leaves two brothers, E. C. Witt of this town and Joseph H. Witt of Denver, Col., also a sister, Mary E. Witt of Bridgeport. There are three grandchildren, George L. Carver, Dorothy Witt and William B. French.

The funeral will be held from the home Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Burial will be in Granby.

Millinery Class Notes

Word has just been received from Miss Harriman to the effect that a millinery class cannot be held before the first of January, so Mrs. Kidder has deemed it advisable to give up the idea of the class for winter millinery. The work will be taken up in the spring if deemed desirable.

Rally Day

Rally day was observed by the Federated church last Sunday. Rev. H. P. Rankin preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion, emphasizing the importance of Sunday School attendance by the youth of today.

At the Sunday school hour there were special exercises. The officers of the two churches, the adult, intermediate, junior and primary departments of the school formed in line in the vestry and, led by the choir, marched into the main audience room singing, "Onward Christian Soldiers." The officers of the churches sat on the platform and two of the number, E. C. Witt and L. H. Blackmer, made remarks regarding the significance of the Sunday school. They were followed by words by the superintendent, J. V. Cook. Rev. H. P. Rankin led in the reading of the lesson and Miss Bernice Cook sang a solo.

Considerable effort had been made to "rally" a large attendance and the work was not without results.

In the evening two laymen spoke, Wilbur F. Nichols of the school board who spoke on, "The Ideal Teacher," and M. A. Morse whose subject was, "A Spiritual Sunday School." Both addresses were of a high order. As Mr. Nichols's remarks applied to teachers of both day and Sunday schools, we pass on some of the points which he made.

He said that a teacher must have a love for the children, collectively and individually, must have a large, warm, motherly heart and must be young as far as love for children is concerned. Her love, too, must be the genuine article. In addition she must have a love for the work; otherwise she is apt to be a misfit. No one will ever make a success of teaching, either in day school or Sunday school, who does it from a

Cattle Show and Fair

The Belchertown Cattle Show and Fair, looked forward to with delight by a great number, with horror by some and with a spirit of endurance by others, has passed into history and the good old town can safely settle down to a winter of ordinary work and pleasure. The climax of the year has passed.

The status of the Belchertown Fair was unknowingly expressed by some one who rooted at the girls' potato race in the late afternoon. A girl had missed fire in putting a potato in the box, and to keep her courage up a young fellow near by called out, "Never mind, pick it up, keep going." The girl took heed, picked it up, kept going and made a good showing in the race. It may be that the fair is in the process of "picking up" and if it is, a reasonable man would not object to the "keep going".

Anyway, the fair was held. I saw it. I wandered up and down the midway, with hands in both pockets for fear what little cash was there would in some mysterious way be exchanged for some cane, trinket or baby endowed with everything but life. I dodged here and there to escape the photographer who was always facing you whichever way you turned. I saw men pounding the peg which men have pounded at fairs since time immemorial, and I couldn't but be surprised that in this day of the high cost of labor, they paid for the privilege of working.

I saw the fair. I saw the fakirs selling this commodity and that, and everything was "cash and carry," "cry but keep it." They are here today but gone tomorrow.

I saw the fair. I saw them quench their thirst with drinks yellow and red, pink and canary, and every color not yet discovered in a real rainbow; it was a picturesque sight. I saw the exceptionally large, agricultural exhibit of E. A. Fuller, "the live store," and I reckoned that if I owned much of a farm I wouldn't have much use for anything live on it—a few machines would do, gasoline engine, corn husker, automatic water system, etc., and then I might patch out the whole outfit with one of Dan's Fords sense of duty or necessity.

The ideal teacher must also be able to distinguish between essentials and non-essentials. He said that there is such a wealth of information on every subject that one must grasp the central truth and teach it, one must beware of teaching a lot of unrelated facts, and in Sunday school teaching one must leave out dogmas and creeds when people are hungry and thirsting for the living Word. He said that one must be careful to teach the truth, citing an illustration of one who became unresponsive in later life because she was taught in youth what she later found was not true.

Another characteristic of the ideal teacher is that she have the power of imparting knowledge. Some people of superior intellect make inferior teachers.

One must have a strong, winning personality and infinite patience. Parents of a given child realize that patience is a necessity. How much more, therefore, does one who has charge of children from many homes require it.

A teacher must also have complete self-control. Without it she is apt to be lacking in fair play, something easily recognized.

The ideal teacher must also have the God-given gift of tact, and tact Mr. Nichols described as being able to do and say the right thing at the right time and in the right way.

In closing he said that a teacher needs to have all the Christian graces and be imbued with the spirit of the ideal teacher, Jesus Christ.

M. A. Morse took the subject from a spiritual point of view and said that if one was filled with the Spirit, there would of necessity issue forth the fruits of righteousness. He said that the world is in turmoil today and the religion of Jesus Christ is the only remedy.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison Blodgett of Springfield, with their daughters, visited his sister, Mrs. Marietta Gay last Friday.

A clothing efficiency club under the direction of Miss Harriman of the Hampshire County Farm Bureau is soon to be started in Turkey Hill.

Five Wolf River apples were exhibited at the Fair by E. E. Gay, grown on his farm, each apple measuring fifteen inches in circumference. They were sold for $1.50 to enthusiastic buyers.

on exhibition close by. I did, however, look at the animals, four yoke of oxen, stalwart and strong, bringing memories of by-gone days; a mammoth bull owned by E. F. Shumway and weighing 1730 lbs., and I dreamed of the days to be when "scrubs" would be no more. I saw the chickens, a whole box of them; I wondered where the others were but could not find them. However, there were dogs a plenty, yes, long brown dogs with a yellow streak along the back, oh, you know, "hot dogs". They made everybody feel good.

Yes, I saw the fair. I went into the hall and viewed with admiration the display of apples for which Belchertown is famous. I viewed the big display of fruit which the state school had on exhibit and at first I wished we had more such schools in town. I viewed the mammoth exhibit of Egleston and I was glad that he was "all there". I saw the work of the Blue Meadow canning club and my hopes ran high as I thought of some lucky Belchertown fellows in the days to be. I saw the fancy work table where the masculine element was gazing in admiration—their thoughts evidently too deep for words.

Yes, I saw the fair. I saw the people, thousands of them, the most interesting "exhibit" of all, the youngsters just old enough to cry, the kiddies with bulging eyes and cheeks, the young men and maidens just starting out in life with a realization that there were dark hours ahead and that they must lean upon each other—I saw them later under cover of the approaching darkness wandering back to town. I saw them dancing where everything was not free, but easy. I saw people of middle life calmly taking in the sights and buying something for the baby and I saw gray-haired men leaning on their canes, speaking with considerable interest, one with another, about the "good old days" which are still in the making for some of us.

I saw the sports. I saw men used to tugging at rocks and plow handles, tugging at two ends of a rope and one end eventually giving way, and I can but think how this old-fashioned tug of war is representative of our present industrial situation, capital on one side, labor on another and the helpless public stands beside. Something must give way.

I saw the band and I heard it play, songs old and new, and my heart rejoiced as I heard the ones which told me that heroism still lurks in our growing youth.

I saw the fair, yes indeed I did, that panorama of beings so full of human interest, marching by in unending procession, a parade so marvelous that I almost forgot to mention the cut and dried one on the program. But I saw that too, first the three young men on full-fledged horses, then Marjorie Peeso on her Shetland pony, then the band, the automobile containing T. J. S. Parsons of Hadley, J. J. Green and J. R. Gould, men who helped form the club and who are the oldest men in town; four yoke of oxen with their sturdy gait, driven by Messrs. Jepson and Peeso, cattle men of a receding generation; the Wm. Prainaitis float with the young man flailing out the beans; the Turkey Hill float, "The past and today," realistically depicted with an old spinning wheel contrasted with canning and gardening clubs of present day popularity; the "antique and horrible" turnout, surely antique and certainly "abhorrible"; the Blue Meadow canning club members on their float, each dressed in white with four-leafed clovers on their caps, giving their club yells, at the same time holding up their cans of fruit; the automobile on a lumber wagon, labeled with the insinuation that Belchertown roads are sometimes bad, the "select men" and the "labor's" behind with brush brooms and stove shovels, and I smiled—for this was democracy (this float was entered by John Prainaitis);

Yes, I saw the parade. I saw it as it passed the stand and I crossed the common with the others to see it again on the other side. I have been in other places and have seen parades of surpassing grandeur, I have happened in at the "Eastern States" but of course, I can't deny it, I still have an interest in old Belchertown.

Fishermen, Take Notice

The following from The Boston Post may be of interest to local fishermen:

"Fishermen will be required to take out licenses the same as hunters according to the terms of a new law which will become effective Friday. A fee of fifty cents will be charged resident citizens. Non-residents will be taxed one dollar the same as aliens owning $500 worth of property. Aliens not having property will be unable to procure a license.

"Legal residents may hunt or fish on their own land, if the premises are used for agricultural purposes, without licenses. Minors and women do not need any. Boys under fifteen are prohibited from hunting, but may get licenses to trap wild animals. There are no charges for these."

A Profitable Farm

PETER HANIFIN'S OF BELCHERTOWN IS A GOOD EXAMPLE

Reprinted from Hampshire County Farm Bureau Monthly

Mr. Hanifin came to Belchertown in 1885 when he was 28 years old and hired out to a farmer at $5 a month and board. Times were dull then and farm wages were low. After seven years as a hired man he purchased a fifty acre farm, followed three years later by an adjoining farm of twenty acres and in 1902 by a second adjoining farm of 115 acres.

The latter farm is now the base of operations, the other two being used largely for pasture of dry stock and hay land.

The Farm: It consists of 152 acres about 60 of which are tillable, 30 acres of woodland and about 62 acres of pasture and brush land. It is a typical farm of the type which returns good profits to its owner. The fields have been drained and stone walls removed and they are now in position to produce large crops.

The Crops: The acreages of crops for last year and this year are given below.—

Crop	1918	1919
Field corn	9	8
Silage corn	6	5
Potatoes	7	14
Cabbage	3	14
Hay	34	25
Oats (hayed)	4	6
Apples (bearing)	2	2
Apples (not bearing)	7	7

Total acres crops 68 1/2 68 1/2
Of the above crops—the young orchard was double cropped with field corn and the bearing apples are scattered over the farm. Sufficient field corn is raised to provide a considerable amount of feed for his stock. Other stock feeds raised are the silage and hay.

His cash crops consist of potatoes and cabbage, both crops being marketed by auto truck to towns and cities within 15 miles radius.

Stock: The stock consists of 26 grade Holsteins, large cows and heavy milkers, 11 grade Holstein heifers and a pure bred Holstein (continued on page 4)

O. E. S. Inspection

Mt. Vernon Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, held its annual Inspection Wednesday evening. The inspecting officers were Deputy Grand Matron, Mrs. Mabel W. Smith from Griswoldville, and Deputy Grand Matron, Mrs. Victoire B. Newell from Shelburne Falls.

There was a very large attendance, the hall being well filled. All enjoyed the bounteous supper and the speeches and ceremonies which followed. Rev. H. P. Rankin was received into the order.

Among the out of town chapters represented were the Geo. E. Fisher chapter of So. Hadley Falls, the Robert Morris of Holyoke, the Mary Lyon of Shelburne Falls, the Dwight Clark of Indian Orchard, the Delphi of Springfield, the Stella of Worcester and the Springfield of Springfield.

The committee having the supper in charge were Mrs. Alie Hazen, Mrs. Nora Fuller and Mrs. Jennie Jepson.

O. E. S. Apron and Food Sale

There will be given under the auspices of the O. E. S. an apron and food sale with entertainment in the Cong'l chapel on Wednesday, Oct. 22nd, afternoon and evening. Sale opens at two o'clock. A cafeteria luncheon will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock. Admission, adults, five cents; children, three cents.

Young Men's Trio

Christian Groezinger, who has been temporary pastor of the Second Congregational church, Amherst, during the absence of Rev. Geo. A. Tuttle, has accepted a position as professor at Straight College, New Orleans, La., a college fostered by the Congregational denomination, and will be at the M. E. church, Friday evening, October 24, at 8 p. m., bringing with him three colored singers from the college. They will present stories of southland, plantation melodies and folk songs. Prof. Groezinger will also give an address.

No admission fee will be charged but a collection will be taken for the institution which they represent.

Chicken Supper

If any chicken survived the chicken supper served by the Catholic mission in Grange hall Wednesday evening he should be thankful. We mean this in a literal sense, for the bipeds who attended certainly survived, at least as far as we know, they did. How could they help it when every one was so anxious to serve them the good things prepared and when everybody was rubbing elbows with his neighbor in a real community picnic?

Each supper given by the mission seems to draw a larger crowd than the one before and this last one was no exception. Chicken was served until they finally stood on their last legs but the late comers didn't mind.

Bondsville, Palmer and Thorndike were well represented and a delegation also came from Holyoke. People from other towns came too.

Father McGrath of Bondsville was there and had general oversight of the gathering. Mr. Griffin of Willimansett was there and his stories were hailed with delight by the audience. His jokes flowed like the water he drank, and his rendering of "The Piekanianny's Funeral" and "Whispering Bill" showed the deeper side of his nature.

Daniel Kennedy and family were there and their songs, so enthusiastically rendered, brought down the house. Miss Anna Shea of Bondsville, Miss Cavanaugh of Thorndike and Miss Mary Catherine Sullivan of Bondsville, popular soloists, were there rendering several selections, and as we inferred to start with, the mission people in the center were there, either in the kitchen or elsewhere, and made it all possible.

The evening's exercises closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

SOME GRIFFIN-GRAMS

"Say, I'd hate to be up there in that aeroplane."

"Well, I'd hate to be up there and not be in it."

"I should think they'd call this Belcher City."

"Why?"

"Because there's a building for the board of Alderman."

"But where would they put the mayor?"

"O, George could take care of him in the stable."

Eagerness to Learn

How eager the child is to learn! A child can ask more questions than a dozen parents can answer.

No person ought to outgrow this trait of the child. He is in a very bad way who has gotten to the place where he is no longer teachable.

Generally those who have a mere smattering of knowledge are the very ones who are least teachable.

The little band of Pilgrims who came over in the Mayflower nearly three hundred years ago were given wise advice by their leader, John Robinson.

The best things in human life are hidden from those who think they know it all, and are open only to those who are teachable.

What a splendid world this would be if everyone was eager to learn! He who would contribute in these restless days to our national life must be teachable.

Thrift

"A veritable orgy of extravagant buying is going on. The reaction from the careful use of money during war time is widespread and disturbing.

"It is not essential that we return to the extremes of economy of war times. It is essential, however, that we keep firm hold on the savings accumulated by purchase of war-finance securities as a factor in bringing prices down.

"Along these lines lies unbounded opportunity for national service by the war savings societies and their members. Organized in nearly every line of major industry none is in a better position to know real facts as to production and fair prices than the members of these societies.

"Under the direction of Attorney General Palmer the food administrations of the States have been revived. Every war savings society member owes a duty to cooperate with those administrations to the utmost.

Fires in the Mountains

The following is quoted from a letter received from Dr. E. P. Bartlett, Claremont, Cal.

"The first week of college has been badly broken up because of terrific fires in the mountains.

All our boys had to fight fire which ran over more than one hundred thousand acres. Some of the watersheds were completely burned over and this means inadequate water supply for several years.

The fires burned for two weeks in spite of the efforts of hundreds of men. The rain came last Friday and saved our own water shed which was in range of the fire and probably would have gone the next day.

The sight of the mountains on fire at night was truly wonderful but rather terrifying."

Camping Out

By one who went PART I

Slowly the flickering flames died away As sets the sun at close of day, And only the embers dying glow Marked the camp fire there below.

From the shadowy form of the tent beyond Laughter and jest rang out anon, Rang out in shrieks till the echoes woke

And questioned each other as to what was the joke. Whenever a pause in the laughter came And nirth seemed dying like the embers' flame,

It was fanned to new life and being again By the fantastic fun of the "medicine man".

At last after all had had their fill, With many a word to the girls to "be still",

The camp of the Crows grew quiet at last, And only a whisper softly cast, And one red coal in the ashes gray Showed where life had been that day.

Then through the birches' delicate screen Shone the bright moon with steady sheen, Shone on the tent where, lying within, Rested the braves from the evening's din,

"Whiskers" and "Freckles" and "Gray Flannel Shirt", Each in his Indian blanket engirt, Indian chief and Big Medicine Man And all the rest of the Black Crow clan.

Then peeping through the somber pines The moonlight showed in hazy lines The path that led away from the camp To the shore of the lake now cold and damp

With the rising fog so misty and white Enveloping all like the encircling night, Clouding the mirrow where fathoms below Orion and Venus move forth so slow, Where the silver moon with radiance bright

Marks a pathway of tremulous light, All now sealed from mortal sight By a blanket soft and fleecy white, A blanket that for the lake mayhap Was warm as a baby's eider down wrap

But when it silently crept up the hill, It brought to the sleeping braves a chill; But safe in their blankets they lay at rest, As sheltered and warm as a bird in its nest,

Till the rising sun and the camp fire's joy Began a new day with naught to alloy.

bull. Three horses are used on the place and to top off his stock he has 12 shoats and enough hens to supply the family with eggs and a fowl or so for Sunday dinner. The effect of using a pure blood sire is very noticeable. Mr. Hanifin says he can't show by figures that the heifers are doing better than their dams, but he does know he has better cows that will sell for more money.

By the way, Mr. Hanifin's last bull was purchased from Mr. J. McAuslan, Easthampton, at the suggestion of the Farm Bureau and is backed by some excellent records.

Labor: The number of men on a year basis required to take care of this amount of crops and stock is about 3 1/2. Mr. Hanifin is doing a large enough business to make it profitable for his son to remain on the farm. One reason why so much is accomplished with such a small amount of labor is the use of a large amount of labor-saving machinery on fields arranged for long rows, fields on which crops can be planted on time.

Financial Statement: We cannot give you a complete statement of receipts and expenses, but we can say that the gross receipts from the place last year were about $11,000, about 40 per cent of which came from cash crops and miscellaneous items. We think this is a right combination of receipts—wholesale milk and cash crops. The milk is sold thru the Holyoke Milk Producers' Association for Holyoke consumption.

The Barns: The buildings are well arranged for efficiency in operation and the doing of the barn work with the least possible amount of effort. An example of this is shown by a device for handling and moving ing away hay. The hay is brought from the wagon to the peak of the barn by a grapple fork and when the fork is dumped the hay lands on poles (set at a 45 degree angle) on which it slides into the side bays. These poles have a notch in one end which hooks into a two-inch board which is nailed to the rafters about two feet above the purlin plate. The other ends of the poles rest on the beams at the other side of the drive-way.

Winter work: Last winter's work consisted largely of caring for the stock, husking nine acres of corn, and marketing the potatoes. In the late fall some ditching is done and when no other work is pressing, brush is mowed in the pastures. We

The O. E. S. Sale

Did you attend the O. E. S. apron and food sale and entertainment in the chapel Wednesday afternoon and evening? If you did, of course you had a very pleasant time. Not only did you stock up with aprons, of which there was an endless number, but you bought some of the fancy work, both for yourself and for a friend at Christmas. You undoubtedly took a sip of tea and something to go with it as you passed the time of day with an acquaintance. Perhaps you had an extra nickel with you and you revived your youth with a "grab." If you happened in about supper-time you no doubt were enticed by the glimmer of the cafeteria booth, with its orange and Halloween decorations, and by the great variety of edibles obtainable. Like as not you bought what you wanted, and instead of sitting on a stool, sat at one of the inviting tables and ate in a way that would make for good digestion.

And as the hour was a bit late you decided to stay for the entertainment which unfolded in the shape of phonograph selections, readings by Rev. H. P. Rankin and piano solos by Mrs. J. L. Colvard.

Then, if you hadn't done so before, you bought some doughnuts or a loaf of cake or a pie to take home to "pa" who "couldn't" come.

Anyway you went home really rested and you wished that all shopping days were just like this. Besides, if you were a "Star" and also if you were just a visitor, you were glad to know that it was "successful".

If you live out of town or if you couldn't come perhaps you'd like to know who officiated at the various booths. We give them anyway.

Chairman, Mrs. Lou S. Barton.

Death of Mrs. Simon Kelley

Mrs. Sarah (Bishop) Kelley, wife of Simon Kelley, died at her home on Maple street late Wednesday night after a long illness. She was the daughter of Arnold and Sally Bishop and was born Sept. 15, 1835 near the old Simon Kelley home on the Amherst road. Sixty-six years ago she married Mr. Kelley and up to about three years ago lived at the old Kelley homestead.

They had five children, only one of whom survives, Geo. Kelley, of Maple street. Besides her husband, who is in poor health, Mrs. Kelley leaves several nephews and nieces.

The funeral will be held from the chapel Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial will be in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Dies in Stafford Springs

Levi Arnold of Stafford Springs died in Boston hospital last Saturday and was brought here for burial in Mt. Hope cemetery Wednesday. Rev. C. G. Burnham had charge of the service at the grave.

Mr. Arnold was the son of Levi Arnold and Merila Stetson and was born in Belchertown in 1843 in the house purchased a few years ago by the late L. W. Dillon. He was one of the charter members of Vernon Lodge, and was its second Worshipful Master, serving from 1871-1874.

Mr. Arnold was a jeweler and kept a store in the block now occupied by J. W. Jackson. In 1874 he moved to Stafford Springs where he has since been in business. For a time he was associated with the late George E. Sanford.

The Stafford Springs correspondent in the Republican says of him: "Since his stay here he made a reputation as a fine jeweler and an expert mechanic. He experienced little trouble in repairing any kind of watches or clocks, and seemed able to invent whatever he found himself in need of. At one time he invented a paper horn for graphophones which did away with the metallic-sound caused by metal horns."

He leaves a cousin, Mrs. Ella

Rowe of Federal St. There are no nearer relatives.

Atwood-Miller Wedding

A wedding took place on Maple street last Saturday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Atwood, when their youngest daughter, Carolyn, was married to Herman Miller of Springfield. Rev. H. P. Rankin performed the ceremony, using the single ring service. The bride's gown was of blue silk with imported lace and she carried a bouquet of bride roses.

The couple were presented with many gifts, among them being a dining room set from the groom's parents.

Mrs. Miller was educated in the schools of Belchertown and of late has been employed in the store of J. W. Jackson. Mr. Miller is foreman of the United Manufacturing Co. of Springfield and is an active worker in the First Congregational church of that city.

After the wedding the couple left for a brief wedding trip, the bride being attired in gray silvertone traveling suit with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will make their home at 41 Johnson street, Springfield.

The Colored Singers Tonight

There seems to be an inborn desire on the part of most everybody to hear the colored people sing. There should therefore be a good number at the M. E. church this evening to hear the three young men from Straight College, New Orleans, La., give their stories of the Southland, plantation melodies and folk songs.

Rev. Christian Groezinger of Amherst, who has recently accepted a professorship in Straight college, will also give an address.

There is no admission fee, but a collection will be taken for the benefit of the college they represent, which is one of the many Christian institutions in the south that have done remarkable things for the colored race.

The party coming tonight is touring the towns and cities in this section and are speaking in the largest of the churches.

Life's Brighter Side

As one reads the papers these days, it seems as though we had fallen on evil times. Hardly a column but has some sad story of murder, disease, conflict, riot, accident, misfortune and the apparent success of wrong, and as a result, we are tempted to ask, "Where is the good news?"

The fact of the case is, it is not usually in a column by itself. It is all interwoven with the rest, but it is there. We read of a murder and we agonize for the victim, neglecting often to take in the words that tell us of an officer who risked his life in the capture of the assailant; we read of the ravages of disease but we find at the close of the article that skilled men are at work and that eventually it will be overcome; we read of race riots and of a city hall being burned by a violent mob, but we are thrilled as we read that the mayor of the city, swinging from the ground with a rope around his neck, will not give up the keys to the jail; we read of a city being turned over to thugs and desperadoes, but we see a governor, backed by men of rank and influence, step into the breach and save the day; we see a nation rise with the assertion that might makes right, and we see a whole world rise in protest; we see men willing to go back to the old way of doing, but a mighty chorus goes up that it must not be so; we see prohibition laws adopted and then on the first ballot in Massachusetts, a clause that helps to legalize 4% beer and the opening of a path that leads to anarchy, but immediately there pours from the press an avalanche of assertions warning people of the danger and that it shall not be; we read of strikes, of capital and labor each battling for supremacy, and we realize that wrong has met right and there can be no lasting compromise.

The very fact that there is struggle is indicative of the fact that good men still live and that "truth crushed to earth" must "rise again."

And as we read of ten million men going to their death, a multitude fighting for the right, as we read of the passing on of great and illustrious men who have been champions of the right, still we are undismayed, for as their forms pass beneath the surface, we hear the voice of the preacher assure us that man is immortal.

Happy is he, who in the turmoil of life, still sees the good news.

Does "your" school show an increase in percentage of attendance and a decrease in the number of cases of tardiness over the list we last published? Some of them do. We hope to see a gain all along the line from month to month. A good showing will mean not only credit to the school but it will mean that the pupils will go out in life with increased capital, something upon which they can draw interest.

The unskilled laborer can in many cases to-day get more than the skilled, but as one of our leading dailies points out, "it may not always be so." It will pay one, therefore, to prepare for something more than just the few years that lie ahead. If the pendulum swings one way, it has to go the other. Prepare for the backward swing.

Must Apply at Once

Postmaster E. E. Sargent is in receipt of a letter and application blanks relative to the coming census which begins Jan. 2, 1920. The supervisor of the census asks that all application blanks be returned to him not later than Oct. 25, so it means that anyone thinking of applying for the job must see Mr. Sargent at once and fill out the necessary blanks. We quote below regarding some of the duties and qualifications of enumerators.

The enumerators are to be selected solely with reference to fitness and without reference to political party affiliations, "shall complete the work required in each district within thirty days in the case of rural districts and small towns, and within two weeks in the case of any incorporated city, town, village, or borough which had 2,500 inhabitants or more under the census of 1910."

"Each person seeking appointment will be required to submit to a test, to be prescribed by the director of the census, to determine their fitness for the work" and "he will be required to devote his entire working time to the census during the period of enumeration."

"The compensation to be paid to enumerators is fixed by the census act, and an allowance of not less than two nor more than four cents for each inhabitant, not less than twenty nor more than thirty cents for each farm reported, not less than twenty nor more than 50c for each irrigation or drainage enterprise reported, and ten cents for each barn and inclosure containing live stock not on farms, is provided for all subdivisions where the Director of the Census shall deem such remuneration sufficient. In other subdivisions the Director may fix a mixed rate of not less than one nor more than two dollars per day and, in addition, an allowance of not less than one nor more than three cents for each inhabitant enumerated, and not less than fifteen nor more than twenty cents for each farm reported, while in subdivisions where per diem rates are necessary, because of the difficulty of the enumeration, the enumerator may be allowed, in the discretion of the Director, a compensation of not less than three nor more than six dollars per day of eight hours' actual field work each. Except in extreme cases, no claim for mileage or traveling expenses will be allowed to any enumerator, and then only when authority has been previously granted by the Director of the Census."

STEPS FOR FORMATION OF LOCAL POST TO BE TAKEN

The preliminary steps for the formation of a local post of the American Legion are to be taken Saturday evening at eight o'clock in the Town hall. It is hoped that every man in town who served honorably in the army, navy or marine corps for any period of time between April 6, 1917 and Nov. 11, 1918, both dates inclusive, will be present. The American Legion is the organization of American veterans of the World War. It is non-partisan and non-political. Nearly all of its members are men who were civilians before the war and are now again civilians. It makes no distinctions of rank and no distinction between overseas men and men who did not get overseas. Among the things it stands for is, "To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principal of justice, freedom, and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

A Community Project

The up-to-date school of today is introducing more and more of the practical arts. Domestic science for girls and manual training for boys is almost sure, sooner or later, to be of actual use to the girl or boy.

Our own school committee would gladly introduce these subjects in our schools, except for the expense connected therewith. The Community club, always alive to the needs of the community, has been considering ways and means to bring it about. The supper which they serve in the chapel next Wednesday evening is the first step toward raising a fund for that purpose. They hope to be able to furnish the equipment for either the domestic science or the manual training, if not for both. It is understood that the school committee will carry on the project, once the initial start is made.

An enterprise of this sort should appeal to everyone in town interested in the welfare of our young people. It follows that the larger the attendance next Wednesday evening, the more can be done for the young people in this respect.

In connection with the supper the secretary of the Children's Home Association of Northampton, which has done needed work in Belchertown and to which the Community club as well as individuals, has contributed of its funds, will tell of the work of the organization.

Roll Call Week

As most every one knows, next week is Red Cross roll call week, when all over the country an effort is to be made to enlist people in the Red Cross organization. The campaign lasts from Nov. 2 to 11. Mrs. Aspengren has appointed canvassers for many of the districts but not all are covered, so that those who are not solicited are asked to send the dollar to her direct and she will see that the pin and window flag are sent.

It is desired that all old members renew and that new subscriptions be sent in as there was never any more need of Red Cross activity in the world than there is to-day. If all the old members in Belchertown renew, a 100% flag is in store for our local organization.

All those who have joined since Sept. 1 will not be solicited but otherwise they will be called on, as in the future all Red Cross auxiliaries will make their annual drive at this season.

Historical Association Meeting

The gathering of the Belchertown Historical association on Tuesday evening reminded one of the Hearth Fire "Sings" and Heart to Heart Talk-Fests of college days as its members sat about the glowing wood fire in the library and contributed his or her item of historic interest and value in response to the roll call.

There were epitaphs recently copied from old tomb stones, humorous anecdotes, extracts from old books and books of the olden times, bits of town history, a cockade worn in the war of 1812, a wedding dress made in 1820, which much resembles the evening dress of today, hand woven table cloths, which made one wonder how it was possible for great grandmother to do such fine weaving, a beautifully decorated bead bag, a toaster used before the open fire, Confederate money and a U. S. bill or script which in war times was worth $1.75, daguerreotypes of sixty years ago and camera pictures of today. The latter showed the mantel in the Nehemiah Randall house situated on the top of East hill, the corner cupboard in the

Hold First Practise To-morrow Night

The Belchertown basketball squad will hold its first workout of the season on the Town hall floor to-morrow night. Indications are that the team will be represented by a fast five, as some of the best basketball players in town have expressed a desire to try out for the team. Further practise sessions will be in order during the next few weeks in preparation for the opening night, Nov. 22.

Among those who will try out for the forward positions are Roy Bardwell, formerly of the Independents;

The Permanent Stimulant

How often in life we need some stimulant! In the spring time after a hard winter of toil, we are apt to have a languid, tired-out feeling. We have to force ourselves to our task. We are not rested when we awake in the morning, the hours drag during the day and we run down in the middle of the afternoon. So we go to the physician to receive a stimulant. We are wise enough not to strive to remedy the situation by the use of strong drink. For we have discovered that the stimulation by liquor is only temporary, that reaction soon sets in and a man is then in worse shape than at the start. We know what a wretched mistake a man makes who thinks that if he takes a glass of beer in the morning he has more snap and vitality and zest.

Our minds need stimulants as well as our bodies. Our minds get weary with hard thinking. We need a stimulant for our wills, for we find oftentimes that our wills get flabby and weak. We need a stimulant for our courage so as to enable us to stand fire. We need some stimulant to put an edge to our giving and make it spontaneous and hilarious. There is too much commonplace about our living.

While the war was on, the stimulant as used upon men to spur them to give was the stimulant of the drive. It was a successful stimulant when used in collecting money for the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the Government Loans, etc. The war created mighty emergencies and we were compelled to resort to unusual measures. The drive stimulant carried with it, buttons and banners and banquets and brass bands.

The trouble with this kind of a stimulant is that it is not permanent. And it is not permanent because it is external.

The kind of stimulant which we should seek is the kind which is permanent and not temporary; the kind which is internal and not external. Any driving force which is to abide must come from within and not from without. It must have its source from within man and not outside him. R.

Fox Hunt News

The Norwoltuck Fish and Game Association held a fox meet in town yesterday and secured three foxes, two of which were secured by local sports, Roy G. Shaw and Best Fellows.

The visiting club is a local organization of 185 members with E. M. Whitcomb of Amherst as president. All the money received from dues goes to restock streams and woods.

The New England club comes here on the 10th, but does not seem to be anticipated by some who think that it's most all "take" and little "give."

Young Men's Trio

The colored singers from Straight college, New Orleans, La., entertained a large audience gathered in the vestry of the M. E. church last Friday evening. There were other attractions the same night but the men from the sunny south drew their share of patronage.

The melodies, which only those of their color can sing, drew forth the applause of the listeners, who at times, considering the seriousness of the themes, hardly knew whether it was the proper thing to express themselves or not.

Rev. Mr. Groezinger, who is in charge of the young men, and has just accepted a professorship at Straight college, spoke interestingly of educational work in the south and of the institution he represented in particular.

David Randall house, now occupied by the Paine family, the Sam Ward house, the oldest in town, and a stone gate post on the old Jepson farm.

Two letters of Dr. Bridgman of Belchertown, one of the first two American missionaries to go to China, were read. Of his trip to the East he wrote that the six passengers had a favorable journey which took 126 days, quite a contrast to the airplane speed of to-day.

A copy of the first arithmetic printed in America, dated 1788, was also on exhibition.

Each one who attended the gathering felt that he had gained in historic lore and had grown wiser in the history of his own town.

At a business meeting which preceded the roll call, it was voted to increase the annual dues from twenty-five cents to one dollar.

Among the numerous articles presented the Historical Association since the spring meeting are the following, donated by out of town people: An earthen pan and a tray, parts of wedding outfits of a hundred years ago, presented by Mrs. Julia Walker Sikes, a saddle bag and military hat, the latter like ones used in the Mexican war, presented by Wellington J. Walker, the Park Holland diary presented by Nelson Holland and a file of letters of Dr. Elijah Coleman Bridgman, presented by Wm. Gould of Albany, N. Y., a descendant of the Bridgman family.

The next workout is scheduled for tomorrow night and a larger number of candidates is expected to be out.

Praises Red Cross

At the morning service of the Federated church last Sunday, the first day of Red Cross roll-call week, F. Dudley Walker was called upon to make a few remarks regarding the work of the Red Cross as he had observed it overseas.

He gave glimpses of the work done by that organization in two towns as he had observed it. In one it had only a room about ten feet square at its disposal, but nevertheless fed each day two lines of men, whereas other welfare organizations with larger equipment, did not begin to render the service the Red Cross did.

He said that now it doesn't seem as if a cup of coffee or chocolate and a sandwich meant very much, but under the conditions then existing it meant a whole lot to the men. Mr. Walker also told of the many articles of clothing which the Red Cross gave out.

He said that in Coblenz, where he was in the hospital for a time, regular army nurses were in charge but that the Red Cross representatives were constantly coming in and taking down lists of things each man wanted, such as tooth paste, candy, cigarettes, tobacco, etc., and seeing that they were supplied.

Mr. Walker also said that while the soldiers were going from one place to another on the trains, if circumstances would permit, the soldiers

Community Club Supper

The Community Club supper Wednesday evening was indeed a community occasion. Even though suppers still persist in coming and the night was blustering, father, mother and the children were all there in abundance.

Not only was a fine supper provided but a booth tastily trimmed with autumn leaves; vegetables, candy and pop corn were exchanging hands for a fair recompense, and at another booth trimmed in green and white, ice cream, the perennial source of satisfaction, was served. After the supper the following program was rendered.

The Halloween Supper

I don't know why I went to the B. H. S. Halloween supper last Friday evening. I always was afraid of ghosts—real ones, and though some say those I saw weren't real, I know better.

But I didn't have to go and I don't know why I did. Evidently my sub-conscious self thought differently and got ready, for about half past six I found myself before the chapel doors and of course it was then too late to go back.

I expected to have to travel in through the wood shed or some dark passage way and meet those awful things right off, so when I found I could go right in the main entrance I was quite encouraged. And then I found it all lit up and of course that helped a lot. Everyone seemed to look natural except a lady and a couple of young fellows dressed in ladies' attire. This made me feel a bit skittish but I sort of shied off to the other side of the room and tried to make believe they weren't there, but of course they were. Well, I sat down to supper and for a time was quite collected but all of a sudden I saw a mammoth jack-o-lantern on the piano, and, as sure as you live, it was winking at me. Yes sir, I stopped eating for a minute to make sure, and it certainly was, winking right at me.

I tried to act natural but soon found it was impossible. I took a mouthful now and then, but just so's

Early in the present year Dr. Frederick Lynch crossed the Atlantic. He found the sentiment on board ship very strongly in favor of a unity between England and America. There was considerable unanimity of feeling in the idea that the close alliance formed between the peoples in time of war should be continued in days of peace.

Papers declared with the signing of the armistice: "We have put an end to Prussian autocracy." Have we? A Prussian is not simply a man who is born in Prussia but a man who will use force to dominate.

"An Obituary"

Election day results inspired our poet-auctioneer, Guy C. Allen, to write the following lines:

Toll the bell, toll the bell, last night he died,

Forsaken by friends on whom he relied,

Borne to his grave heartbroken with grief,

Blaming deserters and gnashing his teeth.

Post mortem explains the reason he died.

'Twas by his own hand, politic suicide.

No wreath on his grave, this inscription instead:

"Here lies R. H. Long, politically dead."

Grammar School Notes

We print herewith a reproduction exercise told in the pupil's own words of:

HOW THE HELLESPONT GOT ITS NAME

by Miss Georgia Chapman

Once upon a time there lived a little boy and little girl. They lived with their stepmother who was very cruel to them and wished to put them to death. But a god sent a winged ram which had fleece of gold. The boy and girl seated themselves on the back of the ram and the ram flew away with them. Over mountains and plains it went all right but when they came to an arm of the sea and were crossing, Helle, the girl, got frightened and fell off the ram into the sea and was drowned. That is why the water into which Helle fell has ever since been called "The Sea of Helle" or "The Hellespont."

A program of music and recitations was rendered, including a ghost story by a real ghost. The first prize was won by Myrtle Campbell who sang "A Rose in No Man's Land," and the second by Doris Chase who sang "On Venice Waters." Following the program games were enjoyed and refreshments served. The decorations and costumes were quite original and appropriate to the occasion.

Presentation of the work of the Children's Aid Association of Northampton by Mrs. B. B. Hinckley, President, and Mr. Bicknell, chairman of the Ways and Means committee; solo, Thos. Allen; address, Miss O'Rourke, general secretary; reading, Mrs. Moore; solo, Theodore Hazen; Squirrel Song, Louis Fuller, Jane Shumway; song, Gladys Terwilliger, Helen Camp, Myrtle Campbell; "Blowing Bubbles," Mrs. Fred Lincoln and Miss Gladys Gay, assisted by Alice Hazen, Esther Squires and Maxine Fuller; tableau, "Follies of Fashion"; duet, Theodore Hazen and Gladys Gay.

Miss O'Rourke, general secretary of the Children's Aid association of Northampton, in her address following the supper, gave many interesting details of the work. In connection with her remarks Belchertown was complimented on its evident community spirit, which is the same spirit that organized and sustains the Children's Aid Association.

This society, organized in 1910, cared for ten cases in its first year. Last year 150 cases were cared for and this year it is probable that the number will be doubled. It is interesting to note that of the cases coming to this society, one-half or one-third are reported by relatives, thus showing the confidence in the society of those most interested in the welfare of the children. Many cases are reported by social agencies, local authorities, churches, interested individuals, and some are reported anonymously.

The home at Northampton is equipped to give temporary care while more permanent cases are given more permanent homes. The capacity of the home is 22 but Miss O'Rourke said, "Tonight there are 23 children in the home, and just as I was leaving two more little children were brought in who must be cared for."

To quote Miss O'Rourke further: "Only last Sunday a man called to say that he had just left his wife at the hospital and at home were six little children sadly neglected. Although there were 18 already in the home, by placing two at a neighbor's room was provided for the six who were to come.

"While waiting for them, another man came bringing a very attractive child who needed our care while her mother was in the hospital. Since she was Greek and could speak no word of English, it would be difficult to send her out of the home and so one of the grown-up's beds was used. What they will do for the two who came just as I was leaving, I don't know.

"One little girl who has been with us for two weeks, leaves tomorrow for the hospital. We took her in to prepare her for her operation. She comes from a home quite distant from the hospital and one where they could not very well prepare her.

"We have had 325 different cases for a longer or shorter period. They come from all parts of Hampshire county. Even now we have one little girl from Belchertown who has no mother at home to care for her. The expense of the work is met in part by the parents who altogether pay about of one-third of it. The balance which was $ 11,000 last year is met by the communities. Belchertown has given food, clothing and money, besides providing several homes for us."

Miss O'Rourke extended a cordial invitation to any who cared to visit the home. Any who would like to contribute may send their funds to E. S. Stratton, care of Northampton Institution for Savings, Northampton, Mass.

Speaking of what the testimony of service men is concerning the Red Cross, he said that at one time the commanding officer requested that if there were any complaints they had to make of it, to present them in writing, also if they had any testimonials, to do so in like manner. not to attract attention. Every time, too, the waiters came along with those orange and black aprons on made me all the more uneasy.

Then, all of a sudden, every once in a while some one turned off the lights and left just those little burning candles stuck in apples and "pertaters." I tell you I was relieved when somebody called out "More light."

But supper was finally over and I could have gone right home. I don't know why I didn't, but evidently my sub-conscious self said, "You haven't seen those ghosts", so I hung around, talking with this one and that one, just to sort of make me feel easy.

Then, all of a sudden I heard them. Yes, I sure did, and then I saw them, two white sepulchral beings, just as scary as could be. I was right near the door and could easily have escaped. I don't know why I didn't, but I didn't, that's all. And I just stood there, seat to death,

Social Guild Supper

The Social Guild of the Congregational church served a New England boiled dinner in the chapel Wednesday evening. Quite a number, even tho they did have to pay more, availed themselves of the opportunity of securing a variation from the salad presentations of recent days.

After the townspeople had been served, a party of one hundred employees of the Fisk Rubber Co. of Springfield came in to take their places and helped swell the fund which the Guild is trying to raise for the purpose of combining the kitchen and what was formerly the Priscilla parlors, into one dining room so that the audience room which now has to be set with tables may be saved for other purposes. In case these two rooms were thrown together it is the plan to build on a kitchen in the rear.

The Guild would also like to put in a cistern so that water for dish washing would not have to be brought in by hand.

The Guild wish the public to know that they have something definite in mind and something for which to work.

Fox Hunt

The New England Fox Hunters' club is in town as most everyone knows. The hounds give the fact away at all hours of the day and all alarm clocks on Belcher hill are getting a fine rest. The hunters are here—they can be seen anywhere, and occasionally one brings in a fox. Only five have thus far been bagged, quite a contrast with the record of the first hunt here a few years ago.

But we don't suppose that foxes are everything. The getting together of old acquaintances must count some.

The ball on Wednesday evening was well attended, a number of townspeople coming in to greet the visitors.

First and last, probably one hundred and fifty members of the club have been on the trail here, that is, when they haven't been talking it all over on the Park View piazzas between the showers.

Vernon Lodge Elects Officers

Vernon Lodge, this week, elected the following officers for 1920:

Death of Mrs. Fred Ruell

Mrs. Margaret (Carter) Ruell, age 60, died at her home Tuesday morning after a lingering sickness, the result of a shock. Mrs. Ruell was born in New York state and moved to Belchertown in her youth.

She is survived by her husband, Fred Ruell, five sons, Fred of Millers Falls, James of Indian Orchard, David, Jerry and Lawrence of this town, two sisters, Mrs. Jerry Fountain of Hartford and Mrs. Joseph Shepherd of Holyoke, also by three brothers, Jed, Joseph and James of Concord, N. H.

Funeral services were held in St. Anne's church in Fairview, with burial in South Hadley. The floral offerings were beautiful and profuse.

Israel T. Cowles Promoted

News has been received of the promotion of Israel T. Cowles of Detroit to the office of vice-president of the Union Trust Company of that city. For the past twenty-six years Mr. Cowles has been general manager and legal officer of the company's title and guaranty department.

The Detroit Free Press quotes the president of the institution as saying: "The election of Mr. Cowles as vice-president is in recognition of his long, faithful and conscientious service in building up his department and his constant endeavor for the advancement of the best interests of the company."

Death of Herbert Story

Herbert Story died at his home on the Pelham road Wednesday afternoon after a long period of ill health.

Mr. Story was born in Sheffield, England, Oct. 22, 1847, and came to New York in 1871, engaging in the wholesale hardware business.

In May, 1896, he married Clara Dilger and came to Belchertown in April, 1912. He was an inventor of weavers' tools and since his coming here has done a good sized mail order business.

He leaves besides his wife, a son, Herbert Story, who has been employed in Waltham, and a daughter, Gertrude N., in the home. The funeral will be held at the house this afternoon at 2 p. m., Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial will be Mt. Hope cemetery.

P. O. Notes

Beginning next Monday the post office will close at 6 o'clock every evening except Saturday when it will be open until 9.

The mails for the south and west will hereafter close at 10.30 a. m. instead of 9.20 and 11.20 respectively as heretofore.

H. L. Hadlock has the contract for carrying the mail to and from the station.

Red Cross Members

The Red Cross drive in town has been very successful, the number of names on the list being nearly as many as when the war was on and interest was at its height. While the drive was scheduled for Nov. 2 to Nov. 11, the local auxiliary is informed that all who turn in their names this month will be included and entitled to a pin and button.

Mrs. Arpenger is very appreciative of the activity of the workers and the response of the public. The list of names follows:

- Geo. Alderman
 - Jes. Bothwell
 - Miss J. M. Hibbard
 - Robt. Bridgman

Dynamic Men

Who are the dynamic men in the community? We get a glimpse of the power of the dynamic man when we consider the words dynamite and dynamo.

We often associate wealth with power. We note that wealth procures fine palaces and the most sumptuous tables. We note that the policy of an institution is often determined by men of wealth. Probably we are influenced more largely by men of wealth than we would be willing to admit.

And yet history reveals the fact that the men who have ruled the world have not been as a rule wealthy men. On the contrary many of them have died poverty-stricken and most of them were in humble circumstances.

We often associate position with power. We say that a man could not be elected as Village President or Mayor or Superintendent of Schools or Senator or President unless he had power over the voters.

And yet again a student of history is driven to the conclusion that the dynamic men have frequently been men who never held any public office. We can survey any period we like in the world's history and the men of power in that period were men of force irrespective of the position they held.

An educated man is a man of power, but again some of the greatest dynamic men the world has known have been from the ignorant and unlearned people.

The dynamic man in the community is as likely to be a carpenter, a mason, a clerk or a stenographer, as the man who lives on Fifth avenue, or a member of the city council.

These are good questions for a thoughtful man to consider, "What makes a man a dynamo?" "What was it that caused certain men to be powerful forces in their day?" We are minded to think that real power comes from within and not without.

Every man covets for himself such a power. He would like to shape the life and would the thought and transform the living of the people in the community. He would like to have power to elevate the tone of all conversation, to bring comfort to the sorrowing, light to the blinded, joy to the sad, and peace to those in strife. It is not necessary to have

The Upper Fork of the Road

In the Cavalier, one of George W. Cable's interesting books, is a chapter under the title: The Upper Fork of the Road. Talk between two of the characters of the story shows that the meaning of the title is not a literal one. As those heroes rode over the country on their duties as soldiers there were choices to make other than those between branching roadways. There were choices to make in their daily life between conflicting issues, and the upper fork of the road meant to them the path that led to the higher and more worthy moral conduct.

The title is a suggestive one with application not only to individuals but to nations. Nations come where the road is divided, to critical times in their history when new issues are raised and new policies involving moral principles present themselves.
The present is such a time for our own beloved country. The treaty of peace has brought us to this crisis.
The nation stands at the forks of the road. We face a new and great issue. We cannot escape choice and decision. Will we take the upper or the lower fork of the road?

The issue, as it was with the two comrades of Cable's story, is a moral
one. Many windy words of debate have been uttered in an attempt to hide the moral significance of the issue and many trumpets have sounded false alarms in the attempt to frighten us from taking the higher course of action. The treaty points to the upper fork of the road. It is recognized as a moral advance, the greatest that has been attempted in treaty making at the close of any great war. The purpose of the treaty is high, as much to prevent future wars as to bring the recent mighty war to a desired end. It breathes a new spirit. Shall we hesitate to take the upper fork of the road because it involves the new and morally higher policy of cooperation and unselfishness or shall we follow the lower fork and pursue the old policy of isolation? The character of the nation is being tested.

O senators, representatives of a great people, to you is given by the

Preparing for the Opening Game

Manager W. L. Noel gave the Belchertown basket ball squad three long workouts on the town hall floor during the week in preparation for the opening game, Nov. 26th. The most important workout was last Saturday night when the regulars lined up against the scrubs. Two new candidates, Herb Story and Buck Davis, reported for practise during the week.

The first team lined up with Roy Bardwell and Link Cook at forwards, Herb Story at center, and Jack Fairchild and Eddie Parent at guards.

The battle was clean and fast and some fine passwork was displayed during the evening. At the end of the scrimmage the regulars had held the scrubs down to four floor goals.
The squad will workout tomorrow night and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings of next week before the opening game with the fast Trolley-men's basket ball team of Springfield, which is managed by F. A.
Spafford who once played with the Holyoke Merries.

Community Club Notes

The Community club supper of last week netted about $40. This amount will be turned over to the school committee at once for the purchase of equipment for manual training or domestic science classes.
It is hoped to swell this fund in various ways during the winter. Some of the vegetables contributed by the children are still for sale and may be obtained at regular prices by telephoning Mrs. D. D. Hazen. Some of the candy from the booth is, also for sale.

The unique corn "dollies" which decorated the tables at the supper were sent to the children at the Home in Northampton.

All the members are in fine shape and the squad will practise tomorrow night followed by a light workout on Monday before the game with the Home City five.

Belchertown has not decided upon the lineup that will start the game, but most of the men will be used before the fray is over. The probable men that Manager W. L. Afraid of Adventuring

There is nothing which man fears so much as adventure.

We speak of a man being afraid of poverty and yet the American people are not so fearful of it as to be a saving people. We are known to be extravagant folk. We have not created an industrial order which shall make poverty impossible.

We speak of man being afraid of sickness. But we are afraid of only a few diseases. Science has gotten the most of human ills under control and we are not greatly concerned over sickness. And we do not hear very much in these days about a man being afraid to die.

There is a widespread fear over Bolshevism at the present time and as a result there is much unrest.
But this is not what we fear the most.

Our great fear is to go forward in adventure. It has always been so.
It is so today. How many men have been put to death for the simple reason that they tried to push their fellows forward in adventure!

130 years ago the great fear in our nation was to adventure and adopt a Constitution. They feared lest this step forward would mean that the Pope of Rome might be elected President, the Congress become tyrannical and the government aristocratic and American liberty be ruined. Patrick Henry feared "that the rights of conscience, trial by jury, liberty of the press, all their immunities and franchises, all pretensions to human rights and privileges would be rendered insecure."

This is one trouble with some of the senators at Washington. They fear to go forward. They fear to leave the old order of competition in international relations to the new order of cooperation. They fear the same fears that men did 130 years ago.
They predict the dire and dreadful things that will happen to America
if she goes forward.

We have feared every forward

step. Disaster has been predicted for every new enterprise the world has undertaken. And yet the world moves right on and we laugh at the fears of men of other days, as future generations will laugh at us.
Let us have courage!

Again the fitfully flaring flame Marks the scene of the evening's game.

Again the tent with its sloping side

Is gathered the theme this song is sung.

But not to-night shall the moon's pale face

Mock the camp-fire's dying grace.

Not to-night shall its brightest beam

Leave on the lake a glimmering sheen,

To call to mind the frolics past,
The joys of day that cannot last.

But not without rival the camp-fire gleams.

As on the lake the silver beams
Of the moon the night before, anew

Were born in the depths of the crystal blue,

So the ruddy glow of the camp-fire's face

Seems mirrored here in another place.

Yet when the parent sank to earth
The children proved of another birth.

Each coal shone forth throughout the night

Like a royal topaz clear and bright.

And the steady gleam of the phosphorus wood

Gave out to the dark its mysterious good,

As if the guarding angels thought
To leave us treasures all unsought.

Not to-night the hilarious mirth
To wake the echoes round the earth.

Within the tent all silent lay,
Asleep as if for the judgment day.

Without, the cricket chirped his song,
And across the lake the whip-poor-will long

His only message tried to tell,
Giving at last a sweet farewell.

How dark the night! With the moon long set,

Everything round is black as jet.
Even the tent with its canvas white

Is swallowed up in the black of night.

Slowly the shades of departing sleep
Unfurled our eyelids from slumber deep.

Slowly the heralding beams of day
Chase the darkness of night away.

Still stands the tent in the shadowy

Volcanic Activity in Hawaii

Rev. C. G. Burnham kindly passes on to our readers extracts from a letter recently received by him bearing the date of Oct. 18, which gives a bit of description of the volcanic activity on the island of Hawaii.
Mr. Burnham has witnessed the boiling of Kilauea's molten contents and the course of old lava flows in Kona, a district of Hawaii, but would like to have seen this.

"We have just come back from a trip to the volcano and a sail from Hilo around Puna to the new lava flow at the beginning of Kona.
They sent the steamer Kilauea around on a special trip to see the sight.

"The flow started at an elevation of 8,000 feet and hit the sea. The ocean was boiling all around and even out where we were in the boat we could feel that the water was warm. There was a high column of smoke and steam where the lava hit the sea and continual explosions of the red hot lava followed by a flash of blue lightning in the smoke above. We could see the stream of fire all the way down the mountain side. It was going thirty miles an hour and we could see the motion.

"We saw the flow only from the sea and at night. We didn't land; no one did. I think the best view was from the water. The flow lasted for two weeks and then stopped and a new one has broken out, but its whereabouts is not known exactly. It has not reached the sea, and they say the country is rather level and the flow is spreading out. A lot of Kea trees have been destroyed. They are having slight quakes and a lot of electrical displays in Hawaii. Kilauea is very active, too, which is unusual when Mauna Loa is performing."

A Farmer's Creed

I believe in a permanent agriculture, a soil that shall grow richer rather than poorer from year to year.

I believe in hundred-bushel corn and in fifty-bushel wheat and I shall not be satisfied with anything less.

I believe that the only good weed is a dead weed, and that a clean farm is as important as a clean conscience.

I believe in the farm boy and in the farm girl, the farmer's best crops and the future's best hope.

I believe in the farm woman, and will do all in my power to make her life easier and happier.

I believe in a country school that prepares for country life, and a country church that teaches its people to love deeply and live honorably.

Platform Meeting

Reasons for thanksgiving as a nation, as a community and as individuals were given at the evening service of the Federated church last Sunday, the speakers being M. A. Morse, A. R. Lewis and L. H. Blackmer.

Mr. Morse said that one cause for national thanksgiving was that labor was coming to its own. He expressed strong sympathies for the laboring class and said he was always in favor of the "under dog." The recent victory for "law and order," was due in part, he said, to that class, as the election results of Chicopee, Holyoke and New Bedford showed. He said that things in the world are changing and asked the question whether we are changing with them. The church as a whole has a broader standpoint he thought and is less narrow. In closing he said that he was for fair play regardless of color, social standing or race.

A. R. Lewis, in enumerating reasons for being thankful as a community mentioned that we should be grateful that the first settlers here chose such a beautiful location, that the roads, which are bad, are no worse, that we enjoy sunlight and fresh air, and that we have this year had most bountiful harvests and plenty of water. He also said that wages were good, there is labor for all, and thousands of books are in our library, affording opportunity for mental training.

Mr. Lewis said that we should be thankful that Belchertown was able to do her bit in men, work, material and loans in the war and should rejoice that the principle laid down by Christ 1900 years ago of love to God and love to men is still the only principle on which true character can be built, lasting peace be made, and a permanent government established.

Speaking of reasons for personal thanksgiving Lewis H. Blackmer said that we have reason to be grateful that the individual still counts, that our temporal blessings are as many as they are, that we may be calm in the midst of a world of conflict, that it is possible for us to have visions of a new day, that it is our privilege to be workers together with Him in the world's regeneration and that sacrifice in the cause of righteousness here will cause no disappointment in the world which is to be.

E. C. Witt followed with words of thanks for a federated church and a plea for justice for those in the ministry and those about to enter it, that salaries adequate to the cares and responsibilities of that office be meted out in a manner that will compare favorably with compensations now being received by unskilled labor.

To Raise More Funds

The Community club will hold a card party in Grange hall, Wednesday evening, December 3, at 8 o'clock. Admission 25 cents. Ladies are to bring a box lunch for two. This is the first of a series of card parties to be held during the winter, the time and place to be announced. The patronage of the public is earnestly solicited as the money is to go toward the school fund for domestic science and manual training.

This week the club turned over to the school board $50.00, the net proceeds from the supper and sale of vegetables.

It is to be hoped that other organizations which have the interests of the community at heart, will devise and carry out plans to increase this fund which has been started by the Community club for this worthy object. Some time in the future it will be a matter of common pride that the people of today tried to do something extra for the boys and girls of the town.

Health Lectures

Grangers are urged to be present at the meeting next Tuesday evening which will be addressed by Miss Ayers, district health superintendent of Northampton, and Miss Hibbard, the district nurse of this town.

Miss Ayers will bring some stereopticon slides with her to illustrate her talk.

Fire Alarm

A chimney fire at the home of E. W. Parker last Saturday evening caused minor damages to the partitions around the chimney.

Accidental Shooting

Irving Mills, who was accidentally shot with a gun in the hands of his oldest son, Sunday, was the son of Dwight and Matilda (Capen) Mills. He was 58 years old and had always lived on the home farm in South Belchertown.

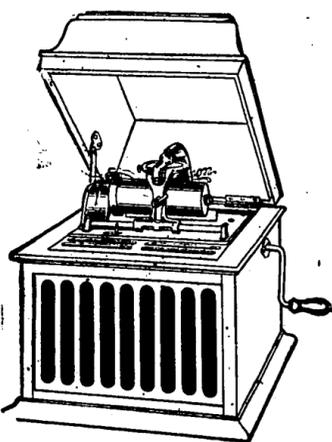

He was married about 25 years ago to Miss Cleeland, who with two sons, Elton and Clarence and a daughter, Gladys, survives him. He also leaves a half brother, Frank Mills of this town.

Mr. Mills had been in poor health for some time. He died Monday from the loss of blood in the Springfield hospital, where he was taken by Dr. Collard. The funeral was held Wednesday in Three Rivers church of which Mr. Mills was a member, with burial in Palmer cemetery.

Neighborhood Sunday

As previously announced, next Sunday is Neighborhood Sunday, when the young people of the Federated church expect to call on all members of the parish between the hours of two and four o'clock. All Protestant families are asked to be at home during those hours to receive the callers. Following are the districts and those allotted to them.

Is Broadmindedness Always to be Commended?

We are accustomed to admire a man who is broadminded and to dis-parage the one who is narrow-minded. We call a man "narrow" who has developed only one side of his life, who has had feelers out only in one direction and has therefore become warped and one-sided and out of proportion. Such narrowness is not to be commended.

But neither is breadth to be always commended. A man may become so broad as to be thin. A body of water which has power is confined within banks, and as it flows onward to the ocean it turns many a water wheel. But if we take away the banks the stream becomes a swamp, and the water becomes muddy and lifeless. A man may become so broad as to have no depth anywhere;
he is a swamp and loses all dynamic.
The man is not to be laughed at who says: "This one thing I do."

We are attracted to the man who is tolerant and repelled by the dogmatic person. We are drawn to the man who has a charity for the opinion of others and we find the man distasteful who attempts to force his convictions upon us. Quite justly.
We think that a man does not show a wide training if he is ever confident. He had better walk gently and speak hesitatingly.

And yet history reveals to us that some of the greatest men in the realm of science or in the realm of theology or in any other realm were furiously dogmatic upon points where they were absolutely certain they were right. They did not remark, "I think so," "It is my opinion," "I imagine," but "I know," "There is no other way." They sound not the hesitating note but the clarion note. And it quickens our pulse.

There is a narrowness and a dogmatism that is to be commended.
Even such good virtues as breadth and tolerance may be carried to an extreme.

The low attendance in the Center schools was doubtless caused by diphtheria, but sickness made no difference with the number of tardy marks. If the eighty-four tardinesses were divided equally among the 14 schools, each school would have 6 tardinesses. A glance at the tardy column will show that four schools had no tardy marks and that ten of the fourteen schools were below their quota, while the other four schools had 75% of all the tardy marks. Punctuality is one of the most important lessons to be learned in school, and parents and teachers should work together to see that it becomes a habit with all pupils.

HOW SCIENTISTS KNOW WHAT ELEMENTS
MAKE UP SUN AND STARS.

—When you read in a scientific book that the sun is made of certain substances, that the stars Aldebaran, Sirius, Capella, etc., are made of other substances, you wonder how this can be known with such certainty; for nobody has ever been there to see. Nevertheless our knowledge of the composition of the sun and stars is almost as certain as that of the elements that go to make up our own earth. And it is all due to the spectroscopic.

Isabel M. Lewis of the United States naval observatory tells in Electrical Experimenter just how it is done. When a ray of sunlight passes through a spectroscope (which consists essentially of a glass prism or chain of prisms), it is broken up into its component parts, which arrange themselves like a rainbow, violet, indigo, blue, green, yellow, orange, red, and these colors are crossed by many fine dark lines called Fraunhofer or absorption lines.
The shortest wave lengths are in the violet and the longest in the red; below the red are the infra-red rays, invisible to the naked eye but capable of being photographed on specially sensitized plates.

An incandescent body under high pressure gives up a band of pure color unbroken by cross lines. If, however, cooler gases are between us and the source of the continuous spectrum they absorb from the light beyond just those rays of which they themselves consist, and as a result the band of color is crossed by dark lines. Every chemical element has its own lines in the spectrum, always in the same place. So it is easy to identify the element merely by observing the position of the Fraunhofer or absorption line in the spectrum.

If the intervening gases be hotter than the source of light, the lines they make on the spectrum will be bright instead of dark, but their position will be unchanged.

WHY
Men of Knowledge Deride
"Short Cuts"

"Short cuts! Short cuts to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," comments the Journal of the American Medical Association on the contents of a certain "health fad" magazine. It continues: "Short cuts to health, of course, predominate.

"One learns that he may cure himself of almost anything from soft corns to cirrhosis of the liver by means of the various 'internal baths' so plausibly presented by numerous gentlemen who wish to relieve humanity —of surplus cash. You can be made 'a 100 per cent man' by at least six different methods of physical training, each of which is unique and entirely different from its five worthless competitors.

"Are your eyes weak? There is a short cut cure for them! Are you deaf? There is a short cut to perfect hearing! Are you ruptured? There is a short cut hernia cure! Do you crave large busts? Presto, change!
You may have them."

Among the other short cuts cited are a method of learning shorthand in seven days, one of gaining a "thorough knowledge of law in your spare

Tells of Work as Nurse

Miss Hibbard, our district nurse, at the United Young Peoples' meeting on Sunday evening and at the Grange on Tuesday evening described her work as she has carried it on in town and some of the results that have been accomplished. She said:

Since coming to Belchertown, the larger part of my work has been in the schools. My first step was to examine the pupils and make note of any defect, adenoids enlarged or diseased tonsils and defective teeth. As many parents as possible have been interviewed about defects and many have been sent notes and urged to have children treated. I wish to emphasize that the operation for adenoids and tonsils is an important one in so far as it affects children. The expression becomes dull and listless due to continued mouth breathing and the hearing slightly impaired at first, later becomes serious. A few children in the schools have told me they couldn't breathe or hear with closed mouths. Also a child with nasal obstruction must of necessity masticate food very rapidly or practically not at all, in order to swallow and breathe again.

To the diseased tonsil are traceable many of the cardiac complications of later life. As was shown in the draft you all doubtless know that throughout the country fifty per cent of our young men were physically unfit for army service. Do you know that in the state of Massachusetts seventy-nine per cent were physically unfit to bear arms for their country? This ratio would be practically the same among the young women. Many of the conditions were traceable to defects in childhood which at that time could have been remedied and the child preserved to valuable future citizenship and also for the same reason we are urging the care of the temporary as well as the permanent teeth.

Tooth brush drills have been held in all of the schools, also I am giving health talks in the schools, showing posters and endeavoring to make it interesting to the young minds and it is very gratifying to find on going to the homes that many of the things that have been said in the school have been repeated at home by children.

Grange Hears Lectures on Public Health

On Tuesday evening Union Grange had the pleasure of listening to three addresses on Public Health given by Miss Hibbard, our district nurse, Miss Ayer, district health superintendent of Northampton, and Dr. Williams, U. S. Public Health superintendent of Springfield.

The main thought of all three of the speakers was that the great objective today is the health of all the people. After Miss Hibbard's address which we give in another column, Miss Ayer gave a somewhat extended account of the progress of nursing from its beginning centuries ago. She cited references in the Bible that would lead one to infer that it was not unheard of in those days.

Any activity of this kind, Miss Ayer said, does not spring up but comes about because of a realization on the part of a few of its necessity, and then the idea begins to spread. From what she termed general nursing and cloister nursing the larger service began to develop. In all phases of its work the outstanding feature was service. She said that from every viewpoint we look to Florence Nightingale for inspiration. Her example, precept and practise gave a tremendous push to a developing idea and her influence is felt in the big plans now being put in operation.

While nursing at the start was simply for the benefit of the sick, gradually there has come the vision of caring for people who are well so that there may be no lowering of vitality. The slogan of the Mass. State Dept. of Health, "The common health of the commonwealth," means that the state is feeling a responsibility for the health of all of its citizens and wants everyone to reach the highest point of efficiency. The fact that there is a state department of health is a development, as the legislature delayed for ten years the matter of creating such a board.

Since the formation of the present department some definite work has been undertaken each year and a general scheme of education carried out so that people everywhere, children even, should become interested and share in its activities. The

This is the month when the Red Cross Christmas seals go on sale. They need little introduction. The money received goes toward the stamping out of tuberculosis, that dread enemy of mankind.

Already the sales are commencing in the cities. No stamps are available in town yet, but Mrs. Aspengren of the Red Cross auxiliary expects them any day. And the quota — there surely is one — $186, a figure based on our population of around 2000, would be easily raised if each one did his part.

Fails to Show Up

A good sized crowd was disappointed in the town hall, Tuesday night, when the Calhoun A. C. of Springfield, substituting for the Ware A. C., failed to show up for its game with the Belchertown five. Manager W. L. Noel of the local team has received no word from the Springfield team as to why they failed to put in an appearance for the game.

YOUNG STARS OF LUD- LOW NEXT

The local team will play its second game of the season at eight o'clock in the town hall tomorrow night, when the Young Stars of Ludlow, headed by Butler, former Ludlow High star, will be entertained.

The lineup of the visitors is somewhat in doubt, but among the headliners, besides Butler, there will be Frank Washington and Snadd, well known players who have played on different teams during the past few years. The home team will, no doubt, find plenty of opposition before the final whistle blows.

Belchertown will put its strongest combination on the floor, which means that Roy Bardwell and Herb Story will hold down the forward line, Jack Fairchild jump center, while Charlie Austin and Howell Cook will guard the back court.

Advance in Home Lighting

Fifty years have elapsed since incandescent electric lamps first came into practical use. During this period they have undergone constant improvement. To the layman this advance is not extremely striking because lamps of today resemble lamps of other years in that both contain a filament enclosed in a glass bulb.

lamp, which contained a carbonized bamboo filament enclosed in a vacuum within a glass bulb, came improvements in making of the filament through the use of cellulose instead of bamboo, improvements in manufacture which secured a more complete vacuum within the bulb, changes in the shape of the bulb, etc. Then came the Gem lamp—still retaining the carbon filament, but treated by a special process which made the lamp a much more efficient illuminant.

In 1913 the Mazda C Lamp was marketed. This lamp which contains a tungsten filament enclosed in an inert gas was as much an advance over the Mazda B as the latter was an improvement over the carbon lamp.

The new lamp known as the white Mazda is of high efficiency, the filament being enclosed in a white glass bulb, which softens and diffuses the light. The bulb is translucent rather than transparent and is dense enough so that the lighted filament is not visible through the bulb.

Social Union Sale

The Ladies Social Union will hold its annual sale in the M. E. vestry Wednesday afternoon and evening, the sale opening at three o'clock. There will be a New England kitchen where a cafeteria lunch will be served, also a Japanese kiosk where tea and wafers will be on sale, an art room with art work and fancy articles, also a domestic booth, a sugar camp where home-made candy will be sold, a garden of roses where mystery packages may be procured, also a fortune telling booth and an entertainment in the evening.

Fifteen minutes later a 125 lb. deer walked into his shot and rode home in "Henry Ford."

Mrs. Lillian Kelley and Mrs. Viola Shaw will entertain the Community club next Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. R. M. Shaw. This is the annual meeting and a full attendance is desired. Tax collector Shumway wishes to inform all delinquent tax payers that taxes are past due and must be paid at once. Mrs. Robert M. Wright and son of Holyoke are guests of her sister, Mrs. Wm. A. Kimball. The United Young Peoples' societies will give a sermon drama Sunday evening entitled, The Wealth of the Nations. Those taking part are Alice Booth, Bernice Cook, Esther Jackson, Eleanor Bardwell, Alice Howard, Gladys Gay and Walter Dodge. This will be the only service of the evening. Mr. and Mrs. John A. Gould of Ware, who recently bought the Thos. Austin place, have moved here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Thrasher. Misses Alice and Ruth Hanifin, who are in training at the House of Providence hospital, Holyoke, were at home for a short visit last week.

The Enfield state road which has been under construction is sufficiently completed to allow the passage of traffic.

Neighborhood Sunday

A very commendable piece of work was carried out by the young people of the Federated church last Sunday when, with but few exceptions, every Protestant family in town was visited and invitations left to attend the services of the church. Some 275 families received the callers, most of them in a very gracious manner. This first neighborhood Sunday should certainly be termed very successful.

state department is in earnest and desires the physical, mental and moral development of those in its care.

Miss Ayer said that the time is being looked forward to when every town will have its public health nurse. The Red Cross feels that its peacetime plan is to give all the people every chance for health and in fact all health organizations are more and more coming together on this program.

She said that war has always brought its lessons and this war has shown us that our physical weakness is evident. Loyalty and allegiance to our flag, she said, must involve a larger attention to our physical well-being.

Miss Ayer said that she knew that Belchertown was a big town, that we had a great deal to keep up, that taxes are high, etc., etc., but she hoped that we realized that in having a community nurse we were doing our bit to better the health of the state and of the country at large.

In closing she showed stereopticon views of health activities in industrial plants which were proving profitable to employers, views showing the value of cleanliness, the deformed faces of children having adenoids, the danger of the house fly and many word pictures of health advice. She also showed a number of pictures of sanitariums which, she said, were too inviting and comfortable to dread.

Miss Ayer said that she has under her supervision forty-seven district nurses but has an individual interest in each.

Dr. Williams began his remarks by relating an incident that happened with the building of the Panama Canal. A certain spur track was to be erected in a important part of the Culebra cut, but every gang attempting it was smitten with disease and it had to be given up. Health experts tried to find the cause but came near not doing so. Finally one health official found a place where water was leaching out of the ground and cattle had stepped in the wet spot. In each one of these tracks, he said, were from fifty to two hundred fifty of the wiggly tails which form the disease-carrying mosquito. By spraying a few cents worth of oil on the infected spot once each week the place was cleaned up and the work carried on, as not another case developed.

Dr. Williams said he had lived in many sections of the United States, was acquainted with conditions in sections of the south where there was poor drainage and sewerage systems, but said that here in the north were conditions which would cause disease. He said that we think we cannot afford to change some things, and yet asked the question if we can afford to have ill health.

His chief grudge was against the house fly which carried germs from places of filth; in fact, he said that it is absolutely true that typhoid can only be transmitted by eating human excrements, a fact distasteful but none the less true.

Not only can typhoid be transmitted in this manner but it has been found that worms, diarrhea and summer complaint are likewise given.

He said that not 5% of our houses are properly screened and if they were it would take half or two-thirds of a person's time to be sure they were closed and in condition. He advocated a concrete pit outhouse or a concrete septic tank in connection therewith. This was Dr. Williams' chief thought in his address. In closing he said, "Either you are bound to think about what I have said or else you don't believe it."

Social Union Sale

The Eastern Star meeting, the basket ball games, the dance at Park View hall—all these counter attractions the same evening probably helped to decrease the number that might have been at the Ladies' Social Union sale on Wednesday.

The crowd was the only element lacking. Everything else was there and the attractiveness of the display and the big values given for small money just made things go.

A dazzle of light and color was the general impression upon entering the vestry. Then the eye took in the individual booths arranged around the three sides, each one distinctive in coloring and display.

The first booth at the right of entrance was formed of white birches with decorations of blue and white crepe paper streamers and hung with Christmas bells. Mrs. Charles Morse presided here and dispensed cold creams, dental creams, shaving soaps and a great variety of toilet articles, all of Larkin manufacture.

The next booth was hung with hemlock boughs bearing their fruit of brown cones, while bowls of brilliant red berries shone out from the green at either end of the table. Here Mrs. G. H. B. Green and Mrs. Fred Fuller took in the cash for handkerchiefs, towels, bags, blotters, pictures, crochet and embroidery—well, you could find almost anything in the fancy work line at this booth.

Next, right in the corner, was a place to find your fortune, past, present, future. Here, also, almost anything of the kind was obtainable, Miss Ruby Knight being the presiding genius.

The next booth, occupying rather a central position and catching the eye first as one entered the vestry, was very daintily dressed in pink and white like a bridesmaid, while the evergreen bower with its pink roses was a bridal arch. At this "rose garden" Mrs. B. F. Rowe gave one a choice of many parcels for only ten cents.

Stopping at the next corner we find an attractive Japanese tea booth presided over by Mrs. Ella Hunt who was ever busy brewing the cup that cheers but not inebriates.

The next table was the "sweetest" of all. Here Mrs. W. D. E. Morse

American Legion Meeting

There will be a meeting Saturday evening at 7.30 o'clock in the town hall to form a local post of the American Legion. The charter has arrived and the adoption of a constitution and by-laws together with the election of officers is all that is required for final organization.

B. H. S. Notes

The following members of the B. H. S. have an average rank of 90 or better so far this year: Seniors: Francis Allen, Eleanor Bardwell, Alice Booth, Newell Booth, Catharine McKillop, Earl Witt; Juniors: Orin Bracey; Sophomores, Alice Flaherty, Anna Kennedy, Irene Vezina; Freshmen, Guy C. Allen 3rd, Watson Bardwell, Alice Howard.

Annual Church Meeting

The members of the Congregational church gathered in the chapel on last Friday evening and held their annual meeting. The work of the various officers and organizations was reviewed and new officers elected for the year ensuing. Mrs. M. D. S. Longley read from In Memoriam which chronicled the death of three members since the 1918 meeting, Mrs. Mary A. Blackmer, Miss Eliza Goodwill and Mrs. Jennie King. Mrs. Longley paid appropriate tribute to their life and work.

Letters of invitation to former pastors brought replies from Rev. P. W. Lyman of Fall River, Rev. V. C. Harrington of Middlebury, Vt., Rev. W. S. Woolworth of Aquobogue, Conn., and Rev. Edward P. Kelly of Brookline, N. H. Rev. C. H. Smith of Granby was present in person and gave reminiscences of former days. Rev. H. P. Rankin, the Federated pastor, followed with appropriate re-

"Old English" Supper

With an old English fog without and typical old New England surroundings within, the Sophomore class supper was served in Grange hall on Tuesday evening.

Not so large a crowd came out as to some public functions but of course the best things don't always draw the greatest number. This was an old English affair and that means class, which it was from the posters to the postscript. Miss Story was the artist for the former and she did a most excellent piece of work. Of course the supper was classy, too. No one the day after could have told the long list of puddings, English and otherwise, they had to offer.

And all served amid those picturesque surroundings. There was the specially constructed fire place and all the paraphernalia incident thereto; there was the glowing log electrically illuminated, there was the old spinning wheel, the stacked muskets, and the chairs waiting for glad owners, there were the stuffed animals and skins and mounted deer heads and other "natural" adornments around the room which was also tastily decorated with evergreen, and there was besides all else, and naturally consequent, an atmosphere of homeliness characteristically appropriate.

After the supper the following program was rendered which drew forth many encores: Piano solo, Miss Vezina; reading, Walter Dodge; solo, Thomas Allen; reading, Chas. Scott; Sophomore trio, Walter Dodge, Robert Dunbar, James Aldrich; piano solo, Miss Vezina; reading, Jas. Aldrich; solo, Thomas Allen. Miss Susie Squires assisted as pianist. The evening closed with merrymaking.

Annual Meeting of Community Club

The Community club held its annual meeting Tuesday evening, Dec. 9th, with Mrs. Roland Shaw, Mrs. Viola Shaw and Mrs. Lillian Kelley being hostesses.

In spite of the disagreeable weather which prevailed a good attendance was present and a very pleasant evening enjoyed. After the regular business was transacted, the following officers were elected:

Seals Have Arrived

The Red Cross Christmas seals have arrived. Owing to prevalent sickness no canvass will be made as originally intended. It is desired however that the public respond as loyally as it would if a canvass were made. Seals are now on sale at A. H. Phillips' and J. J. Garvey's, and probably will soon be available in other stores. Be sure to get them anyway!

Trains and Mails

The shortage of coal which has caused so many trains to be temporarily discontinued is the reason that the milk train on the B. & M. has been taken off. This train is the one that leaves for Boston at 6.22 a. m. and returns at 4.53 p. m.

The closing time of Northampton mail has been changed, therefore, from 4.20 p. m. to 5.45 p. m.

The modern advice incident to Christmas mailing still holds good. Those sending Christmas packages are requested to wrap securely, address plainly with name of sender and addressee, and mail early. Packages should be insured to protect them against loss or damage.

Patrons of the office are also requested to mail their parcels early in the day whenever possible. All bundles may be marked "not to be opened until Christmas" or with a similar direction.

Belchertown Five Wins Close Game

The boys from the Mill Town, after a poor first half, staged a comeback in the last half and outscored the home team, 13 to 10.

The visitors brought up a clever pair of forwards in MacDonough and Eason, these two players alone scoring all of Ludlow's points. Drexler, the heavy right back of the visitors, played a strong game and gave the home forwards a tough night.

The home team showed a lack of practise, for their team work and pass work was not as good as in the first game.

The Ludlow boys started off like a flash of lightning, Eason scoring the first double deker of the game a few minutes after play had begun. He followed this up with another beautiful shot, and it was the last point made by the visitors in the first half. Then Herb Story broke the ice for the home team with a double deker from under the basket. This was followed up with baskets by Link Cook, Jack Fairchild and Charlie Austin. Story again came thru with a pretty shot, thus ending the first half.

With the score 11 to 4 against them at half time, Ludlow players jumped into the lead in the last half and after ten minutes of play were within three points of the home team's score. But then the Belchertown boys got started and baskets by Roy Bardwell, Story and Fairchild soon set back the hopes of a Ludlow victory.

Eason was the big man of the night for the visitors, caging five twin counters. MacDonough also dropped in a couple of baskets and three free tries in the last half. Roy Bardwell and Herb Story were the stars for the home team, Bardwell with his fine shooting and Story with his all around floor work. Charlie Austin also played a nice game in the back court. The feature of the game was in the first half when with the ball in the visitor's hands and nobody guarding, Story ran up from the center of the floor and recovered the ball for the home team after a Ludlow player had made an attempt to score.

JUDEANS PLAY HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

Manager Wilfrid L. Noel of the Belchertown basket ball team announces that his team will play one of the best teams on the schedule tomorrow night, when it tackles the fast Judean quintet of Springfield in the Town hall at 8 o'clock. Local basket ball fans will no doubt remember that the Home City team defeated the local five here last year by a score of 24 to 12.

The Springfield outfit, with such well-known players as Posnik, Norvak, Gordenstein, Glickman, Fisher, Bresky and Cohen, is capable of putting up a fine brand of basket ball. They have played together for some time and have always proved that they are hard to beat.

Manager Noel sent his team thru a few practise sessions during the week in preparation for the game and the boys are going out strong to show local fans that it will take a fast team to defeat them on their home floor.

Belchertown will send its strongest lineup on the floor and it is expected that Roy Bardwell and Story will start in the forward court; Capt. Fairchild at center and Charlie Austin and Eddie Parent in the back court. Link Cook, Howell Cook and the veteran player, Howard Spencer, will also have a chance to show what they can do before the final whistle blows.

The Judeans will lineup as follows: Posnik and Norvak, forwards; Gordenstein, center; Glickman and Cohen, backs.

The management of the local team would like to have local fans turn out strong for the game as the Judeans expect to bring along a royal bunch of routers.

Belchertown Loses its First Game of Season

The Judeans of Springfield opened their season with a "bang" last Saturday night, when they sprang a surprise by defeating the Belchertown basket ball team in the Town hall by a score of 55 to 28. This was the home team's first defeat of the season. On account of the weather, the crowd was not as large as was expected.

The visitors brought up a clever and skilful passing team and with Posnik leading the floor work, completely outclassed the Belchertown quintet. Norvak scored the first basket of the game and from then on, the visitors piled up a big lead, leading at half time by a score of 31 to 12.

Substitutions were made on the home team during the intermission and when the last half started, Beef Spencer was at center in place of Jack Fairchild and Link Cook had taken Eddie Parent's place at right back. This combination proved to be the better of the two, for the visitors were held down to an eight point lead in the last half.

For Belchertown, Roy Bardwell connected with the hoop for three beautiful shots, while Herb Story played a nice floor game and, also led in the scoring with five twin-counters. Link Cook, who played the last half, put up a nice game and although he had plenty to do in covering the speedy Posnik, the visitors' left forward, he found time to run up the floor and drop in three double-deckers. For the Judeans, Aaron Posnik and Capt. Norvak led the attack in scoring, the former with 13 floor baskets and one free try and the latter with eight floor baskets and two free tries. Sam Gerdenstein fitted in nicely at center, while Joe Cohen and Red Fisher, the crack pair of backs, certainly gave the home forwards a tough night.

In fact, the whole team is one of the speediest combinations that ever played here.

AN OLD SONG'S Christmas Message

Christmas is coming. What a merry time it will be. How pleasantly the Christmas greetings will sound. How the children like to say "Merry Christmas" first. They are almost as pleased as when they get "April fool" on us the first day of that month.

I have been thinking of Christmas as I have never thought of it before. It has a new meaning to me and a new message. All over the world Christmas will be observed in some fashion. In the frozen arctic, in the burning tropics and in the kindlier zones between them the day will be observed. By the great lakes, by the great gulf, along the coasts of the two oceans, in the prairie states, in the mountain states, in the states of the great river valleys, throughout our great land the day will be kept. And across the sea they will observe the day.

In the lands where the great war raged they will observe the day, in ravaged France, in desolated Belgium, in distracted Russia, in storm tossed Italy, in partitioned Austria, in conquered Germany and in the Balkan states Christmas will be observed, and, as they say, "there are others." It would be tedious to name them. Christmas observance is world wide. What does the day mean? Is it just a time for greetings and gifts? I like the pleasant greetings, don't you? I like the gifts, both the giving and receiving, don't you? I like the Christmas songs, the Christmas trees, the Christmas feasting and rejoicings, don't you? But I wish we might keep Christmas in a new way, or at least with a new spirit and give the day a new meaning.

A Christmas song has given a new meaning to the day for me. I hope it may do the same for you. Its words are familiar to us, for the song is a very old one. It breathes such a sweet spirit and has such a holy meaning that men said a heavenly choir sang it to the shepherds "keep watch over their flocks by night."

"Glory to God in the highest,
And on earth peace, good will toward men."

Those Seals

Those Red Cross Christmas seals are waiting for you at Phillips' store, at Garvey's and at Mrs. Aspengren's. Make it a point to get some, for the cause—the stamping out of tuberculosis—is a worthy one. They will be a mark of character as they appear on your Xmas parcels and letters. Silently but heroically buy them.

Mrs. Aspengren requests that all Red Cross sewing be returned to her by the 27th.

Community Club's Activities

The report of the chairman of the executive committee of the Belchertown Community Club regarding the club's activities during the past year, reveals such a large and varied service to the community that we are glad to be able to publish the same.

This year's work commenced Jan. 28th with charity work for a needy family. We had several calls from them during January. Mrs. Slater kindly investigated their needs and reported that the children needed warm underwear and dresses. This work was begun at once; within a week material was given for three dresses, two coats, and gingham for two school dresses. Three sewing meetings were held during February and March and much work was accomplished. At Mrs. Bagge's ten members were present; at Mrs. Walker's nine members attended, and at Mrs. Gould's ten members responded. The children for whom we were sewing were asked to come to these meetings and gladly attended each one. Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Emma Shaw and Mrs. Slater deserve much credit for the sewing which they did at home individually and for the material which they donated. The family received the following clothing from time to time as it was finished: 2 heavy woolen dresses, 1 girl's cloak, 1 boy's coat, 4 gingham dresses, 1 white dress, 2 woolen skirts, 1 middie blouse suit, 1 white undershirt, 1 knit undershirt, 4 flannel skirts, 2 flannel baby skirts, 1 pr. drawers.

In February our thoughts turned to a new field of labor. As we learned from time to time of the sad

Yes, Christmas will be observed the world over. What a supreme day it would be if peace and good will should prevail over the strife and ill will that curse the world.

Peace has not yet come to all the countries that were engaged in the great war, and the wearied people need the calm of peace in which to rest, the balm of peace in which to heal their wounds, and the safety of peace in which to rebuild the waste places. But if the treaty were signed by all the nations who fought—alas that another Christmas will pass before it is signed by all—good will would be needed to make peace enduring.

It is good will the world needs so greatly, not a good will of form and sentiment merely but one of sincerity and action that not only wishes good to others but seeks to bring good to others.

Good will is needed among the nations to allay the suspicions and jealousies and fears and hatred that exist. While statesmen are thinking about a new basis for international relations why not cultivate good will, not merely towards some favored group of nations but towards all nations. Were good will zealously and patiently cultivated among nations, wars and rumors of wars would cease.

Good will is needed in the business world between men who have work to be done and those who have skill and strength to do it. Why should not good will prevail between employers and employees in all the world's industries, the good will of the one expressing itself in just wages and labor conditions and the good will of the other expressing itself in just measure of service. Strikes and lockouts and the harm they so frequently bring upon an innocent public, come because something has been done to destroy good will.

If good will prevails between rulers and the people, governments will be more stable. If good will prevails between classes there will be no bitter social animosities and no fierce clashes. Good will is necessary wherever men meet their fellowmen, in the political world, in the business world, in the school between teachers and pupils, in the home between parents and children, in short, in all the many and diverse contacts in every day life of people with other people, good will is needed if the world is to be saved for prosperous and happy life in the future years.

We wore war buttons while the world was in that terrible tempest of ill will that drove the nations into the late war. There are no Good Will buttons that I know about, but buttons or no buttons, let us learn to sing this old song of the first Christmas and practise good will.

I wish you all a Merry Christmas.

condition of Mrs. ———, we decided to circulate a subscription paper among neighbors and friends of the family. February 26th our president, vice-president and chairman of this committee called upon Mr. and Mrs. ——— and presented them with the paper amounting to $126.25, of which $108.75 was paid by check, $10.00 credit on account, the remaining balance of $7.50 being paid later by subscribers. This gift was a great surprise to the family and was gratefully received.

Later this same evening at our regular meeting we surprised Miss ——— with a miscellaneous shower in anticipation of her approaching marriage. She was indeed surprised and delighted with the numerous gifts of cut glass, linen, embroidery, tatting, etc. which our Good Cheer committee aided us in presenting in a large clothes basket tastefully arranged for the occasion. Miss ——— expressed thanks in her usual pleasing manner.

About this time two cases of charity work were called to our attention. One was that of Mrs. ——— who was helpless and suffering for lack of care. Members of our committee with other club members made her as comfortable as possible from time to time with clean clothing, bathing and food until she was called to the Great Beyond.

The second case was that of Mr. ———. This was investigated and the need of food was reported. We immediately planned a dinner schedule whereby he would receive a hot dinner and be given care each day at noon as best we could. This was carried out until a home was opened for him and our services were no longer required. Those of us who aided in bringing a little happiness into his last days are glad we had this opportunity.

During the early spring two Sunshine bags were filled and presented, one to Mrs. ——— while she was convalescing in the hospital, the second one to ———. We received notes of appreciation from each recipient. Mrs. ——— was also remembered with one dozen pinks.

At our March 25th meeting our club voted to remember all the "shut-ins" in town with a potted plant at Easter time. This work necessitated a systematic survey of the several districts resulting in a list of 77 "shut-ins." After careful consideration of kinds and prices of plants we purchased hyacinths. Much credit is due the two members of the Good Cheer committee, also to Mrs. Stone for her faithful work, and members of this committee for the efficient work in preparing and delivering these gifts. Although small to us they brought real Easter joy to more than one heart and home. Mrs. ——— who was quite ill was given a dwarf rambler rose.

We decided to present a play to reimburse our general fund about the middle of May. The District school at Blueberry Corners was chosen and given our careful attention for about a month. We had numerous rehearsals, giving much time and thought in planning for its presentation, but for various reasons we dropped it.

During the summer months this committee, excluding myself, was busy remembering sick and shut-ins. I am glad at this time to be able to express my heartfelt thanks for the beautiful bouquets of roses, potted plants, desserts and deeds of love and kindnesses shown me during my six weeks' illness. I cannot express in words what these sisterly expressions meant to me during those days of suffering. Although unable to help in carrying on this good work my thoughts were ever with you.

Vacation over we turned our attention toward earning money for the purpose of introducing Manual Training and Domestic Science into our schools. A supper was held November 5th for this purpose. Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Allen aided us in making this a success. Several school children from Mrs. Allen's room contributed vegetables for a vegetable booth. Two booths were tastefully arranged for the sale of vegetables, confectionery and ice cream. We cleared $40.12 from the supper and sale. At a later sale of confectionery and pop corn we cleared $9.88, thus making $50.00 for our first donation. A check was sent to Mr. Nichols, chairman of the school board, November 26. We have received a receipt for same, also a very pleasing letter expressing his thanks and appreciation for this gift. He calls us the pioneers in this cause.

We have planned a series of card parties to be held during the winter to help swell the school fund. Our first one was held Dec. 3rd. All who attended enjoyed the evening, especially the prize winners. Box lunches were brought and coffee was served. Expenses were $6.80, receipts $4.45. This was surely a poor beginning financially, but we trust that this promises a good ending.

Recently we have been investigating a home for our club. Last evening seven of this committee met with Mrs. Allen for the purpose of discussing the advisability of using the large room and kitchen in the basement of Community League hall, if favorably voted upon by the club. After much discussion it was unanimously agreed to do so. We then attended a League meeting held at Mr. Green's for the purpose of gaining their permission and deciding upon rent, etc. After much discussion the League voted to give the club the use of the large room and kitchen free of charge, the club making necessary repairs, lighting, etc., without any expense to the League. If we sublet these rooms at any time the League is to receive the rent for subletting.

This record completes the fourth year of our Community work and I wish to thank each one who has aided me in making our various plans a success. May the coming year with the bright future of a home and the great work awaiting us prove even more successful than the past is my earnest desire.

BELCHERTOWN QUINTET READY FOR BRUSSELS

Manager Wilfrid L. Noel gave his Belchertown basket ball squad a few workouts during the week in preparation for the game with the Brussels aggregation of Thompsonville, Conn. The boys have patched up the misplays that cropped out in the Judean game last week and are in fine shape for the battle with the Connecticut boys.

The Thompsonville outfit comes here with a clean slate, having won two games, the victims being the Indian Orchard Social Centers and the Ware Town team. These two teams were defeated on their home floor. The visiting team is made up of well-known players, such as Copeland and Sheridan of the 1917-18 Brussels five; Ferguson and Hanifan, formerly of the Brussels Reserves, and Kegley and Burke, who once starred for the Enfield (Conn.) high

The home team is out to win this game and Manager Noel will send his strongest lineup on the floor, which means that Roy Bardwell and Herb Story will be in the forward court. The Brussels will lineup as follows: Copeland and Sheridan, forwards; Ferguson, center; Burke and Hanifan, backs.

The management of the local team announces that the Brussels are coming here at a great expense and that local fans should turn out strong for the game. "Don't miss one of the best games of the season and bring your friends along!"

B. H. S. Five Wins Series

Nobody in town is probably happier than the Belchertown High school basket ball team after sending the Enfield Juniors quintet down to defeat in the Town hall Tuesday night by a score of 29 to 18. This was the third and deciding game of the series. The Enfield team won the first game of the series on their home floor and the high school team won the second game on the local floor. After the second game, Capt. Lynch of the high school team and Capt. Packard of the Enfield team tossed up a coin as to where the third game would be played and Lynch won, choosing the home floor. The game was fast and well-played. The visitors brought up a clever passing team and certainly gave the home team a tough battle until the final whistle blew. Harold Hazen opened the scoring with a beautiful shot for the home team. This was followed with a basket by Bill Riley and then Packard came through with his first basket for Enfield. From this point on, the high school boys held the lead and at half time were ahead, 14 to 10.

A few minutes after play had begun in the second half, Packard of Enfield dropped in a basket, making the score 14 to 12. This was the last time the two teams were so close for the high school boys made a spurt that set back the hopes of an Enfield victory.

Bill Riley and Harold Hazen were the stars for the home team, Riley with his all around playing and Hazen's ability to toss the ball through the hoop. Hazen was high scorer for the night with 6 baskets and one free try. Stanley, the little back of the visitors, played a nice floor game and also found time to run up the floor and drop in two twin-counters.

Shays' Rebellion

Thinking that Park Holland's account of Shays' rebellion as contained in his Notes and Memoirs which were presented to the Historical Association at the time of the Holland celebration last summer, might be of interest, we expect to print in this and succeeding issues, as space permits, what he had to say of the revolution of other days.

As I was out in the Shays' Rebellion so called, it may not be improper for me to endeavor to explain the cause of this unfortunate affair. Though it will be a difficult task to explain fully and clearly what arose from several sources, the main course may be said to have arisen from the sudden flow of hard money and the large importation of foreign goods.

The reason that money was so plenty in New England States, and particularly in Massachusetts was, that the French fleet after the close of the war came upon our coast in great want of all kinds of provisions which raised the price of them to an unusual height as well as opened a ready market for their sale. The general opinion throughout the country now was, that money and many kinds of goods that were very scarce during the war were now becoming very plenty. The money especially in the hands of the poorer class was seen spent and they seen found them-

Belchertown Defeats Brussels, 58 to 14

The Brussels basket ball team of Thompsonville, Conn., proved to be no match for the Belchertown five in a game played on the town hall floor Saturday night. The Connecticut boys went down to defeat by a 58 to 14 score. Although the score was one-sided, the game was fast and well-played. The visitors were somewhat handicapped by the local playing rules. The home team started scoring early in the game and in the first few minutes of play had scored a half dozen times before the visitors were able to tally. The home team held the lead throughout the entire game.

In the opening minutes of play Emory Grayson, who recently joined the team, sent the ball through the iron hoop for the first basket of the game. This was followed with baskets by Herb Story and a nice, clean shot by Roy Bardwell. Then Sheridan came to the rescue for the visitors by caging a floor goal. The defense of the home team was like a stone wall and the visitors had to rely on long shots.

Story's playing was a feature of the first half for he made a total of 12 points for his team. The visitors missed a few easy shots in the first half and Sheridan, the right forward, seemed to be the only one who could locate the hoop. He caged four baskets, three of them from three-fourths of the length of the floor.

In the second half, the Brussels tried to stage a comeback but were unsuccessful for they scored only once from the floor. Grayson, the husky center, led the attack for the home team and was all over the floor. He had many open chances to shoot, but passed the ball to his mates instead. Grayson was the heaviest scorer of the night, for he had ten baskets to his credit, six of which were made in the second half.

Bardwell and Story were tied with eight baskets apiece, while Austin played a sensational game at back. Sheridan and Kegley starred for the Brussels.

Christmas

It is at Christmas time that we listen to the voice of the angels. It is our custom to discount all stories about angels. We are in the habit of saying that everything that has to do with angels is a bit of fancy or a bit of mythology in which hard headed men place no confidence. We find it hard to believe anything which our eyes cannot see and our hands cannot handle.

But strangely enough at Christmas time we do take seriously the song of the angels when they sang "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men."

There are always two voices speaking to us, the voice from above and the voice from below. The voice from below urges us to place no faith in any voice from the skies. It says,
"It is only a dream, a fancy, an illusion. There is no solid basis for heeding such a voice. Men need to stand on the solid earth and not listen to any airy visionary."

But the voice from above says,
"The voice while far above you is real and enduring. If you listen to the voices from the ground you will despair, you will be engulfed in the cries and agonies of men, you will be dragged down by vengeance and hate. Your only hope is to look up and say with Browning,

"God's in his heaven

All's right with the world."

And the angels say on Christmas day "Peace on earth" and "Good will to men." In a time when there is so much unrest and when society is in such a state that we cannot tell what a day may bring forth, there is all the more reason why we need to listen to the song from the sky.

Markings in the Snow

When the street in dusk is lying,
And the western sky is red,
When the winter day is dying,
With a cold moon overhead,
As we walk along the roadside,
Beneath the shade trees, grey and bare,
As we dream of home's warm fireside,

Of our supper, and our chair,
To the right and left we'll surely see
In the setting sun's last glow,
Fanciful tracings, and faces in glee,
Strange markings in the snow.

Where the obliging blizzard has drifted

Esels so tall and white,
Unknown hands have wantonly rifled
And rent them, and left them a sight
With drawings of "Pa" and of "Techar,"

With "John loves Mabul," and, Gael!
Between etchings of "Ma" and the "Preechur,"

They've got a picture of me.
Though the artists have gone an hour since,

Their names are easy to know,
Because they've left their little footprints
And their markings in the snow.

You laugh and call it silly;
"The sun or the north wind's blow
Will melt or destroy completely
Your markings in the snow!"
Yes, too true, but with all his de-facing

With all the trouble Time can take,
He can never succeed in erasing Impressions the children make.
And if your fame is not so great
That History your name will show,
Why not start before it's too late
And make markings in the snow?

selves in debt, as far as their credit would admit, and generally unpaid.
These circumstances, with several others put together soon rendered money as extraordinarily scarce as it had been plenty. In 1786 the cry of scarcity of money became quite a learning and those who were not distressed, or otherwise most in debt, began to hold town and county conventions, corresponding with each other so as to be as uniform in their proceedings as possible. The amount of their deliberations seemed to be that it was best to stop any sitting of the Courts of Common Pleas as there were an unusual number of cases to be brought before the courts about sitting. When they began to assemble at Northampton within and for the county of Hampshire, a large body of people put themselves under the command of a certain Capt. Day and refused to let them enter the Court House to proceed to business and the Sheriff, though a resolute fellow, did not deem it proper to countermand their orders. They finally concluded, however, to let the Court enter the house and adjourn to some future day. The Court attempted a sitting at Worcester soon after and met with similar success.
As the county conventions of the dissatisfied were not dissolved, but were daily becoming better organized by general meetings, the sending of delegates, etc., they in their wisdom concluded it best to stop the sitting of the Supreme Court. This they very justly concluded would make a general disturbance throughout the Commonwealth and be a serious affair before it ended. They now thought it expedient to make a choice of some officers as Commander in Chief, and others of different grades. The General Court was now sitting in Boston and finding that all legal proceedings had come to a stand, the discontented party increasing in strength and numbers, and all law and government drawing to a close, they thought it necessary without loss of time to raise an army of sufficient force to quell the rioters at one bold stroke, before they gained greater strength. They immediately voted to raise eight thousand men to be properly equipped, and the command given to Gen. Lincoln, an old and experienced officer in the Revolution.

The other officers were selected from the militia appointed for that purpose, also the number of men each Capt. should raise from such towns as were named in their orders.
These troops were raised, equipped and marched to their place of rendezvous at Worcester. Sometime in December I was appointed to take the company raised in the towns of Petersham, Athol and Rutland which was immediately filled by voluntary enlistment. I had enlisted as private soldiers, thirteen old commissioned officers among whom was Gen. Rufus Putnam, in whose regiment I had served during the war of the Revolution. During these transactions Capt. Daniel Shays, Commamder in chief of the opposite party, was not idle. He had collected, it was said, eight or ten thousand men, a part of whom, under the command of Luke Day were somewhere in the vicinity of West Springfield. Another large force commanded by Adam Wheeler collected first at Princeton, from thence marched to New Braintree, while Shays with the main body was in or near the town of Pelham.

While Gen. Lincoln and his troops lay at Worcester, news arrived that Shays with his division was on the march to Springfield to take possession of the Continental stores, arms, ammunition, etc., which were deposited there. Gen. Lincoln marched immediately to Brookfield where he halted for the night. The next day we continued our march for Springfield, and while on the way sometime before noon, we heard that Shays had reached there already and had an encounter with Gen.
Shepherd, who was there guarding the United States property with a detachment of government troops.
We soon met stragglers from Shays' retreating army, among others a sleigh with two or three dead men, who, as a soldier remarked, "poor fellows had their grievances redressed," the redress of grievance being a term much in use among them. It was no small grief that I now recognized in one of the dead, my old friend Spicer, of rattlesnake memory. I had known him as a faithful soldier through the war, and as one who at various times had manifested much affection for me.

Has Contributed Several Ministers

An examination of the records following an inquiry concerning the number of ordained ministers that have gone out from Belchertown in past years, and who have been connected with the Congregational church reveals an almost surprising list of names. Not all the men whose names are given were born in town, but all of them lived some part of their lives here; the names of two who affiliated with the Baptist church are also given. The names of several noted missionaries are included, the most prominent being the Rev. Horatio Bardwell who went to India in 1815, and the Rev. Elijah Coleman Bridgman who graduated at Amherst in 1826 and subsequently went to China.

The list follows, but it may be incomplete and it is subject to correction. So far as known the dates of birth are given.

Boston Poultry Show

Harold Hazen attended the Boston Poultry Show this week and has kindly written for us something regarding it.

On Tuesday I attended the Boston Poultry Show in the Mechanics Building which was its 70th anniversary. There were countless varieties of all breeds and then some.

There were breeders from all over New England who seemed to make the show a place where they bought and sold and took orders for their stock. I was particularly interested in the Rhode Island Reds. Among the principle exhibits was one from the Owen Farms in Vineyard Haven, Mass.

There was one fine cockerel that was attracting a good deal of attention. The sale price was $65. Then they had some for $50, $25 and $10. There was a pen consisting of one cockerel and four hens on which the price was $100.

There were several makers displaying portable poultry houses with many up-to-date devices.

The artificial lighting system seems to be growing in popularity. I have tried this two years and am convinced that it pays. I had a chance to talk with several poultrymen and got from them a lot of useful information.

There were exhibits of incubators, poultry feeds of all kinds and all sorts of appliances used in connection with poultry raising. There were also baby chicks. I think they would pass as early birds for this time of the year.

Watch Night Service

Watch night services were held in the M. E. church Wednesday evening. Holy communion was observed at 8 o'clock. Rev. Don I. Patch assisted the Federated pastor, Rev. H. P. Rankin, and made appropriate remarks. At the close of the communion service a social hour was enjoyed in the vestry. The program consisted of selections on the phonograph, songs by the audience, remarks by Rev. Mr. Patch, reading by Newell Booth, tableau, "Wanted: a wife," song by quartet, C. W. Morse, C. F. Aspengren, Mrs. H. A. Hopkins and Miss Bernice Cook, remarks by Harold Booth and Theodore Hazen, presidents of the Young Peoples' societies.

During a brief interlude refreshments were served. Then followed a reading by Miss Alice Booth, song, Crossing the Bar, C. F. Aspengren; remarks by Robert Drummond, solo.

A Happy New Year

1920 cannot be a new year if we take into it our failures and mistakes. Anything that caused havoc with us this past year will do the same thing the coming year.

If 1920 is to be a new year, we must leave at the threshold of it any vain regrets. Of course the past year has been far from perfect and we can see how we have made countless mistakes. But if we lug these vain regrets into the new year, they will prove to be burdensome luggage which will make the new year an old one.

If 1920 is to be a new year, we must leave at the threshold all insidious envy. We have found that if we were envious of our neighbor because he had more wealth, a better position, a higher social standing, it only darkened our lives. 1920 will be an old year if we take insidious envy along with us.

Neither can 1920 be a Happy Year if we take into it ill will. As malice destroyed our happiness in 1919, so will it make the cup of life exceeding bitter in 1920. Malice is one of the deadliest of poisons and is sure to result in something worse than death. All malice should be buried with the old year.

If 1920 is to be a Happy Year, impatience must be left behind. For a man this coming year will fail to be happy if he is impatient with his neighbor because he does not think as he thinks or see as he sees.

We wish all our readers a Happy New Year, which we know it will be if they take into it generosity and courtesy, openmindedness and good will, self-control and courage.

On our arrival at Springfield we found that Shays had made a rapid retreat towards Pelham, and Gen. Shepherd gave us the following account of the battle, if it could be termed such. Shays and his army were found to be rapidly marching over the plains to Springfield where the Continental stores were deposited and guarded by Gen. Shepherd, who immediately sent one of his aides with a flag to inform Shays that if he advanced any further he should be fired upon. He returned no answer, but continued marching more rapidly towards Shepherd, who then ordered his field pieces to be loaded, some with balls and some with grape shot, and when within reach of the guns he ordered one of the field pieces to be fired over the heads of the insurgents, which was quickly done, but they only quickened their march, instead of halting as he had hoped they would do. Another piece was then ordered with as good aim as possible at the main body. This had the desired effect, a rapid and disorderly retreat, leaving their dead and one mortally wounded on the field. Gen. Shepherd remarked to me that at no time in his life was he ever called upon to perform so painful a duty, as when he ordered good aim to be taken at Shays and his men, many of whom had fought at his side, and stood firm through the most trying scenes of the late war. I had served in the company of Shays, and knew him to be a brave and good soldier, or officer, and I can truly say that it was with no regret on my part that I had not reached here in season to see him and his mistaken followers fired upon as enemies.

While Shays was advancing upon Springfield, Capt. Day had collected a considerable force on the opposite side of the river at West Springfield to reinforce Shays, if necessary. Therefore as soon as Lincoln's men had taken some refreshments, we crossed the river to call Capt. Day to an account for his acts and deeds, but on our arrival, we found that he, in his wisdom had thought best to disband all his troops, and that neither he nor his kinsmen were to be found. We next marched to Old Hadley thinking it possible that Day might collect his men and attempt to join at Pelham. Here we remained two or three days, to refresh us and wait for our artillery and stores to overtake us. About the third day of our tarry in Hadley, at sunset we received orders to march immediately as we supposed for Pelham, but the fact was that Gen. Lincoln had received information that Shays had left Pelham and was on his way to Petersham. We left immediately, late as it was. The weather was comfortably warm but about ten or twelve o'clock in the night the wind changed to the northwest, blew furiously accompanied by a violent snow squall and became intolerably cold. The snow was deep, though a fine sleigh path would have made good travelling, had it not been that our artillery was in front with the wheels so much wider than the path that the road was filled with the loose snow which rendered the travelling as uncomfortable as can well be imagined. We reached Petersham about sunrise next morning, tired, hungry and frozen, having travelled in the course of the night thirty miles, the hardest march I ever endured. I found myself badly frost bitten, and I found but two in my whole company who were not more or less frozen. Shays being informed that Gen. Lincoln was close in his rear, thought it best to leave town, and so rapid were his movements that many left their provisions and some on the fire, preparing for breakfast. Our quarter-master had gone in front of us to look out houses to lodge in, so when we reached the main street we had only to take possession of such as were pointed out to us, some of which were still occupied by Shays' men, who soon left, and gave us a peaceful entrance, and never were a good fire and breakfast enjoyed more highly by any set of men. The main body of Shays' troops marched through the town to the northern bounds which pass thru a valley, and were in a measure out of the cold wind. Here they made a halt probably to consider what was best to be done, either to make a firm stand and give Gen. Lincoln battle, or to make a final retreat. It appears that they chose the latter as they returned to their homes.

Their place of halting, as mentioned above, was directly in front of my house, where my family then were, and it may be supposed felt themselves in a very unpleasant situation, as it was well-known that I was out in Lincoln's army, and of course unfriendly to Shays. Of course they had reason to expect some abuse from them. My wife was at this time confined by illness to her chamber, but with her usual presence of mind she told the young man living with her to make a good fire in each room in the house, as soon as she saw their intention of halting and to bring from her cellar and pantry everything she had prepared to offer them for breakfast. The house was soon filled to overflowing with men half starved and half frozen, among whom was a Mr. Converse, now quarter-master, an acquaintance of ours. My wife sent for him and told him she had done all in her power for their relief and comfort and hoped that he would see that they did no damage to the house. He assured her that he was very grateful and that as far as possible he would comply with her request which he strictly did and after eating and warming themselves to their satisfaction they departed having done no damage save clearing the house of every eatable thing.

Days on Belcher's Hill

Extract from letter recently received from Lewis P. Curtis of Marlboro, Mass. Some of the older readers of the Sentinel may remember Mr. Curtis, the son of Rev. Moses Curtis, and the only remaining member of that large family.

Mr. Curtis, as his letter shows, retains his mental vigor to a remarkable degree, although he is eighty-five years of age and somewhat impaired in health.

"... I cannot think of Belchertown without bringing back days of old, as well as the friends of today. And there are other ties which bind me there, for in your beautiful resting place for the dead, in a quiet corner where the first rays of the rising sun gild their grassy mounds, lie all that was mortal of so many of a once happy family.

All gone! I, alone, stand this side the river.

"For I dearly love old Belcher's hill That knew my earlier days, I dearly love each street and lane And all her winding ways.

I dearly love at hush of day When all around is still, To sit and dream those days again, Those days on Belcher's hill.

I love to see those youths I knew, As they pass to and fro, No older now than in those days, Those days so long ago.

I love to clasp the vanished hand; With joy my breast is filled To see again the loving eye, To hear the voice that's stilled.

Gently the years have passed with me But, oh! it is a joy To be with mem'ry's kindly aid Once more a care-free boy."

ROMANTIC STORY OF AMBER

Why Lithuanians Are Convinced the Sea Has Been Known to Give Up Its Dead.

Originally the earth was a white-hot mass of gaseous vapor. That was long ago for even the oldest inhabitants to remember, because the heat was so intense that there was no such thing as an inhabitant on the earth. The only way we know it is by seeing other planets so young that they are still nothing but unbelievably hot gas. After a while the earth cooled off a bit. Instead of gas, it was a solid mass, but white-hot still—then red-hot—then cool enough to allow some primitive form of vegetable life. Before long, in about a million years or so, the earth became cool enough to have a flourishing vegetable garden on its surface.

Some parts of the earth continued to develop until Adam and Eve came on the scene. Lithuania, the new Baltic republic, had just about reached the Adam-and-Eve stage when it got blown out of sight. The whole country literally disappeared. It was covered by the sea.

There is a common belief that the sea never gives up its dead. It isn't true. Any Lithuanian will tell you so. For the sea not only withdraws, but it withdraws. It left Lithuania a sea without price. And it was, that glowing golden jewel of delight, the Baltic coast of Lithuania. In fact, is the only place in the world where mummy can get the amber which goes into the beautiful necklace she covets so much.

Why Country Should Get Busy.

Millions and miles are the only terms big enough to measure America's exports to Europe now. Bathtubs come into the mileage class with 1,183 tubs—about two miles of 'em. Then there are the ten miles of fly paper and more than a thousand miles of movie film which have gone across in the last five months.
But chewing gum is at the head of the class, for if the sticks we exported since the armistice were placed end to end they would reach from here to Paris, some 3,500 miles, and approximately 735,000,000 chews.

This is just a beginning of our reconstruction by the mile, for Europe wants American goods, and in the language of the doughboy, she wants them "the tooter the sweeter."—Adelaid Lyons in World Outlook.

How Rubber Industry Grows.

The process of turning the milk-like sap of the rubber trees into the hard material familiar to every one is a lengthy one, but as an industry it is growing every year.
In the calendar year 1918, for instance, the United States Rubber company sold more than $215,998,425 worth of rubber and rubber products surpassing its sales of the preceding year by more than $30,000,000, according to the annual report which has just been made public, which gives some idea of what the "rubber industry" really means in the world of trade.

How England Honors Nurses.

Honors paid to Edith Cavell have brought to light the fact that England delights to honor women who give their best to the profession of nursing. The first statue in the country raised to a woman, other than royalty, was that of Dorothy Pattison in Walsall as a memorial for her work during the smallpox epidemic in Staffordshire in 1807, while a figure of Florence Nightingale stands in Waterloo place. This statue was, on the day of the homecoming of Edith Cavell's body, profusely decorated with handsome wreaths from an unknown donor.

Santa Claus

Lines written by Alice Elsie Pratt of Amherst, age 8 yrs., 7 mos.

The summer days are all gone past,
And the snow flakes are falling fast.
Soon Santa Claus will come with toys,
For good little girls and little boys.

Ting, ting, ting, I hear the sleigh bells ring.
It is old Santa and what will he bring?

Dolls and dishes for girls and for boys
Sleds, and balls, and jackknives and other small toys,

To make them happy and jolly and gay,
This beautiful, wonderful Christmas day.

Wins Second Prize in County

Miss Erhart of the Farm bureau announced Wednesday evening that Miss Alice Randall of the Blue Meadow district had won 2nd prize in Hampshire county in canning club work.

Belchertown Too Fast For Westfield Five.

The Belchertown basketball team, after losing three straight games during the past week, the winners being the Fiberoids of Indian Orchard, the Whip City Reserves of Westfield, and the West Warren five, climbed aboard the winning side last Saturday night when the Whip City Reserves of Westfield were taken into camp on the Town hall floor by a score of 43 to 29. The home team held the lead all through the game, although the visitors staged a comeback in the last half and at one time were trailing by a four-point margin. The playing of Buck Davis and Em Grayson featured for the home team while the Fouché brothers starred for the losers.

Grayson opened the scoring with a double deker and Davis followed with a beautiful shot. Fairchild then tossed in his first basket of the game and the home team took the lead never to have it taken away from them. The half time period whistle found the Belchertown five on the long end of a 23 to 13 tally.

The Westfield five staged a comeback when the last half opened, and baskets by O'Rourke, Hebert and M. Fouché soon found the visitors to be but four points behind the home clan.

With the score 33 to 29, Belchertown started to spurt. Grayson sunk a basket and was followed with baskets by Davis and Austin. Grayson and Davis again came across with a double-decker apiece, which ended the night's scoring. The playing of the home team in the last few minutes proved to be too much for the visitors, for they were held scoreless while the winners dropped in five twin counters.

The officers of Union grange, with the exception of lecturer, were installed Tuesday evening by Rev. C. H. Smith, assisted by Mrs. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graves, all of Granby. There were about fifty present, including Mr. and Mrs. Fred Buckland of Granby, and guests from this town.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. It is hoped that Mrs. Howard, lecturer elect, who with her family has had so much sickness in the past few weeks, will be able to be present at the next meeting which is to be Rally night.

Death of Mrs. Mary Stone

Mrs. Mary Stone, age 75, died Sunday morning at the home of August Fresh, after a two weeks' illness. Mrs. Stone came here from Chicopee and has lived many years in town. She has owned both the Ansel Barnes and Sam Ward farms. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. McElroy of Springfield. The funeral was held in the chapel Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin, officiating. Burial was in South cemetery.

O. E. S. Installation

O. E. S. officers for 1920 were installed Wednesday evening by Past Matron, Mrs. Ella Ward, Past Patron, M. G. Ward, Past Matron, Mrs. Barton as chaplain, and Past Matron, Mrs. Evelyn R. Ward as Marshal.

The officers installed were: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Eva Bagge; Worthy Patron, E. A. Randall; Ass't. Matron, Mrs. Maud Aspengren; Sec., Mrs. Maria Ripley; Treas., Mrs. Ella Ward; Conductress, Mrs. Geraldine Howard; Ass't. Cond., Mrs. Ninfia Collard; Chaplain, Mrs. Barton; Marshal, Mrs. Jennie Walker; Organist, Mrs. Doris Squires; Ada, Mrs. Nettie Allen; Bath, Mrs. Ella Hunt; Eather, Mrs. Emma Shaw; Martha, Mrs. Gertrude Randall; Elects, Mrs. Minnie Torwilliger; Warden, Mrs. Annie Austin; Sentinel, Carl Aspengren.

County Leaders Speak

After the supper at the chapel Wednesday evening, county leaders Miss Erhart and A. H. MacDougall of the Farm Bureau spoke. Miss Erhart described the activities of the clubs in Hampshire county and stated that the records showed that in Belchertown the number who had enrolled in the various clubs were as follows: home economics 6, corn 1, potato 1, garden 3, canning 23, pig 33, poultry 1, onion 2.

Her announcement that Miss Alice Randall had won second prize in Hampshire county for canning club work was enthusiastically received.

Miss Erhart described the object of the young people's movement, stating that the four "H's" on the four-leafed clover pins meant Heart, Hand, Head and Health; Heart for kindness and sympathy, Hand for usefulness and helpfulness, Head for thinking, planning and reasoning, and Health for resisting disease, enjoying life and becoming more efficient.

County agent A. H. MacDougall followed with remarks relative to work in the county and the possibilities in Belchertown. He said that it would be a good idea for those in both ends of the county to get the viewpoint of these in the other end by attending the various field meetings. People limited to their own locality, he said, were apt to become knockers. He compared the conditions in the East and West. In the former, the soil is not as heavy but the markets are nearer, a thing which should be born in mind. Produce here can be taken direct to the consumers whereas in the West the markets are hundreds of miles away and the crops have to pass through many hands.

Mr. MacDougall said that Belchertown has one of the greatest futures which must depend on its agricultural development. We must do things as a community. We must have more definite plans regarding town development. We must have more prosperous farms, better home surroundings, and every condition in which to bring up children with the idea that their hopes lie in the country.

With the increased cost of fertilizer, feed, labor and machinery, there (continued on page 4)

The Work of Repairing

If we make a better world in 1920, we must ever be busily engaged in the work of repair. It was good advice the wise man gave when he urged us "to keep our friendships in repair."

Friendship is only one of the things we should keep in repair. We need to keep our body in repair. Our eating and drinking and sleeping and exercising should be done with a view to repairing the tired nerves and worn-out tissues.

And there is repairing in the world. There are always mischief makers in every community who are stirring up dissension and strife. The world needs peace makers who will sow seeds of good will.

the smouldering fire before the flame arises. There are those who are experts in manufacturing friction. We need men who can transform friction into energy.

The Girl Scouts

There are girls that make us gloomy; There are girls that make us gay. There are girls forever being backward;

Did you know that the National Girl Scout organization is starting a publicity campaign this month? The purpose is to arouse an intelligent interest in Scouting.

I have heard the question; Is Scouting worth all this trouble and fuss? It is not a difficult question.

You may find the answer in the ranks of clear-eyed, true-hearted Scouts—thousands of them—throughout America. Scouting is worth the serious consideration of earnest people.

The requirements and aims of the organization have been published previously in the Sentinel. Suffice it now to remind you that Scouting requires of a girl honor and loyalty, courtesy and kindness, purity, obedience, and cheerfulness.

Of course you know that there is a Scout troop in town. It was started last October, and there are now fourteen fully-qualified Scouts in the Pine Cone Troop of Belchertown.

unlearned to act as leaders in as many communities. Why not have a club in your town and enjoy a profitable winter?

The club runs 4 months instead of 3. Dates January 1-May 1. Members who have completed first year work and won the bronze pin have the chance to select the second year and earn a silver pin as in the canning club.

Either bread or sewing must be selected as the major, not both. No record of time need be kept of these, but 50 hours of housework requires a record sheet.

The first year's work includes two simple garments and five pairs of stockings darned, or 15 bakings of bread (2 loaves at a time).

All take the housework. The second year's work has been selected to require more skill but not more time. This should make it interesting to high school girls.

Housework is cut down to 40 hours. In addition, the helping in cooking and serving of 12 meals aids to teach good housekeeping and comes with both majors as does the housework.

must be closer attention paid to decreasing the cost of production. It is a question of making the farm a business proposition.

Speaking of dairying he said that some of the best herds in the county were to be found in Belchertown, but that we must not simply have a man here and there excellent. All must be at it. It had been proven, he said, that some cows could produce milk for 6c, others 12c so that there must be no hit or miss breeding.

Regarding fruit work, he illustrated in like manner, stating that the fame of Belchertown was scattered all over New England because two or three of its fruit growers produced the highest quality of fruit and knew how to select it. He felt as though the balance of the town was not living up to the reputation of these few. South Amherst and some other communities with poorer land are forging ahead. He advocated setting out 10 acres of trees on a 20 to 30 cow farm.

Guild Supper

After a round of suppers of varying names, the Social Guild served an old fashioned baked bean supper in the chapel Wednesday evening, proving thereby that the baked bean is king.

Miss Marion Bardwell and Mrs. Thomas Allen entertained their respective classes in Sunday School at one of the tables and provided unique favors in the way of paper caps for the occasion. A miniature Christmas tree, electrically illuminated, reminded them that Santa Claus hung the invitations to the supper on the recent S. S. Christmas tree.

The entertainment following the supper consisted of: Song, chorus;

New Articles in the Warrant

While we have not the exact wording of the new articles in the warrant for the coming town meeting, they may be briefly summarized as follows:

An article to see if the town will raise and appropriate money to employ a nurse for the remainder of the year.

An article to see if the town will raise and appropriate $125 for an adding machine for the use of town officials.

An article to see if the town will borrow $28,000 in anticipation of taxes. (This is exactly the amount named last year and it is the first year in some time that it has not been increased.)

An article to see if the town will raise and appropriate a sufficient amount of money to shingle and make necessary repairs at the town farm.

An article to see if the town will pay for the transportation of pupils attending the B. H. S. from the South end.

An article to see if the town will name some of its streets after its World war soldiers.

An article to see if the town will raise and appropriate $75 to be expended by the Chauncey D. Walker post of the American Legion for Memorial Day. (The G. A. R. anticipate turning over the Memorial Day responsibilities to the younger men.)

An article to see if the town will raise and appropriate money for an Old Home day celebration to be held some time during the present year.

An article to see if the town will raise and appropriate $1,000 for permanent repairs on the Bonds-ville-Belchertown road, beginning at the Franklin school house and working toward the milk station. (Petition signed by 16 men from the South end.)

Grange Notes

On account of town meeting coming on the 2nd of February the program for Feb. 3 will be exchanged for that of January 20, so that the subject next Tuesday evening will be "What benefit is derived from domestic science and manual training in the schools? Timely topics for town meeting."

Ramblers Play Here Tomorrow Night

Basket ball will be resumed here tomorrow night after a few weeks' layoff, when the Belchertown basket ball team will stack up against the Ramblers of Mittineague in the Town hall. The game should be a hummer, as the Mittineague five has made a good showing in the games it has played this season.

The Ramblers' outfit is composed of Phil Keefe, former West Springfield High school player; Morley, former Westfield High player; Jenks, former Commercial High player; Cavanaugh, former Suffield school star, while Daley and Edgerton have played with amateur fives in this vicinity.

The home team has strengthened for the occasion with the addition of Em Grayson who is playing with the Turners Falls Athletics of the Interstate league.

Creating an Atmosphere

We have not learned yet how to change the weather, or the winds, or the thermometer. So far we have not these forces under our control.

But it is within our power to change the atmosphere of the real life of a community. We have often noticed how the entrance of a single person into a room changes the atmosphere of the entire room. One man in a public gathering has often caused everyone to be depressed. Another has made everyone jubilant.

One man by repeating rumors which are not well founded can work great mischief and can create an atmosphere of distrust. Another man can create an atmosphere of confidence and good will.

There are always plenty of people in any place who are constantly looking on the dark side of things and scattering pessimism and fear. They work a deal of mischief and are often troublesome and dangerous.

The foundation of all true civilization rests on confidence. We should create an atmosphere where men shall trust each other. Each one of us has a part in shaping public opinion. Each man either aggravates or alleviates the present tension in society.

The same principle holds true in international relations. If one nation fails to enter into a League, that nation helps to foster distrust and suspicion. Every nation entering the League will aid in the creation of an international atmosphere of good will.

Autobiography of a Gold Ring

Composition by John Volanchis, Grade VII, Union School.

I am a ring. I am made of gold. I first came from a high mountain. Some men dug me out of my place and I was glad to get out of that gloomy home into the light and sunshine. Then I was put into a little car and shipped out of the tunnel. The tunnel was dark but the men had little lights on the top of their caps. This light comes from carbide gas. After I got out of the tunnel I found myself in open air. Then I was put into a bag with a lot of my friends and tied very tightly and locked. This was so if anyone should get the bag he could not open it unless he had the key. After I was put in the bag, I was thrust into a bigger car. I did not like to stay in that bag because it was so dark. Then the car sped merrily along. All of a sudden I felt a jerk and I was in somebody's hand. Then I was carried about 10 miles away to a city. I was in the hands of a ring maker. He untied the bag and took all of my friends and me out and put us into a box. But we did not stay there very long. He took me out and melted me and put another fellow named Copper with me. Then I was made into a ring. One of my friends was made into a part of a bracelet, another into a part of a watch. They stuck a diamond in the top of my head. I was put into a showcase with a card near me and on it read, "14 carat gold ring with genuine diamond $50.75." I stood there a long time.

SAVE MONEY EVERY DAY AT PHILLIPS'

$20,000, But Really $12,000

That the public may fully understand why $20,000 is the amount recommended to be raised for the schools this year, we quote by request, what the school committee says about it in their forthcoming annual report.

That the voters of the town may thoroughly understand the reason why the school committee have asked for so large an appropriation, it seems best to briefly explain some of the laws recently passed by the legislature that apply to school matters.

First a law went into effect Jan. 1, 1919, making the minimum salary of all teachers $550. To meet this requirement it was necessary to raise the pay of all our teachers from $100 to $300, making a total for all of about $2,000. Later the Chamberlain bill was passed, setting aside most of the income tax for the use of the schools. Under the provisions of this bill, we receive nothing from the state if we continue to pay the minimum salary of $550, while if we raise the pay of each teacher to $650, we receive from the state $300 a year for each teacher.

The committee accordingly voted Sept. 1 to raise the salary to $650. Thus by paying $100 more than the minimum, we receive from the state $300, making a net gain to the town of $200 for each teacher. Having complied with the provisions of the law the town will receive from the state in 1920 about $5,000.

In previous years your committee have asked for an appropriation, which united with receipts from other sources would enable them to carry on the work of the schools. Last year, for instance, $13,400 was appropriated and $4,764.14 received from other sources. This year the committee planned to ask for an appropriation of $12,000, a decrease of $1,400 from the appropriation made last year.

A few weeks ago we received from the Commissioner of Education a letter from which the following quotation is made.

"May I suggest that school authorities request the town to appropriate a sufficient amount to run the schools for the entire year and, at the same time furnish a statement showing the amounts the town may expect to receive as reimbursement on account of existing laws relating to education. These amounts will be used by assessors in fixing the tax rate so that the actual amount required to be raised by local taxation for school purposes will be the difference between the amount requested and the estimated receipts."

In compliance with this request we ask for $20,000 and give the following estimate of receipts.

Shays' Rebellion

As I before observed where we arrived in the main street in Petersham we found houses provided for us. The one assigned to me was near at hand, with a good fire in it, and we began to thaw our frozen ears and toes when we were informed that a part of the house was still filled with Shays' men. We were not yet in good fighting order; however, after we had in a measure come to a sense of feeling I thought I would look a little to our neighbors but on inquiry found that they had all left immediately on our arrival, and had retreated so hastily that the officers left their swords and the soldiers their fire-arms. They generally returned home, though some went further for their safety. I observed that we enjoyed our breakfast, and it will be believed that I needed, as well as I wished mine when I state that I had performed this long march in the cold without a morsel of supper the night before. I was engaged at a court martial in Hadley when orders arrived for our speedy march, and when I returned, my company were all ready to march. But this was not my first lesson in fasting nor did it prove my last, as my story will tell you.

About noon after Gen. Lincoln's troops were comfortably settled in their quarters it was reported that a company of Shays' men were quartered in a house in the southerly part of the town. I was ordered to take my company with a sufficient number of sleighs, and bring them immediately to headquarters. I proceeded about two and a half miles, and found that they were in a house about two hundred rods from the road. Here I made a halt and sent a Serj. by way of a flag, and informed the Capt. that he was requested to march to our quarters. The Sergeant returned saying the Capt. would send an answer. They soon concluded to surrender, harnessed their horses, loaded their baggage, and came to us saying they were now all ready to go where they were required. We now marched to Gen. Lincoln's quarters when I informed him that I had brought the men as ordered. I introduced him to Capt. Footé, the commander, and after the usual civilities were passed, Gen. Lincoln asked him what he now wished to do. He replied that his most earnest wish was to return home to his company. The Gen. replied "that is the very best thing you can do, and I earnestly wish it also," adding "if you need provisions, or sleighs to carry you I will furnish them; you are now at liberty to depart." They bade the Gen. and all of us a friendly farewell, with their eyes filled with tears of joy and gratitude. I believe it is very seldom that we see so many men so completely happy as they were. They would be the last men that would raise their hands a second time against the government.

Finally a rich man bought me. He took me home and I was put into a jewelry case. Then he attached to it a little card which read, "For Mrs. Everett for a Christmas present. Wishing you a Merry Christmas."

I was put into a package and he took me to a post office. At the top of the package he placed a stamp. Then I heard a car roar just as it did before and I was put into a train. I was carried by a mail man into a house where there was a lady. She opened the package and took me out and put me on her finger. I fitted it just right, and she was very glad.

She had two children whom she called Kate and Alice. Their mother put me on her bureau. Then she went into the kitchen and told her two girls to take care of the house. They did, but they went into her room and started to play there. One of them spied me and took me. They began to play with me and soon they lost me. Then they began to cry. When their mother came home they told her that they had lost her new present and she was very angry. She gave them a whipping and sent them to bed. Then she looked for me but could not find me. I was there a year, away in a dark corner.

This family moved out and a new family moved in. One day a little boy found me. I was all covered with dust but the boy wiped it off and gave me to his mother. The mother was very glad and gave the boy a quarter. One day she was going to a reception and she lost me.

News has been received that the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Pease of Rhinbeck, N. Y., was burned to the ground Christmas night between 6 and 7 o'clock. The family were all at supper, and when the fire was discovered, all upstairs was afire. It caught from a defective chimney, and evidently smoldered between the floor and ceiling for a long time before it broke out. The family all got out safely and a good deal of the downstairs furniture was saved. All upstairs was destroyed. The loss was very heavy, but the family have much to be thankful for. At present all are at the home of a good neighbor.

Don't Forget the Meeting

Special attention is called to the Board of Trade meeting in Engine house hall next Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock, when the town reports, which were issued Wednesday, will be discussed, and explanations made by town accountant, Wm. E. Shaw. A similar meeting last year was quite acceptable to the citizens and should be this year.

Married in Amherst

A wedding of interest to Belchertown people took place in Amherst Wednesday when Miss Georgianna F. Marsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Marsh, formerly of this town, was married to Albert H. Jacques of Amherst by Rev. S. Paul Jefferson of the Baptist church. Only the immediate relatives of the couple were present. After a short wedding trip they will make their home in Amherst.

Elects Officers

The Federated Sunday School has elected the following officers for 1920:

Supt., Victor Blackmer; 1st asst., E. C. Howard; 2nd asst., J. V. Cook; sec'y, Harry Aldrich; asst. sec'y, Miss Edith Towne; treas., Harold Booth; asst. treas., L. H. Blackmer; supt. primary dept., Miss Marion Bartlett.

Grange Notes

There was a fair attendance, considering the weather, at the regular meeting of Union grange Tuesday evening. The session was an interesting one with spirited old-time discussions on town meeting topics.

Last evening the Grange served a supper in Grange hall to a sleighing party of the O. E. S. from Amherst.

Will Give Card Parties

The Community club is making arrangements for a series of card parties to be held, Jan. 28, Feb. 9, and Feb. 25. These will be held in Firemen's hall at 8 p. m.

Milk Producers' Meeting

The New England Milk Producers' Association will have a meeting Friday afternoon in the Town hall at 1.30. Mr. Lull of Worcester and Mr. Morrow of Vt. will be the speakers. All those who are interested in better prices for milk are urged to attend.

Will you Help the Girl Scouts?

Scouting in Belchertown is a new venture, and as yet has not made itself widely known about town. Scouting in America, however, is a well established movement. The National Organization is asking for funds to carry on the work all over the country, to equip camps for girls and training-camps for leaders. We are not soliciting here in town, being a little bashful on account of the extreme youth of our Scout Troop. Nevertheless, we will cordially welcome contributions. If anyone who is willing to give, will send the money next week to any of the scout officers in town (Miss Ella Stebbins, Miss Coon or Miss Perry) they will gratefully forward it to headquarters. J. M. Perry

Grosbeaks in Town

A flock of evening grosbeaks has been seen in town a number of times recently. "Except in winter they are rare anywhere in the United States and east of the Mississippi they can only be regarded as accidental even in the winter." So says Chester A. Reed in his bird book.

Declines Nomination

Charles Austin has declined the nomination for selectman.

To Hold Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Belchertown volunteer fire department will be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 10. Officers for the coming year will be elected and a full attendance is desired.

Need of Building

Two weeks ago we spoke of our duty to repair. Today let us write of a pleasanter task, the work of building.

And the best place to begin is with one's self. Every man should dream large and wonderful things concerning the structure he is going to erect in 1920.

SENSATIONS IN LOST LIMBS

Why Persons Who Have Suffered Amputation Should Experience These Is Hard to Reason.

It is a fact, perhaps unfamiliar to the average reader, that the illusion of "phantom limbs"—to borrow a felicitous expression from Dr. Weir Mitchell—far from being rare or exceptional, is almost universal among persons who have undergone an amputation.

One of the best discussions of this topic is that given by Weir Mitchell in his book, "Injuries of Nerves," published in 1872. The literature, however, goes back to the sixteenth century, when the phenomenon was well described by Ambroise Pare.

The fact that a great deal has been written on this subject does not, by any means, imply that it is widely familiar. We confess, says the Scientific American, to being consumed with curiosity to know why the great war has not brought forth a flood of stories concerning pains and other sensations in missing limbs.

Why Picture Will Be Hung

By merely hanging the picture of a dog the Scottish national galleries may acquire a very substantial portion of a fortune estimated at $350,000.

The Snow Message

The snow has fallen so pure and white And clothes the fields with a robe so bright, One scarcely can think there e'er could be A vision more fair for eyes to see.

Make they only a picture for thee, These fields like unto a crystal sea, Or does the storm wind on them rewrite A message of love in letters white?

I read there rewrit from pages old, Sweet words of grace more precious than gold: "White as the snow shall scarlet sins be," This the winter field's message to me.

"White as the snow." The new-fallen snow, It maketh dull hearts with hope to glow. O how wonderful, how can it be, Such riches of grace for you and me!

At this time it was proposed by Government to disband the army and raise a regiment by voluntary enlistment to serve six months, unless sooner discharged, and officers commissioned for that purpose. Gen. Mitchell was appointed commander and urged me to take a Maj.'s commission, but I considered the affair pretty much settled and preferred returning home. After a campaign of about six weeks I returned to my farm safe and sound. In the course of the season many who were leaders in the rebellion were forced to give bonds for their appearance before the Supreme Court which would sit in Worcester in the following Sept., and some few were imprisoned. At the sitting of the Court I was chosen and sent Grand jurymen. This turned out to be a long, disagreeable job. I ought to here observe that Government had appointed two commissioners, Gen. Lincoln and Otis Allen, who were invested with authority to pardon all whom they thought proper, which finally terminated in a pretty general pardon, with very few exceptions. The mild measures taken by Government were the best that could have been proposed to bring back these erring and mistaken men to a sense of their duty, and make them good citizens of the State for the future. The regiment I before observed was raised for six months, marched to the county of Berkshire, where the rebels had become troublesome to the peaceable inhabitants, but they were soon brought to order with but little difficulty and in the course of the season the regiment disbanded. There ended the famous "Shays' Rebellion," more happily than we expected at the first outbreak.

I would observe there are many things to be considered before we condemn the misled followers of Daniel Shays. Their leaders were ignorant, and many of them deceived, and our government was a new,

We remained in town but a few days, when we were ordered to the town of Barre, where nothing of consequence transpired, unless I mention a scouting party sent back to Petersham. We had been at Barre but a few days when the report reached us that a number of the inhabitants of our town who were out in Shays' army had returned. A number of our men volunteered at once and wished to go and see how they conducted themselves. Some of the volunteers being rather high bucks, our Col. desired me to go with them. We accordingly set off and sometime in the evening (quite late) arrived in town, where we found the men peaceable and quiet in their own homes. Some of our party had gone in ahead of us to the house of a Mr. Joe Gallante who had been a conspicuous character in the rebellion. They found him in bed, ordered him up immediately, told him he must go to headquarters to be tried by a court martial, and probably hung. The poor fellow was panic stricken, notwithstanding his having been an old soldier. On my arrival he sprang to me for protection, and begged me not to suffer him to be abused. I told him he should not be ill used, that he might stay at home in peace, and if required must give bonds for his appearance at the next Supreme Court. The assurance made the poor fellow quite cheery, and after receiving a thousand thanks I left him. One thing operated in his favor with me. He had been in the Revolution in the same company with me and had fought like a good fellow, which I had not forgotten, if he had. We all returned the same night, without doing any further mischief and but very little good. From Barre we marched to Rutland.

Discuss Town Affairs

The Board of Trade meeting on Monday evening proved to be quite a clearing house for ideas. Town affairs were discussed by the large number present in quite vigorous fashion, and while all sorts of opinions were advanced, there seemed a genuine desire to get at the truth.

As on all occasions, the roads came in for their share of comment. Some said that the spending of the money this past year under the small towns act had brought no lasting results, and they failed to see the wisdom of appropriating any money for a like purpose this year. Others maintained that it would be suicide not to do so. Times have changed, and whereas practically all traffic used to be local, autos and trucks from all over the state now use our roads and will continue to do so whether we repair them or not. All confessed that it had been a bad year and some thought that we were lucky to hold our own. It was the opinion of nearly all that $1.00 towards repairing roads today was no better than 30 or 40 cents in pre-war times. The fact was disclosed at the meeting that the state stands ready to furnish $3,000 this year if the town appropriates $4,400.

Regarding the article concerning an appropriation of $1,000 for the improvement of the road near the Franklin school house, arguments were advanced that the best markets the town has are in the villages to the south and that it is the direct route to the Boston post road. The chairman of the school committee took occasion to explain to the gathering the meaning of the large school appropriation asked for and stated that the amount now expected from the Mass. school fund is $4,579, a sum much larger than was originally expected. This makes the total estimated receipts $11,219.

Discussion regarding the possibility of repairing the town clock, disclosed the fact that the selectmen are having the matter investigated and will probably report at the annual meeting.

The article regarding the employment of a nurse for the remainder of the year called forth some discussion. Dr. J. L. Collard answered questions which were in the minds of the audience.

Life in Armenia

AS SEEN BY A NATIVE

The United Young Peoples' societies had the pleasure on Sunday evening of listening to a paper on life in Armenia, written especially for the occasion by Mrs. M. H. Jejeian, a native of that country. Armenia is in the most dangerous situation of any country and is seeking the mandate of America. Because of this fact and of the paper's own worth we pass along the article written by Mrs. Jejeian. It was first written in Armenian and then translated with painstaking care into English, a process which took considerable of her time.

My Dear Christian Friends:

It is with great pleasure to me that you have offered me an opportunity to come and tell you some interesting facts about my unfortunate people. I am very sorry that I could not come in person on account of the severe weather but cheerfully I will send you the message.

The society you have here is the nearest and the dearest to my heart and soul in which I have labored 20 long years, a best part of my life, while I was in Euphrates College, in Armenia, as a student and a teacher.

We had a Y. P. S. C. E. and used to hold meetings as you do here, and once a month we used to have missionary meetings in which we used to receive various kinds of reports from different countries, for instance, China, Japan, Africa and India. I must say here that what little money which our society could contribute was sent to Africa for the education of two girls. Certainly I find your desires quite natural to want to know something about the conditions and circumstances of the unfortunate people in whom you are interested.

I am sure that you are well acquainted with the name of the Armenian people because it is about a century that the American missionaries have been working among them.

Here I must confess that the establishments of the missionaries have done a great deal of good in education and culture among the Armenians. Armenian people are very docile and ingenious. Time and time again they established schools and the Turkish government destroyed them.

OUR SCHOOLS

Our schools over there in Armenia are in a pitiable condition, especially in the small villages where for most of the time from 30 to 50 little ones will be crowded in a small room dimly lighted, with no desks or benches to sit on. They sit on the earthen floor with curled up legs most of the time, their knees serving as desks. They have though, a kind of a couch to sit on which is something similar to your braided and sewed together rag matting. When they write they sit on the left knee, using their right knee for a desk to support the book on which they write. But one studying in Turkish characters needs no desk because the middle finger of the left hand answers the purpose.

The teacher of such a large number of pupils has to work from 8 to 10 hours a day to hear the recitations of the different classes and for all this hard labor the teacher receives only $4 or $5 a month. I think none of you would like to be either scholar or teacher under such conditions. But the Armenian youths are always hungry for education and there no hardships prevent them from getting it when there is any chance available. Since I have been in the U. S. of America I have met many young people who expressly wish that they were 14 so that they could leave school, and I fear that if the law did not compel them, a good many children would leave the school before they are 10 years old.

ARMENIAN GIRLS

Up to 25 to 30 years ago they used to have the Armenian girls marry as young as 12 to 15 years of age, not because they wished to marry but because the parents compelled them to. My grandmother, who died 15 years ago, was only 13 years older than my father (her son). Certainly this was a great abuse to the poor girl for she never had a chance to enjoy her youth in a pleasant single blessedness, but harnessed prematurely to the cumbersome duties of a household where she may have a cross mother-in-law or other relatives of her husband. Some times her husband may be hard to be suited or may be cruel to her. (certainly there are exceptions to this.)

Glimpses of Hawaii

Rev. C. G. Burnham, at the young peoples' meeting on Sunday evening, gave an interesting description of life in Hawaii as he became acquainted with it during his stay there.

He said that it was just one hundred years ago that the first missionaries were on their way to these islands, arriving there Mar. 31. That day for Hawaii, he said, was the most eventful day in its history, greater than its discovery or its annexation to the United States, for this was the day when men went to annex it to the kingdom of God.

Not all the missionaries have been ministers. Doctors and teachers also went to uplift the people. The three great agencies for their well-being have been the press, the school and the church.

Conditions have changed wonderfully during the passing years. Other races have come in, principally the Japs. The work of the missionaries has been like leaven in the life of the nation. Mr. Burnham preached there six and a half years and found the natives most eager to learn. He said that he was glad for the Hawaiians that prohibition had come about, as one of the last things said to him before he sailed was, "Tell America to send prohibition here to save the Hawaiian people."

Time forbade Mr. Burnham relating more concerning the country with which he is so familiar.

Word has been received of the death in Lowell, Mich., Dec. 28, of Mr. F. P. Hicks. In 1876 he married Miss Emily Dwight of this town who passed away about 8 years ago. Since that time her sister, Miss Maria E. Dwight, who is well known in this town has made her home with him. Mr. Hicks was a prominent G. A. R. man and was chairman in the Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives in his section.

A prayer meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Geo. Witt at seven o'clock.

At a meeting of the committee of management of the Federated church Wednesday evening, it was voted to participate in the evangelistic movement now advocated by the several denominations. It was therefore decided to hold cottage prayer meetings from week to week culminating in special services on every night during the week before Easter.

The Junior class of the B. H. S. are making plans for a supper to be given Feb. 11.

The young peoples' societies of the Federated church gave a supper in the vestry last Friday evening and also served two sleigh-ride parties, one from South Amherst and one from Fairview. The latter delegation, on account of the storm and bad going, did not arrive until quite late. Games were enjoyed after the repast.

Rev. H. P. Rankin, Theodore Hazen, Harold Booth and Herbert Blackmer attended the "Win One" convention in Springfield on Monday.

The High school chorus will assist at the community service Sunday evening.

A cottage prayer meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Witt on Tuesday evening.

Luncheon will be served at the town hall next Monday, town meeting day, by the Community club.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Miller of Springfield were week-end guests of Mrs. Miller's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Atwood. Mrs. Miller is assisting in kindergarden work in Springfield.

The Social Guild will serve a supper in the chapel Wednesday evening, Feb. 4, at 6.30 o'clock.

of some of the voters. He said that Miss Hibbard's work during the past year had been satisfactory and that because of her watchfulness, an epidemic of diphtheria was averted. In cases of sickness he said she was expected, on request of the attending physician, to visit the homes, spending such time as the necessity of the case demanded and her time would allow. He said that families in the south part of the town, those connected with the Franklin schools, greatly appreciated her efforts. Regarding salary, he said that towns varied in that; some paid the whole salary and some, part. In the latter case the fees were proportioned according to ability to pay. In some cases the fee was merely nominal. Some who have been opposed to her re-employment expressed a change of opinion. Nearly all wanted a nurse of some kind, but not all were agreed as to what constituted her duties.

The article about transporting pupils free of charge from the South end developed the fact that the children's fare is now being paid by the town, but that on account of train schedules the pupils have to travel over three roads and at a mounting expense, so that the school committee want a definite opinion from the town. Some thought that paying fares of those living in the South end was a bad precedent, some said the town had better pay tuition at Palmer, some that the children should get here the best way they could, furnishing their own transportation. Some said that most of the families didn't have teams, owning simply a house and a small plot of land. Some said that, even so, the men were getting high wages at the mills whereas farmers were proverbially poor. Others remarked that a good road down that way would probably permit of everybody working there. So it wasn't settled. The opinion seemed to be that some favors should be shown the South-enders and one man ventured the assertion that whereas paying transportation in most towns would be a bad precedent, our local situation was "peculiarly different."

A few suggestions were made regarding the town reports. One was that they be a bit more specific, and the other that the minutes be so worded that it would not be necessary to hunt up the previous year's report to find out what the article was about.

The gathering expressed appreciation of the work of town accountant Shaw, who in response hoped that it would take definite form on town meeting day in the raising and appropriating of $125.00 for an adding machine for the use of town officials. It is now necessary, he said, to borrow private machines, a practise that should not be continued indefinitely.

While most of the discussion was relative to town affairs, the Board transacted one item of regular business, empowering its president to appoint a committee to see to the tabulating of a list of people who will be in a position to board some of the skilled labor that will come from some of the large cities in the spring to work on the State school buildings. It is expected that there will be more opportunities along this line than most people think.

Card Party

The card party given last evening in Firemen's hall under the auspices of the Community club, and attended by about 30 people, was a decided success both socially and financially. Whist was played and Mr. W. S. Piper and Mr. F. G. Shaw were the prize winners. Thanks to the Firemen who donated the use of the hall and Mr. Hopkins who donated the prizes, expenses were reduced to a minimum, and the club realized $7.53. The next party will be held Feb. 9 in the same hall. Everybody come and help swell the school fund!

The Annual Town Meeting

The town of Belchertown fought out its destiny for the coming year in true democratic fashion on Monday last when its citizens gathered in annual town meeting. While some are glad that the town is showing some signs of progressiveness, others are sure that it is on the high road to ruin. Time alone can, of course, decide the wisdom of the action under the various articles.

There were some heated arguments, producing, no doubt, strange phenomena on the planets Mars and Venus, but probably they were not quite so disturbed over our annual affair as they have been in some previous years.

Some of the stereotyped articles went through with comparatively little discussion. The reports of work done last year were accepted, after which various town officers were chosen by nomination in rapid fire fashion. The balance of the dog fund was appropriated for the library, the selectmen were authorized to borrow the necessary money in anticipation of taxes, seventy-five dollars was voted for Memorial day, the town accepted the sum of $100 to care for a cemetery lot, and an appropriations committee was appointed consisting of M. G. Ward, E. A. Fuller and Peter Hanifin.

It was also voted to appoint a committee to name some of the streets in Belchertown and the following were appointed: E. C. Witt, J. W. Jackson and W. F. Nichols. $100 was placed at the disposal of this committee. A committee was also appointed for Old Home day, consisting of M. A. Morse, G. E. Scott, B. E. Fairchild, E. E. Sargent, Mrs. H. F. Curtis, Mrs. J. J. Garvey and Mrs. E. G. Shaw.

Nearly all of the appropriations recommended by the appropriations committee were voted by the town. In some cases the amounts were increased. $100 was appropriated for the town clock instead of $48.

to allow for repairs which Charles Jensen said could be made to put the clock on an honest basis. $150 extra was voted for the cemeteries to be expended in repairing and painting the fences. $1,600 was voted by the town to care for the special poll taxes to be exacted this year by the state on account of the soldiers' bonuses. The town also voted to raise and appropriate $50 for the Farm Bureau and appointed Peter Hanifin, director.

With a bit more of effort $125 was voted for an adding machine, and $1,282.50 was appropriated from the surplus revenue to balance the account of A. Bridgman.

The town also voted to put $500 at the disposal of the selectmen to shingle and make necessary repairs at the town farm. This was done after a discussion as to the merits of wood, metal and slate shingle. The fact was disclosed that the town has a lot of pine timber on the farm which could be turned, directly or indirectly, into shingle of some kind.

The matter of raising and appropriating $1,000 for improving the Boardville-Belchertown road went through with little comment, but the matter of transporting pupils from the South-end to the High school caused some debate. People from other sections of the town thought they should be treated in like manner. The only consolation this element seemed to get was that it was up to them to have an article inserted in the warrant to suit their particular needs.

The real fireworks of the meeting came when the roads got their annual scraping and the matter of employing the nurse came up. Some complained of the work which the state engineer did last year and strongly opposed his reappearance.

The Community club cleared $16.10 last Monday, serving luncheons at the town hall. The club is to give a card party Monday evening, Feb. 9, at 8 o'clock in Firemen's hall. Everybody come and help furnish the club rooms.

The regular meeting of the club will be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 10, with Mrs. E. R. Hunt.

Water Tank Burns

Shortly before 8 o'clock Monday evening, boys sliding down depot hill discovered that the B. & M. water tank was on fire at the railroad station. At first the fire was apparently confined to the bottom of the tank, but later caught to the top.

After 3 hours of hard work the fire was put out on the supporting beams which saved a total collapse on the track. The fire department responded but was unable to use anything but hand extinguishers. The loss was several thousand dollars. A new and larger tank with concrete foundations is now being constructed.

Grange Notes

The grange meeting of Tuesday night was Rally night with roll call. Responses were ideas on overcoming the H. C. L. The attendance was small but all were of the mind that less extravagance and more production of work was necessary to overcome it.

Dies in Minneapolis

Harrison E. Walker of Minneapolis, Minn., died on Saturday, Jan. 31st, of pneumonia after a brief illness.

Mr. Walker was the son of Elijah Walker, a long time resident of Federal street, and spent his boyhood here, later removing to Springfield where he engaged in the photograph business under J. C. Spooner. When seventeen years old he enlisted in the 37th Mass. Infantry and was with that regiment for the last three years of the Civil war, being discharged as a first sergeant.

He then removed to Salamanca, N. Y., working as a railroad clerk, and married Charlotte E. Price of that city. They had four children, all of whom died in infancy. He became engaged in the restaurant business at Corey, Pa., and was in the same line at Buffalo, N. Y. and Albert Lea, Minn., at which places he conducted hotels. He went to Minneapolis twenty years ago and became president of a lumber company from which he retired a short time ago. He leaves a widow and one brother, Wellington J. Walker of Springfield, Mass.

The Value of the Interpreter

Doubtless all of us have had a similar experience to the writer. He who knew only the English language was trying to talk with a person who knew only the German, and the conversation was almost futile because there was no interpreter present who could understand both languages and could make that which sounded like gibberish into intelligent ideas. The interpreter was absolutely essential if there was to be a commerce in ideas. How often, some little fellow who could not talk very well as yet has tried to tell us something and it was all "Greek" to us till the mother who knew the language of her offspring told us what he was saying. How grateful we are to all the translators who have enabled us to be edified by the writings of those who speak in a different language from our own!

All of us all our life long should be engaged in the wonderful task of interpreting. For it is given to each one of us to be able to make intelligent some things which are obscure to others.

Mothers are our first great interpreters. Practically everything is meaningless to us when we come into the world, and these mothers of ours were always at the task of interpreting the meaning of things to us. Where is the mother who was equal to the task of answering the questions or explaining all the problems that her son asked?

We have millions of foreigners who come to our shores who do not understand our ways. What democracy is needs to be explained and interpreted to them. They have very vague ideas of citizenship, and we must be the interpreters.

Misunderstandings arise between individuals and between nations because of the lack of interpreters. The world stands greatly in need of men who are capable of interpreting English life and Mexican life and French life to us.

Blessed is every man who is able to take ideas and express them in the language which the other fellow can understand.

Annual Town Meeting

this year if the same ideas of road building were to be carried out in "peculiar" Belchertown. This faction thought we were better off without the state's money. After much wrangling it was decided unwise to let slip the chance to get the extra help which, it was assured, would be spent according to carefully worked out plans of the state engineer and the local highway surveyor.

The discussion about the nurse was a meeting all in itself. Before it was over, her services came near being required then and there. By some the idea was proclaimed as one of the present day fads of which we are constantly becoming more and more the victims; others said that the nurse's presence here had done much good. A number took this attitude, although they confessed that they previously held reverse opinions. The original motion for an appropriation of $1,500 was lost and the proposition swayed to and fro. Finally after a dramatic appeal to the chairman of the board of health and the chairman of the school committee as to their opinions in the matter, the meeting voted to raise $1,000.

Before the vote was passed, Dr. Collard asked that Dr. Roberts, superintendent of health, have the privilege of the floor. This was granted and Dr. Roberts explained the difference in the various kinds of nurses towns employ, viz, visiting nurses, public health nurses, and school nurses. He considered the public health nurse the best investment as they do all-around service, whereas the other two are confined to their departments. Dr. Roberts laid considerable stress on preventive work, and quoting from our own reports, stated that some of the deaths tabulated therein were absolutely preventable if taken in time. He said that Belchertown was the first town in the district to hire a public health nurse and was sure that after a year or two we would not think of being without one. Time alone, he said, would prove her worth.

So the audience was treated to almost everything in the course of the day, appeals, professional and amateur, and on one occasion our veteran auctioneer broke out into rhyme. The meeting closed with the announcement of the results of the

AS SEEN BY A NATIVE

Mrs. M. H. Jejeian

I am glad to say that 25 years ago all the religious chieftains made a rule that no girl be married under 18 years of age; this was the result of the influence of the American missionaries and their education.

While 16 years of age I was teaching in a school where my father preached. My pupils were girls ranging from 6 to 12 years of age; they loved their school and their teacher.

During my second year of teaching, one day one of the girls (who was a very diligent and bright scholar hardly 13 years of age) came to me to say "good-bye". Tears were rolling down her cheeks. I was surprised and asked her why. "Mary" I said, "What is the matter?" But she being very modest would not tell me the reason, but one of her chums who was with her explained to me that "She is going to leave school to get married." As a young teacher what could I do? I only asked her, "Mary, is your father so destitute that he cannot keep you in school another year or so?" She left the school without any answer, through her modesty.

It was about 30 years since; last fall when I was attending the convention of the Armenian Red Cross Society held in New York, I met my former pupil. She clung on my neck and covered me with kisses, tears flowing from her eyes repeating the "Mary, is your father so destitute that he cannot keep you in school another year or two?"

Although this girl left the school and got married 30 years ago she did not leave her education. While a wife and mother, and burdened with household duties, she did not stop in educating herself but took up home studies to finish her education. Her memory was so keen that that little sentence was not forgotten through all those 30 years' tempestuous life of hers. She was one of the brightest delegates from Peterson, New York.

The Armenian girl loves three principle things: her home, her country, and her religion. For this fact "ferocious Turk rages" were intensified. So they came to the conclusion that they must annihilate the whole Armenian race. I could recite a good many instances to you about the foregoing statements but I will content myself by giving you one or two instances so as not to strain your patience.

In 1895 at the time of the Armenian massacre while I was a young woman about 4 months married, there was issued a decree by "Sultan Hamid" (certainly secret from the public) to punish the Armenian race by robbing and swindling the people and by murdering the conspicuous members of the families. At last this secret leaked out and the people terrified, huddled together to think of some means to defend themselves, because a day or two before all the available weapons were taken away from the Armenian people.

A bunch of girls came to me for consultation. I asked them what they would do if such a thing ever happened. Then one of them produced a little package and asked, "Do you know what is in this, Mrs. Kooyonjian?" (that was my former name)

Then she explained that it contained black pepper. She said that "when the vicious Turk undertakes to touch me I will throw this into his eyes to make him blind." Another girl showed me a vial saying, "A

Another Citizen Banished

BY "BUTTONS"

Another undesirable citizen has been banished. The times seem ripe for the banishment of undesirable people. Emma Goldman has been banished; Alexander Berkman has been banished and with them a ship load of undesirable people were sent away by an aroused government whose hospitality they had abused shamefully. There are more to follow. Why should they not be deported, these people who refuse to become citizens and are hostile to our laws and plot against our institutions and advocate lawlessness and revolution? Why not send them away? Must freedom harbor its enemies?

Now another undesirable citizen has been banished, John Barleycorn. The date of his banishment, January 17, 1920, will be a memorable one to the country, and to the exile himself. He, like some of these others, was of foreign birth, and like them was not sent away because he was foreign born, but because though naturalized he never became a really good citizen in all the years of his sojourn among us. Let us understand this point clearly. It is the crux of the indictment against him. John Barleycorn was sent away because of his undesirable character as a citizen.

For a long time John Barleycorn has been under suspicion and has been growing in disfavor. The churches and ministers began to question the moral character of his influence in their communities. They began to see that one great force opposing and retarding the progress of the principles of holy religion was the habits of intemperance formed under his influence. Families were

Snow-Bound

"Snow-Bound" should be a popular book to read this winter—that is, if any one can get to the library to take it out. To do so would entail some effort, necessitating a trip over mountainous snow drifts and whitened ravines, right on Main street, and in case you should meet somebody, of course you would have to back up on the trail till you reached a turnout.

Teachers in the schools will probably teach with added emphasis that Belchertown, like all the rest of the surrounding territory, still remains in the North Temperate zone, with a strong tendency northward.

As for traffic—that hasn't moved a great deal. The bus man is taking his mid-winter vacation, and autos of all kinds have yielded to the four legged, two cylinder variety.

The stores, depending on trucks and trains for their supplies, have had to deal out a liberal amount of promises, until the supply of that useful article is about exhausted.

The weather man got things going his way last week Thursday and trains were way behind the times, the afternoon train from Boston not getting in till morning. The lower schools didn't make a pretense of running either Thursday or Friday, and the High school ran "light".

The bill for breaking out the roads will be considerable as few of our highways were exempt from inundation.

As we go to press the clouds look just right for another sprinkling, so cheer up!

Fire Department Officers

Herbert F. Shaw has been appointed by the selectmen as chief of the Belchertown Volunteer Fire Department. At the annual meeting held in the Engine house hall on Tuesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Atkins-Shumway Wedding

TURKEY HILL NEWS

Miss Nina Atkins, daughter of Mrs. Abbie Atkins of Malden, and Edwin F. Shumway of this town were married Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Hattie Atkins of Maple street, Rev. H. P. Rankin performing the ceremony. The couple were attended by Miss Carrie Foster of Malden and Dana M. Bardwell of Belchertown.

After a wedding supper served by Mrs. Atkins, Mr. and Mrs. Shumway took the evening train for Springfield. They will be away two weeks visiting places in Massachusetts and Connecticut, and upon their return will be at home at Mr. Shumway's residence in Turkey Hill.

Community Club Notes

At the meeting of the Community club last Tuesday evening three new members were voted into the organization: Mrs. Dwight Randall, Mrs. W. A. Sauer and Mrs. William Shaw. An exceptionally enjoyable meeting was held.

The card party on Monday evening proved another social and financial success. The prizes, which were given by E. A. Fuller, were won by Mrs. Fred Walker and Mrs. Kidder. The next party, Feb. 25th, will take the form of military whist. Watch for the posters.

Dies in Springfield

Mrs. Julia Tabor Randall, 88, widow of Nelson Randall, formerly of this town, died in Springfield, Saturday, Feb. 7th, of bronchial pneumonia, after a few days' illness.

Both Dea. and Mrs. Randall were members of and tireless workers in the Baptist church for a long term of years. Mr. Randall joining in 1859, and Mrs. Randall by letter from the Second church in Holyoke in 1861. The family moved to Springfield in 1912, making their home with Mrs. Albert Randall where Mr. Randall died in 1913.

Mrs. Randall leaves one grandson, Waring Randall of West Springfield. The funeral was held at Morrill's undertaking parlors, West Springfield, Tuesday, Feb. 10. The burial will be in Greenbury

Straining the Gnat and Swallowing the Camel

The greatest teacher the world has known condemned severely a certain class of leaders in his day because they were exceptionally pugnacious regarding very minor matters such as tithing "mint and anise and cummin" but disregarded entirely such tremendously important matters as being just or merciful.

It seems to us in our relation to the Peace treaty that many of our leaders are paying altogether too much attention to the gnats and paying little regard to the camel. The big thing, as we see it, is to join the nations which were allied with us during the war, in completing the task which was only half done when the armistice was signed.

While we are fiddling, Rome is burning. America was the most honored among all the nations of the earth when the armistice was signed, because the world knew we had entered the conflict with no selfish aim in view.

But now those who return to us from Europe are all tolling us the same thing, namely, that America is more and more derided and despised because she has failed to sign the treaty and join the other nations in seeing that the peace terms are carried out and the world kept out of war.

While the war was on, our soldier boys were fairly worshipped by the nations allied with this. And now we learn of two instances at least where respectable women spit upon a man in American uniform, saying while they did the act, "This is what we think of America."

Already America has been a loser by the policy of trying to secure a treaty which would safeguard all American rights. She would have lost far less had she at once joined the nations with a treaty far less perfect than the one now before us.

Another Citizen Banished

John thought himself a doctor, and there were times when he was accepted as "big medicine". His prescription, alcohol in some form, was used by many regular physicians as a remedy for almost every ill to which flesh is heir. Many people became sick for the sake of getting the medicine, especially in those places where John was not permitted by law to do an open business.

John Barleycorn and his associates conducted a large and thriving business. They had large capital, many places of business and numerous customers. But the business was not a wholly desirable one. His products were used to some extent in manufactures and in medicine, and still may be so used. But the public knew his business chiefly through the saloons he operated and the intoxicating liquors they sold over the bar.

Attracts Big Crowd

The largest crowd that ever saw a basket ball game in Belchertown town hall, was out Wednesday evening to witness Belchertown trim its old rival, Enfield. Two hundred people came out to see the trick done and were not disappointed. The game was never in question and the home rooters had to stay right on the job.

For Enfield Dawson made several sensational shots while Spencer for Belchertown came back in his old-time form.

When the final whistle blew the home boys topped the score 48-17. This is the second game of the series, the first being a tie in Enfield. Tomorrow night the local contingent will meet the visitors on their own surface.

Life In Armenia

AS SEEN BY A NATIVE
Mrs. M. H. Sejeian

Next day beastly commands of the vicious tyrant went into operation. All the homes were ransacked of their contents and all the young men were shot down; one was my lamented husband. My father and two brothers were also killed at that time. But just as the Jews made a big mistake by thinking that they could get rid of the principles that Christ had preached by crucifying him, so did the Turkish tyrant make the greatest mistake by thinking that he could extinguish the flames of patriotism and love of freedom from the Armenian hearts by murdering a few thousand young men and outraging a few thousand young women. But that made the Armenians an organized force to fight this cruel tyrant to the bitter end.

Twenty years elapsed. The Armenians harnessed themselves and went to work to reconstruct their devastated homes. But jealous eyes of the wicked enemy could not tolerate to see a subject race progress so fast. It did not seem to matter even that 80% of the earnings went to fill up the unsatisfied threat of the tyrant. At last the era of the world war arrived, the terror of which all of you pretty well know. All the American and Armenian newspapers were full of the descriptions of the sufferings of the deported and banished people performed upon them by the cruel officials. More than a million Armenians have been cruelly murdered with indescribable tortures.

It will not be very pleasant for me to recite to you in detail all the cruel deeds that would disturb your tender feelings, as to how those young girls were treated by the officers and sold like cattle, the babies being choked in wells or thrown into the rivers. Yes indeed, at that juncture the Turk had entire freedom to execute his long prepared plan in exterminating the Armenians. In this action he had expert assistance like Christian Germany and Austria, not mentioning the pretended friends of Armenia, those that even up to this day obstinately insist in holding up the dominion of the Turk over the Christian nations in that country, a government which has been a shame and disgrace to the whole civilized world, not only distress and torture to the Armenians.

In conclusion I leave it to your judgment to put the responsibility where it belongs. Does it belong to the same barbarian Turk, or to the nations who have attained the zenith of civilization?

Injured in Cambridge

Miss Sophie E. Dwight of Cambridge, while crossing the street recently, was knocked down by an automobile and dragged some distance, receiving a bad scalp wound and many bruises. She was taken to the hospital where she remained unconscious for four hours. Her friends will be glad to know of her recovery.

Miss Dwight is much interested in work among the Chinese and teaches a Sunday school class of them in Boston. Although few in Belchertown may remember her, the Sentinel reaches many homes where she is well known.

Annual fair of Community club.

To assist those looking for an open date we remind them that regularly in every month the American Legion and the W. E. C. meet on the first Monday evening, Union Grange the first and third Tuesday evenings, the Community club the second and fourth Tuesday evenings, the Masonic Lodge the Wednesday on or before the full of the moon, the O. E. S. the Wednesday after the full of the moon; the Social Guild supper is given on the first Wednesday during the winter and the church prayer meeting is held every Thursday evening.

American Legion Entertainment

It was a contented set of folks that went away from Community hall on the evening of February 17, after listening to the entertainment provided by the Chauncey D. Walker Post of the American Legion. This was the first presentation of the organization, and, characteristic of the boys in the service, they did all that was expected of them, and then some.

Outside the hall was stationed Old Glory, and the inside was decorated with the national colors, the national emblem predominating. Service men acted as ushers and admirably handled the exceptionally large company of patrons.

Vice commander Roland M. Shaw announced that owing to difficulty in getting scenery the "whiz bang" feature had to be given up but that a reader had been engaged instead. The Philharmonic quartet of Springfield, of enviable reputation, furnished the main part of the program and was very cordially received. Among the numbers rendered was, "There is no Death," a song dedicated to the American Legion. The quartet presented a varied program and was generous in its encores. The reader gave several comic renderings which captivated the audience. The entertainment began with "The Star Spangled Banner" and closed with "America."

While the audience was all that could have been desired, the expenses were large, so that about all the Post has to its credit is public confidence—but that is worth having.

Special Exercises Sunday

AMERICAN LEGION

On Sunday, Feb. 22, there will be special exercises at the morning service of the Federated church under the management of the American Legion who will attend in a body. The exercises are held to celebrate Washington's birthday and to honor the "boys" from our own town who made the supreme sacrifice.

The nearest relatives to the ones who died over there will be presented with a "French War Certificate of Honor." Commander P. W. Stone will make remarks and the pastor's message will be appropriate to the occasion. Service men will have charge of the ushering.

Sunday will be thus observed by the Legion all over the country. We cannot do too much to keep forever green the memory of those who sacrificed their all that this nation and the world might forever stand for Democracy and Freedom.

Class for Home Nursing

The following letter received by Mrs. Aspengren relative to a class for home nursing is self explanatory and should meet with a response from those desiring to become efficient along this line. If interested, call Mrs. Aspengren at once.

"The Hampshire county chapter of the Red Cross is considering the advisability of organizing classes in elementary hygiene and home care of the sick in some of the smaller towns, if enough interest is manifested to warrant it.

"This course would require very little, if any, expense to those taking it, but a willingness to attend twelve, at least, of the fifteen lessons.

"The value of this simple training in home nursing was thoroughly recognized during the epidemic of the "flu" in the fall of 1918. It was also demonstrated at that time that our hill towns especially were very much handicapped because so few had any confidence in their ability in this work.

"If our plans materialize, the classes would begin in the spring at a time most convenient to instructor and pupils.

"Would you be willing to thoroughly canvass your town and see if there is any interest in this course? It seems as if each town would want one or more classes, as anyone over sixteen years of age would be eligible."

Want Suggestions

The committee chosen at the annual town meeting for naming and marking the streets of Belchertown request that any having suggestions to offer, present them to the committee, the chairman of which is E. C.

Witt, or express them publicly in the Sentinel. The latter course might be conducive to a freer discussion.

Birds Friendly

Owing to the great amount of snow upon the ground which has covered weeds and other sources of their food supply, the birds have become increasingly friendly in our village. Last Saturday C. R. and Harry G. Aldrich entertained at noon-day lunch near the town farm swamp some chickadees that were anxious for something to eat and were willing to make all necessary advances to get it. They ate from their hands and even lit on a tooth pick in the mouth of one of their friends and picked crumbs from between his lips. The same persons report seeing a robin in that section.

We note with pleasure the interest taken in bird life and the concern on the part of so many for its maintenance. More than one in our village is buying suet and hanging it away from dogs and cats for the benefit of the birds, while the Fish and Game Commission has furnished bird seed which the school children have been placing in bird-frequented spots. One of our subscribers has suggested that we remind the farmers that barn floor sweepings will furnish food for the birds if made accessible to them.

Speaking of robins being seen in this locality, we mention also a blue-bird which was seen at the home of David Jepsen on Feb. 11. Mrs. Dwight Jepsen sends us a list of 17 kinds of birds which have fed this winter at a table spread with barn

The Greatness of Lincoln

Rev. H. P. Rankin gave an estimate of the life and work of Abraham Lincoln at the evening service of the Federated church last Sunday. He gave a brief historical sketch, commencing with the migration of the family of an Abraham Lincoln living on Cape Cod.

Mr. Rankin stated that Mr. Lincoln was great in his capacity. He had latent ability to achieve and acquire. This was in part due to his mother to whom Lincoln himself paid high tribute.

He also said that Lincoln was great in his eagerness to learn, and related the familiar account of his traveling miles to get certain books, reading them before the open fire in the dim shadows of his cabin home. He was determined to get the information he could, and the able he took to get it, Mr. Rankin said, was a rebuke to thousands of boys in our day who are flinging away chances for an education. He went on to say that if Lincoln needed an education for the tasks of his day, it is surely needed in these days of world reconstruction.

His third point was that Lincoln was great in his sympathy, which means to "suffer with another." Lincoln suffered with the black race and was led to help them. God spoke to him and picked him for the task.

Mr. Rankin said that Lincoln was also great in his honesty; not simply regarding money, of which we have noteworthy illustrations, but in every relationship. While his radical opinions, he was sometimes told, would lose him votes, he was honest with himself and would not yield. Commenting upon the abuse great men receive in their own day, Mr. Rankin stated that Washington and Lincoln had to suffer ridicule and taunts of inefficiency, so that the present times are no exception. He said: "In the lifetime of our great men we stone them; after they are dead we build them monuments."

His last point was that Lincoln was great in his vision. Other men were more educated and polished, but he saw clearly his duty which had been wrought out in prayer. "Lincoln," he said, "prayed thru."

At the conclusion of the discourse

Theodore Hazen gave a reading depicting a homely but human scene at the White house in which Abraham Lincoln showed himself truly great.

Another Citizen
Banished

John Barleycorn and his business has been growing in disfavor for a long time. Years ago he lost his legal standing in some states and in late years the number of states and smaller civic centers that have banned his business increased in, to him, an alarming rate. He got back on the sly whenever and wherever he could, for he has never had great regard to laws that interfered with his business; and he and his friends became very bitter against these communities that banned him and denounced them in round and, sometimes, lurid terms. John Barleycorn has never been a purist in morals or language or even, it has been intimated, in the quality of his liquors.

Then the legitimate big business of the country began to look with suspicion upon John and his business. When employers of large numbers of workmen began to see that men who patronized the saloons regularly became less efficient and reliable as workmen because of their drinking habits, and when railroads and other large corporations began to ban the use of liquors by their employees, John Barleycorn and his business received an unexpected and telling blow. It was an unexpected blow because, previously, it had been contended that a drink increased one's working capacity. It was a telling blow because delivered, not by rabid temperance reformers, Neal Dows and Carrie Nations and visionary ministers, but by hard-headed business men who did not fit into John's general classification of his opposers as fools, fanatics or hypocrites.

Then came the war. While nations were seeking to destroy one another and democracy was in a life and death grapple with its foes, many things had to give way. We admit that the war hit John Barleycorn hard. The powers that be got a notion that the effects of alcoholic liquors were not helpful to our soldiers. There they stuck hard. An eighteenth amendment to the constitution was adopted and other war measures were inaugurated. The blows fell fast and hard. But could his business be allowed to stand in the way of democracy's winning of the fight? Other business rallied round the flag in a fine way. John

$300 in Cash

Well, here I am again, folks—your old friend, Maud Purina. You know me, with the kettle on my tail and the lightning in my heels. Here is a way for you to make some money and have a Barrel of Fun.

Study what is happening here and tell the story in your own words. Lots of things COULD happen, and all you need is a little "mule scuse" to figure it out. You don't have to be a story-writer—it's the thought behind the story that counts. Use pencil or pen, postal or anything, and don't be afraid to try because I am going to pay cash for ideas, as follows:

$100.00 for the best one
$25.00 for the next best
$15.00 for the third best

$10.00 for the fourth best
$5.00 each for the next 20
$1.00 each for the next 50

Anyone may try who is interested in horses and mules—who either owns them, feeds them or knows someone else who does. You don't have to buy anything and you only need to do three things.

Make it short—not over 100 words—even a picture might win.

Mention Purina O-Molene, my favorite feed.

Tell the name of a dealer who keeps O-Molene.

Remember that Purina O-Molene is a real discovery in the feeding of horses and mules. It isn't a medicine, but only a wonderful way of preparing the good, wholesome grains, so that they go further than raw corn or oats. It keeps stock healthier and costs less to feed.

HURRY UP because the contest closes soon. Your story must be mailed by March 10, 1920, and the awards will be made about March 25th. Everyone who tries will get a dandy little book soon after, containing the judges' report and some of the best and funniest answers. You can have a lot of fun over it some evening with your friends. The judges will be:

Wm. H. Danforth, Pres. Ralston Purina Co., St. Louis.

H. S. Gardner, Pres. Gardner Adv. Co., St. Louis.

L. F. Smith, American Educational Society, St. Louis.

Don't wait, but send your idea in at once to reach the judges in time.

SEND IT TO MAUD PURINA, PURINA MILLS, St. Louis, Mo.

Barleycorn and his business, in the day of the nation's great peril, was "weighed in the balances and found wanting". So as an undesirable citizen he is banished. The war was hard on him and his friends, we admit, looking at the matter from their point of view, but we accept his banishment as one of the war's compensations to us, and we anticipate it will prove a blessing to his most ardent friends when they get a bit used to his absence and get over their unnatural thirst for alcoholic potatoes.

We expect John Barleycorn will seek to get back. We expect his friends, who have tried by hook and by crook to keep him here, will work for his restoration. We expect that he will get back at times on the sly. But how are the mighty fallen! John Barleycorn whose distilleries and breweries towered to the skies, whose gilded saloons were found on prominent corners of the streets and in other choice situations, doing business on the sly! Again we say: How are the mighty fallen! And we expect that there will be no such great outcry by him and his partners against "blind pigs" as there used to be in the days of the protected saloons which never liked that breed of pigs. John Barleycorn, down to blind pigs and boot-legs! We repeat: How are the mighty fallen!

Belchertown Defeated

Belchertown met defeat at the hands of Enfield in a game of basket ball played in that town last Saturday evening. Enfield, fresh from its defeat of Wednesday night was determined to win, and win she did, even though the Belchertown boys feel that they were by no means given a square deal. They had only one free try in the last half whereas their opponents seemed to get any quantity.
The game Saturday night was the third in a series. The first was a tie, the second was won by Belchertown and the third by Enfield. An effort is being made by the local management to stage a fourth game in Ware and have a disinterested referee.

chaff and grain. She says that at one time they counted 53 birds eating or awaiting their turn in the trees near by. She estimates that they have thrown out a bushel of grain besides the hay chaff. They also counted 19 blue jays stealing from the corn crib and later, after a high wind had dislodged some, they found that except for a few kernels on two ears, their twenty ears of seed sweet corn had been carefully stored away by the same thieves. We print the following list of birds as given by Mrs. Jepsen. We should be glad to hear of any one who has a longer list than this: bluebird, blue jays, evening grosbeaks, junco, song sparrows, tree sparrows, chickadees, pheasant (female), 5 quail, winter wren (male and female), horned larks, meadow larks, white breasted nuthatch, hairy woodpecker, downy woodpecker, partridge, flicker.

J. W. Jackson calls attention to a flock of seven horned larks walking along Main street. These birds are usually seen in groups of three or four. He also calls attention to the scarcity of English sparrows and starlings, those trouble makers of the bird world.

Among other Belchertown birds seen this winter are the gold finch and pine grosbeak besides the ever-present crow. We should be glad to list other birds noted about here.

be observed as it should be. Every effort has been made to have Americanism talked in the schools by the teachers, with other patriotic exercises.

The whole object of "Make Friend to the Alien week" is to instill in the alien mind what we Americans find in Americanism, and to assist the willing to understand its true meaning.

"As the first fundamental it must be in mind that Americanism is the living and teaching of the laws of American civic life. It is the gospel of the Bill of Rights as interpreted by our Constitution and the laws enacted under that Constitution. It is more important that our aliens understand what we really are and what we by our own choice may do, than that those aliens become citizens without a clear knowledge of the rights and duties vested in their citizenship. Therefore duress and coercion must never be resorted to in the work of Americanism.

"We have become a great nation because of the great national and individual love we bear towards our institutions. Americanism is the teaching of this love to the alien, at least to the extent that he can see the reasons for our love. If he thru understanding feels this love of America too, then we should help him to become one of us, but if he understands but does not love, we must not turn him from us or seek to injure him by word or deed. To injure a law-abiding alien is unlawful; to help him is Americanism."

Special Meetings

A revival in business is a perfectly proper and desirable thing. Up-to-date merchants are alert to the demands of the hour, carefully watching the trend of events, advertising liberally and setting forth their wares in an attractive manner.
A revival in learning is also a perfectly normal movement and many were the great men produced by the Elizabethan age.
Therefore it is no abnormal condition when a church takes on added interest to intensify the religious spirit.

So spake Rev. J. E. Cates at the opening meeting in the series of special services to be held with his assistance by the Federated church during the next ten days. With the exception of Saturday evenings services will be held each night.

Rev. Mr. Cates is not a professional evangelist. He said, "I am not the kind that rip off collars and throw around clothes, but I am an evangelist. Like all ministers I am a bearer of good tidings." Mr. Cates saw ten months' service overseas as a lieutenant. Since his return he has been doing special evangelistic work, of late in the Springfield district in charge of Rev. C. Oscar Ford. The appointment here came suddenly, owing to the cancellation of a contract with the church in North Dana, due to a large amount of sickness in that community. After his mission here Mr. Cates goes to St. James, Springfield, and then to Northampton.

The evangelist desires a large attendance at his meetings, not to hear anything eloquent, but to prove the authenticity of his message.

On Monday evening Rev. Mr. Cates will relate his war experiences overseas. He says, "I didn't win the war. It would have been won without me, but I had some experiences and would be glad to tell them at that time." He is a member of the American Legion, the newly formed, nation-wide organization, and the townspeople will, no doubt, be glad to hear him.

He realizes that the roads and weather conditions are bad for his work here but said that to one who has been in France and slept in its trenches these things are puny in comparison.

American Legion Service

A goodly number of people attended the special exercises in the Methodist church last Sunday morning. Members of the American Legion were present and with a representative of the G. A. R. occupied seats of honor. The church was tastily decorated with flags and bunting by members of the legion for the occasion. There was special music by the choir, an appropriate message by the pastor and an address by Post Commander Stone who paid tribute to the boys who laid down their lives and to their mothers who survive them. His speech was incident to the presentation of the French Certificates of Honor which had previously been privately presented to the proper recipients in town. Commander Stone said:

"Today and tomorrow throughout the country, French Memorial certificates will be presented by the American Legion to all next of kin of all men and women who died in the service of the United States, whether overseas or elsewhere. These certificates are given by France to show her appreciation of all that America did in this world war.

"It is for this reason that we are gathered here, here in this sacred place of worship, to express our gratitude and pay homage to those whose loss was this nation's gain. Belchertown lost two of its own during the late war and, though expressing our grief, we, you and I, all of us, swell with pride in knowing that these sacrifices were for the more noble purpose of keeping our firesides undefiled, free from autocracy, now and forever.

Death of Dea. G. D. Blackmer

Gardner Dorrance Blackmer, 80, died at his home on New street Monday afternoon at four o'clock after a short sickness following a considerable period of feeble health.

Deacon Blackmer was born in this town Dec. 2, 1839, the son of John and Electa (Bartlett) Blackmer. He was married Nov. 24, 1879, to Mary Damon and shortly after moved to North Hadley where they lived about fifteen years, during which time he was chosen deacon of the North Hadley church. One child, Louis Allen, was born to them but died at the age of five months. After a residence of three years in Amherst, Deacon and Mrs. Blackmer came to Belchertown where they have since resided.

In 1905 Mr. Blackmer was chosen deacon of the Belchertown Congregational church to fill out the unexpired term of the late Dea. Southwick and held that office at the time of his death. He also served the church as treasurer for fourteen years and was for a long time its janitor. Faithfulness and painstaking care characterized him in whatever work he undertook.

He leaves, besides his widow, three nephews, Leroy M. and Lewis H. Blackmer of this town, and Rev. Walter R. Blackmer of Arcade, N. Y.

The funeral was held at the chapel yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating, assisted by Rev. J. E. Cates. Theodore Hazen sang "When the Mists Have Rolled Away," accompanied by Miss Allen. Burial will be in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Naming the Streets

A SUGGESTION
In accordance with the request that names be suggested for the streets in Belchertown I would ask the committee to consider changing Walnut street to Jackson street to perpetuate the name of John W. Jackson, Jr., who faithfully and through much suffering served eighteen months in France and was the last of our boys to return home, thus serving to the full limit of opportunity.

Green-Hoag Wedding

Miss Effie Grace Green of Springfield and Henry Hoag of this town were united in marriage at the home of Howell Cook last Saturday afternoon at four o'clock by Rev. H. P. Rankin.
The bride is a graduate of Western Memorial hospital, Springfield, and the groom is a well known carpenter. The couple will make their home on South Main St.

Mischief Makers

There are always mischief makers in the world. They have never struck for an eight hour or a six hour day. They have never asked for a Saturday half holiday. They work seven days a week through all the waking hours. And they so plan that mischief goes on while they sleep.

What can we do with them? We cannot kill them. We do not solve the situation by deporting them to another village or state or country. We might try to convert them. Perhaps more of them could be converted than we think if we set about the task with a will. But this we can do. We can thwart them in their undertakings. We can be prepared for them at every point so as to overthrow the mischief they are exerting. We can be as diligent as they, working in season and out of season, early and late, to counteract their influence. But better yet, we can create such a fine atmosphere that ideas which cause mischief will have a hard time to live and will naturally wither and die. Misunderstandings and misinterpretations and suspicious and insinuations have a sorry time of it when the atmosphere is one of good will and confidence. This is the best way to attack mischief makers.

There are always those working mischief between the nations. One of the most prominent pastors of England has recently come to America; one of the greatest, if not the greatest preacher of America has gone to England and both testify against those who are gathering up all the old prejudices and stirring up old grudges and opening up old sores between England and America who were so closely cemented during the war.

It belongs to us to create an atmosphere of confidence and good will. This can readily be done if we call to mind what we owe England. England gave to us our language, our King James Version of the Bible, our ideals of freedom, of law and justice. During the war there was greater freedom of speech in England than in America.

It rejoices us to know that two statues of Abraham Lincoln are being set up in England, one in London and the other in Manchester, and that people by the thousands are going to the theatres to see a play which portrays his magnanimity. It rejoices us to know that England is making larger preparation than we for the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the Landing of the Pilgrims and that Britain and America will stand together next July 4th at Plymouth Rock to celebrate the event. There is so much we can do to create an atmosphere of good will.

$300 in Cash

Well, here I am again, folks—your old friend, Maud Purina. You know me, with the kettle on my tail and the lightning in my heels. Here is a way for you to make some money and have a Barrel of Fun. Study what is happening here and tell the story in your own words. Lots of things COULD happen, and all you need is a little "mule sense" to figure it out. You don't have to be a story-writer; it's the thought behind the story that counts. Use pencil or pen, post or anything, and don't be afraid to try because I am going to pay cash for ideas, as follows:

- $100.00 for the best one
- $25.00 for the next best
- $15.00 for the third best
- $10.00 for the fourth best
- $5.00 each for the next 20
- $1.00 each for the next 50

Anyone may try who is interested in horses and mules—who either owns them, feeds them or knows someone else who does. You don't have to buy anything and you only need to do three things.

Make it short—not over 100 words—even a picture might win.

Mention Purina O-Molene, my favorite feed.

Tell the name of a dealer who keeps O-Molene.

Remember that Purina O-Molene is a real discovery in the feeding of horses and mules. It isn't a medicine, but only a wonderful way of preparing the good, wholesome grains, so that they go further than raw corn or oats. It keeps stock healthier and costs less to feed.

HURRY UP because the contest closes soon. Your story must be mailed by March 10, 1930, and the awards will be made about March 25. Everyone who tries will get a dandy little book soon after, containing the judges' report and some of the best and funniest answers. You can have a lot of fun over it some evening with your friends. The judges will be:

- Wm. H. Danforth, Pres. Ralston Purina Co., St. Louis.
- H. S. Gardner, Pres. Gardner & Co., St. Louis.
- L. F. Smith, American Educational Society, St. Louis.

Don't wait, but send your idea in to reach the judges in time.

SEND IT TO MAUD PURINA, PURINA MILLS, St. Louis, Mo.

ists here in town a pressing need for rooms that may be available to others besides the Community club.

At the regular meeting of the club held with Mrs. F. D. Walker Tuesday evening, it was voted to pay the club dues quarterly beginning April first. Members are requested to make note of this and make an effort to have dues paid up in full to that date. The name of Mrs. Dwight Jepson was favorably passed upon for reinstatement in the club.

A brief sketch of the points of historic interest in town and the attractions afforded tourists and travelers by auto is being prepared for this year's issue of the automobile blue book.

Those members of the club who can do so are requested to come to Firemen's hall this (Friday) afternoon at 2.30 to tie puffs for the fair.

The Community club expresses deep sympathy for its former president, Mrs. Viola Shaw, and sincere regret for her continued ill health. Her helpful and inspiring presence at the meetings has been greatly missed, and that she may soon be able to come among us again, is the heartfelt wish of all.

Grange Notes

The meeting for March 2 will be Agricultural night at the Grange. Topics of vital interest will be discussed. Poems and recitations will be given and special music rendered. There will be an apple guessing contest. The persons guessing the largest number of correct names of the varieties of apples will receive the following prizes: 1st, $1.00; 2nd, 75 cents; 3rd, 50 cents; 4th, 25 cents.

A prize of 50 cents for the best plate of apples shown and a second prize of 25 cents will be given. Only amateurs will be allowed to compete in the contest.

Famous Manufacturer Makes Connection Here

WINCHESTER COMPANY APPOINTS LOCAL STORE ITS REPRESENTATIVE TO SELL NEW PRODUCTS

The appointment of E. A. Fuller to sell in this community the new hardware and sporting goods manufactured by the Winchester Repeating Arms Company is announced. And in the opinion of leading merchants it is one of the most interesting and important developments the local retail trade has known.

First his family, next his dog, then comes his "Winchester," in the love of the best type of American. Almost every family seems to have possessed a Winchester at one time or another, and the love and respect for the good old gun is just about universal. And now that recently there have been many new additions to the Winchester "family," there is wide popular interest in the new cousins, and other relatives of the famous repeating rifle.

Fifty-three years ago the Winchester repeating rifle was placed on the market by the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, of New Haven, Conn. It was a good rifle, in fact the first truly successful repeater, and almost immediately achieved great popularity. This first success was made secure by the strength and vision of its makers, one of the first American concerns to build with the purpose of gaining and holding a dominant place in the world's industrial arena.

So large was the part played by the Winchester rifle in the settling of the great West and establishing law and order, that the name Winchester came into common use in place of the word rifle. And so high was the standard of manufacture maintained for it, that it was soon the favorite hunting rifle all over the world.

Improved models followed in the course of time, including the first completely successful repeating shotgun. And with the coming of smokeless powder the Winchester Company commenced the manufacture of ammunition, to insure Winchester users the best possible cartridges and shot shells for their rifles and shotguns. This proved to be an especially good move; for the continued superior shooting qualities of Winchester arms have for many years been partly attributed to ammunition being made for them in the same plant, by the same organization.

Now this great manufacturing establishment, tremendously expanded in the gigantic part it played in the winning of the World War, is apparently branching out to make all possible use of the additional knowledge, experience, and equipment thus acquired. New articles being made already include tools, cutlery, fishing tackle, flashlights, skates, etc. With half a century of experience and unexcelled equipment entering into their production, it is to be expected that these new products, made in the same skilled and workmanlike manner as the famous Winchester guns have been made for so long, will have merit above the ordinary.

To the good fortune of the many old friends of Winchester in the community who will be the first to wish to examine these new articles, we have here in town a retail hardware concern of such high standing as to be one of the first exclusively selected to present these new Winchester products to the buying public. The agreement thus carries with it the privilege and responsibility of representing the manufacturer more directly, than any retail merchant has heretofore done in the case of the Winchester Company.

A special invitation is being extended by the Winchester Company to all its friends in this district to visit "The Winchester Store" and see the latest additions to the Winchester "family." And as E. A. Fuller is likewise inviting everybody to do so, the store is enjoying a regular "old home week" of Winchester visitors. New friends will of course be equally welcome with old Winchester acquaintances.

"And to the mothers and fathers and surviving relatives the American Legion offers sympathy and love, and we stand united in the desire to so live and so act that the memory of your lost heroes will be a monument of hope guiding the sad and weary left behind.

"We all realize that to fall in battle is one of the greatest honors that can befall a man, that this has opened up for him a new world, a world uncurbed by autocracy's brood, a world of beauty, of brotherhood and of love. And may we see the better things of life made better by those gone on before.

"And to consecrate this memory, we, the American Legion, wish to impress upon you that much remains to be done here, here where the I. W. W. is striving to corrupt this nation, and we admonish each and every one to believe in the United States of America and to believe that your hopes and opportunities depend upon her future. We must do these things to insure the greatness of America's future and the 100 % Americans.

"The Post at this time wishes to pay its respects to the Grand Army of the Republic. May they feel that their ideals are our ideals, and that we wish to help them carry on their work with the same sacrifice made by them years ago.

"So we must carry on; we must in our weak way lighten the burdens for the mothers and fathers whose boys sacrificed that this nation might endure.

"We can but honor, cherish, bless Your sacred names; no words express
The measure of our thankfulness
To you our dead."

The Greatness of Washington

Rev. H. P. Rankin drew lessons from the life of Washington at the evening service of the Federated church last Sunday. Contrasting him with Lincoln, the theme of his address the week before, he said that each was a star in his own constellation. The forbears of Washington reached back to royalty whereas Lincoln's ancestors were of lowly birth so that the characteristics of each were somewhat different.

Mr. Rankin said that we think of Washington as a great patriot who loved his country and who sacrificed for it, realizing that it was a land above all other lands. He was also a philanthropist. He loved the people although not in the manner that Lincoln did. He suffered with his soldiers, quite in contrast with some Russian generals in the recent war who planned for themselves most sumptuously. Whenever any of his soldiers came to Washington complaining of circumstances, the great general said with truth that he was enduring in like manner.

He also said that Washington was a lover of truth. Perhaps he was not as truthful as stories make him out to be but the very fact that there were such stories about him indicated that he must have been a great lover of truth.

Washington was also a humble man as indicated in his public and private life. Mr. Rankin said in closing, "We should ever keep green, blessed and sweet the memory of him who could have been a king but who said, 'No, this is a republic and let it go on with increasing glory and beauty.' May his mantle fall on us in these days and find us his worthy descendants."

Death of Mrs. Ida F. King

Mrs. Ida F. King, age 50, died at her home Monday evening after a year's illness. She was born in Peru, the daughter of Frank and Mary E. Plantiff and was the widow of George King who died six years ago. Mr. and Mrs. King lived in Waltham eighteen years, coming back to town seven years ago.

Mrs. King is survived by her mother, Mrs. Mary E. Plantiff, a brother, Gaston Plantiff of New York, and a sister, Mrs. J. C. Robbins of Waltham.

Mrs. King sang in the choir of the Congregational church during the ministry of Rev. C. H. Smith, who was the officiating minister at her marriage, and who also assisted Rev. H. P. Rankin at her funeral service held in the chapel yesterday afternoon. Mrs. H. A. Hopkins sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Sleep on, Beloved, Sleep."

Break Out Roads

A practical demonstration of real community spirit was exhibited Wednesday when in response to the call of the selectmen and highway surveyor a large number of townspeople turned to and helped break out the roads, a proposition, which on account of repeated storms has well nigh broke the town as far as its appropriation for snow is concerned.

A party of twenty men and three teams struck in on the road beyond Guy Allen's leading by the E. A. Randall place, and broke the road through to the Prainitis place, where they were met by a gang of nine who were out in that section on similar intent. Counting all who helped along the way probably fifty men were on the job.

No body of men, so some one said, could be hired to work as these men worked. They started in at nine o'clock and stuck right to it. Of course the noon hour was duly observed. Two of the party served sandwiches and coffee, and Mrs. Dwight Randall "doughnated" doughnuts that a salvation army lassie would do well to heat.

While we have not as definite information concerning work in other parts of the town, we understand that in several sections parties were out and have little doubt but that their contributions were equally as generous and their community spirit equally as praiseworthy.

The combined efforts of all must have saved the town a considerable sum of money.

Tells of War Experiences

J. E. Cates, who is holding special evangelistic services in the M. E. church, varied his program on Monday night and told of his experiences in the World war. Mr. Cates was in the service 27 months, serving as lieutenant, and was under fire twenty days in France.

While Mr. Cates told of his experiences in the battle line, his comments on America, its army, its efficiency, the work of the Y. M. C. A. and kindred organizations were so

Turkey Hill of Long Ago

CHAPTER I

ITS SCHOOL HOUSE AND ITS JOURNEYS

Turkey Hill, so called, originally comprised the territory included in the two school districts now called Chestnut Hill and Rock Rimmon. Tradition tells us that this section owes its name to the fact that for years after the first settlers located here, large numbers of the wild turkeys which then abounded in this region gathered nightly from all points of the compass to roost in the heavy growth of timber which then covered the little elevation now known as Upham Heights. With the first appearance of dawn the turkeys, separating into small flocks, would fly away to their usual feeding grounds, but the shades of evening would find them all back in their favorite roosting place.

History tells us that it was characteristic of the early settlers of New England, as soon as a few families had provided themselves with homes, to found a church, to be quickly followed by the establishment of a school.

Just when a school was first established or where the school house was located, I have no means of knowing. The first reliable information that I have along this line is "that once upon a time" there was a set of small farm buildings standing on the north side of the road leading east from the Fernando Shaw farm to "Four Corners", on a nice level plot of ground now an apple orchard. The house was burned and the owner was not able to rebuild. About this time the residents of this section desired to establish a school, and in some way came into possession of the small barn which escaped the fire. They built a chimney with a huge fireplace, put in some rude benches and opened a school.

Back in those days school matters were managed in a primitive way. Each school district was a little republic by itself. Annually, usually in October, a warrant was posted on the school house calling upon all the voters in the district to meet at a stated time to choose a moderator to pecially interesting. Speaking of the dependability of the members of the American army he said that it was his experience that if you treat men as men, they will accord you like treatment. While some officers had trouble in keeping their men in line and had to have them guarded to prevent their escape, he had no such difficulty. He cited an instance where he allowed fifty of his men a twenty-four leave in New York. At the hour of expiration all but two had returned and five minutes later these came in breathless.

Speaking of the American army
Mr. Cates said that up to the time of the signing of the armistice it was the finest army that the sun ever shone upon, finest as regards morale, physical power and sobriety.
After the armistice was when the trouble began. The men were off tension, anxious to get home and time hung heavy. The consequence was that the record was not maintained.

Relative to sobriety Mr. Cates said that the American army was in marked contrast to the French and English. The French soldiers said,
"No wine—no war", and the English said, "No rum—no war."

The speaker of the evening also expressed a decided opinion against military training and said that the American people would never stand for it.

He had nothing but praise for the work of the Y. M. C. A., criticism of which, he said, made his blood boil. Some other welfare organizations which have been highly lauded, Mr. Cates said, never got within gun shot, although they did a good work back of the lines. But the Y.
M. C. A. secretaries, according to his personal observations, went to the very front. They were, in fact, everywhere. The fact that in some cases they did not dispense chocolate in the front lines was nothing to be wondered at. Even the government could not get food there and he asked how it could be expected that any luxuries would get there. He said that the whole affair was outrageous, unjustifiable and malignant. Even officers who were inclined to criticize were at the same time enjoying its many benefits.

Mr. Cates very interestingly described his trip across on the Leviathan, the camp at muddy Brest where it rained "380 days a year", his gradual approach to the roar of the guns, and the trenches and wire entanglements which were not simply the work of two armies but of two nations, much of the construction work being of concrete for which there is now no other use.

At the close of the address he exhibited a German iron cross and a fine pair of German binoculars, the former being secured by purchase and the latter a personal trophy of the war.

The Wedding Party

WITH NAMES OF INVITED GUESTS

Written by Mrs. H. F. Putnam and read at the Shumway wedding party.

As we assembled we were ushered in by a Fair child and found the house very prettily decorated—in a novel manner, with Green and White predominating. There were many Booths, both large and small,
at which refreshments were served,
which were profusely trimmed with Belles and flowers—most noticeable among them being Snow White Lillies, sweet Williams, Jack in the pulpit and Roses.

Because of the good Rhodes the attendance was unexpectedly large, including descendants of some very noted people—King Henry of England, Alfred the Great, the mighty man called Samson, Sir Isaac Newton, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln and Lord Wellington, as well as that good old lady who went to a cupboard to get her poor dog a bone.
The guests brought gifts both useful and beautiful and one New man came bearing under his arm a hand painting of a Shady Brook and beautiful trees among which were Harry woodpeckers. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful Pearl necklace with a Jasper clasp, and the bride's gift to the groom was a Lemon.

The refreshments were served in paper Baggs. We were no little surprised to find on opening them that they contained Sauer kroust prepared by a famous Cook. One Gay young man, having Eaton more than his share, had a severe and unexpected Paine.

The children were given to amuse them during the entertainment little electric toys that threw out Sparks.
There was one naughty little boy who would not play well with the rest but picked up his toy to Hurl, hurt his mother prevented this and restored order in Shum-way. After several recitations the young lady sang a Bard well.

As it was nearing the time for departure farewells were said and we departed to our several homes, some having to go as far as Dwight, Florence, Dana, Franklin, Fort Edward,
N. Y., Putnam, Ct., and Janes ville, Ill.

CHANGES AND ADDITIONS

Under this heading in our issue of Jan. 2, we printed a list of ministers who had gone out from Belchertown. Mrs. C. F. D. Hazen calls attention to the following errors and omissions.

Eleazer Owen was a Baptist and preached in New Hampshire.

Eliakim Phelps preached in West-Brookfield a hundred years ago. He belonged to a large family of Phelps.
Fred Phelps was a son of Dea. William and nephew of Eliakim and his name would not come in until after that of Wm. Montague. Fred studied for the ministry rather late in life and preached in Vermont.

After Eliakim Phelps I should put in Rev. William Sanford who preached in Boylston, a brother of Dea. Estes Sanford so recently with us.

Alphels Winter's name should come in after Wm. Montague's but before Fred Phelps', I think.

I should think Charles Bruce was older than Walter Blackmer.

Julian Tuthill's name was also omitted. He was a son of J. Tuthill and lived where Mrs. Sanford does.

I think there are others, some young men at the Blake's, but I cannot recall the names. Henry Blake said at the celebration that he wished he had his friends, Revs. Wm.
Wolcott and Woodworth, here.

Gilman Hannum spent all his young life here. He has a son who is pastor of one of the Holyoke churches.

Then there should be added to the list the name of Walter Terry, citizen, pastor of the Baptist church, then of the Methodist church, and whose wife is a Belchertown woman.

preside at the meeting; a clerk who was expected to keep a full record, not only of the doings of the officials elected thereat; a prudential committee who was to hire the teachers; and other committees deemed necessary. Though the prudential committee hired the teachers, they had to appear before the town committee for examination and be "approved" before they commenced their labors. They taught every alternate Saturday, and usually "boarded around". The amount paid for teaching and for board (when board was paid) I will speak of later. This method of management, with some modifications, continued in Belchertown until 1870 or 1871 when the town "took over" the school houses and the town school committee took full charge of all school matters.

But to return to our barn, newly converted into a temple of learning. For some years this was known as the Barn school house, and judging from the records and from folk lore I think pupils attended here not only from the Benevolent district (now Chestnut Hill) and the Washington district, but from Cherry Valley district in Ludlow.

Gradually the name, Barn school house, was discarded and the name Turkey Hill school was substituted, presumably because it was located near the base of Turkey Hill.

The early records of this little republic are incomplete; but so far as can be ascertained matters moved along quite smoothly until about 1835.

Some time prior to that date a school had evidently been established in the Benevolent district, also in the Washington district, which left the Turkey Hill school house far from the center of the section it was to serve. In 1835 and 1836 school meetings followed each other in rapid succession. It was voted to unite with the Benevolent school. It was voted to unite with the Washington school. It was voted to divide and a part go to one school and a part to the other. It was voted to move and repair the house. It was voted to build a new school house; but it ended in voting. No action appears to have been taken until late in 1836 when it was definitely decided to move the house to a more central location. Accordingly two sizable chestnut trees were fashioned like sled runners and placed under the sills of the house and many yokes of oxen drew the building westward up the hill to some point near its present location. Notwithstanding that it was moved from the hill from which it derived its name, it was still called the Turkey Hill school. Some years later it was christened Summit district No. 14, and later still Rook Rimon.

Sad to relate, in moving the house its troubles were not left behind, for a neighborhood quarrel immediately started relative to its exact location. During the first year after its removal it occupied at least three different sites, some of its journeyings being "between two days."

Finally at a meeting held Dec. 20, 1837, pursuant to a warrant issued to Charles Underwood, signed by Gideon Ames, Israel Town and Simon Pepper, selectmen of Belchertown, Welcome Bennett (who then lived on the farm now occupied by

Again the neighborhood oxen were called upon and they drew it from its then location in the triangular grove near by to its new site where it rested in peace, still on its faithful sled runners for just forty years when in 1877 it was enlarged and remodeled, the chestnut timbers removed and a brick foundation substituted. At this time the house was equipped with modern school furniture; the first school house in town (excepting the High) to be thus equipped. The residents manifested their interest in the school by contributing fifty dollars toward the expense, this being the estimated difference in cost over the home-made sort which otherwise would have been installed.

Death of Mrs. Elvira Paine Rhodes

PACKARDVILLE NEWS
Mrs. Elvira Paine Rhodes died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Hamilton in West Pelham, Mar. 5. Mrs. Rhodes was born in Ludlow, June 30, 1843, the daughter of Chester and Hannah Paine. In 1864 she married George D. Rhodes. The first period of their married life was spent in Belchertown where they had charge of the town farm. Later they moved to Milford, taking a similar position.

About twenty-five years ago they came to Packardville where they have lived until her failing health made it necessary for her to go to her daughter's last fall. She was a member of the Eastern Star and the Packardville church.

Besides her husband and daughter she leaves one son, Albert Rhodes of Hopedale, a sister, Miss Hannah Paine of Hopedale and two granddaughters, Ruth and Dorothy Hamilton. The funeral was held Sunday. Burial was in Milford.

Belchertown the Ideal Spot

Belchertown is the ideal spot. It certainly is. Here lies beauty. Here men live in accordance with humanitarian principles, here men have not been imbedded in the frantic rush of our day, here men live the simple life.

Beauty? Yes. For what other reason does the Central Vermont provide stop overs near Howard's famous orchards and the site of the new state school. "Stop over at Niagara" has long been a popular slogan, but "stop over at Belchertown" is liable to be the by-word of tomorrow.

Health? Yes. Observe it, my friend, as you look into the face of that young lad who has walked into the village, leaving his horse at home; notice how he is breathing deeply, just as the health expert said he would. Look and see the same easy movement on that person a bit older who also has come to town to do her weekly shopping. She has a horse but has chosen nature's way and is on the way to happiness.

Happiness? Yes. Belchertown may be noted for its happy people. See that party, do you? Out on pleasure bent? No, just out with shovels and a team breaking the roads. No inflated town treasury hanging over their heads! Just out for the love of Mike and Pat and all the rest of the people on the line. At lunch time no dollar a plate dinner with its 57 varieties for them, but good, old fashioned fare that kept dad alive in the good old days, and plenty of it. Happy? Yes. Community spirit? Yes. Wasn't out for it, but just got it "accidental like".

Humanitarian? Yes. How else can you construe it when store keepers on Saturday night discharge their tired help and stay alone themselves to give any persistent patrons that personal attention that up-to-date stores sometimes advertise.

Notice it everywhere, my friend, that "glad to see you" spirit, "How did you get here, anyway?" expression, that backward trend to the good old days when "neighbors was neighbors."

Yes, we ought to be encouraged that Belchertown is flavoring the new ways with the old, even though the road surveyor's hair grows white because of the falling snow. Never mind, take it from him, things are "warming up."

Turkey Hill of Long Ago

CHAPTER II

ITS TEACHERS AND THEIR WAGES

In the record book of the Turkey Hill school I find on the first page the following inscription: "A book of the proceeding in Turkey Hill District So cold in Belchertown"

The first business entry, in penmanship quite ornate, reads thus— "Belchertown Oct. 29th 1818" The proceedings of a school meeting in Turkey Hill District the 29

1 Chose Abner Hunt, Moderator
2 do. Ira Stacy, Clerk
3. do. Horatio Rice & Arba Stacy as Committee to hire a Master
4 do. John Hunt and Enos Cowlis as Committee to proportion the wood."

Sometimes the fuel was bought and paid for out of the school money apportioned to the district, but more often it was furnished by the parents of the pupils, the amount furnished by each parent being dependent upon the number of pupils sent.

In 1819 and 1820 the record book is silent; but in Nov. 1821 Calvin Bugbee as committee hired Charles Underwood (the grandfather of the Sentinel's Turkey Hill correspondent) to teach the winter term at $8.00 per month and he either furnished his own board or "boarded around". That means that he was furnished a certain number of meals in each home for each pupil attending school from that home. This beautiful custom was still in vogue when I commenced teaching in 1866.

This, as well as the practice then prevailing regarding fuel, seems crude; but it was rendered necessary because the amount of school money available was extremely small, and the people were willing to subject themselves to much inconvenience in order to add to their meager school advantages. Janitor service cost nothing then, the larger boys in each school taking turns in building the fires, and the girls in sweeping the rooms.

In the summer of 1822 Lydia Town taught 12 weeks for $1.00 per week; but as many of the pupils lived at a considerable distance from the school and as there was a little surplus of the school money allotted to the district by the town and state officials, the district very generously paid for Miss Town's board at "five shillings" (83 1/2 cents) per week, making

Anglo-American Friendship

There must be an understanding of one another if there is to be friendship. This is true of nations as well as of individuals. If there is to be friendship between England and America, for example, we must understand each other.

We must understand our differences. The English are a reticent people, we are expressive. How expressive we were when the War was on! We draped our pulpits with the American flag, we sang America at nearly every service, we put up the flag in our windows, across the streets, we carried the Stars and Stripes at the front of every procession that went down the avenue; we had service flags in our homes, our stores, our lodges and our churches, and whenever a soldier boy fell, we put up a gold star. But the English people did not drape their pulpits, they did not emblazon their streets with the Union Jack, and when one of their boys fell, they did not put on mourning. The English might call us ostentatious, but we were not. We might call them cold and unfeeling, but that would be untrue. Both were patriotic. We are simply different.

We Americans are an open people; the English are a closed people. The fog and the mist, the cloud and the rain, the chill and the damp, drive our English cousins indoors. The bright and sunny skies of America drive us to our porches. It is the same with our hearts. We are "good mixers" and make up with strangers quickly, and the English think we are too familiar. No, it is just our way. The Englishman is reserved; the door of his heart opens slowly and the hinges creak. We say he is cold. But it is not so. We are simply different.

We Americans are quick, the British are slow. The American can take the time to sing only the first, second and last stanzas of a hymn, the Britisher will sing every stanza. The Britisher will sit and sip at his cup of tea, the American will eat and be on the run. The English are slow and meditative, the American is quick and alert.

We will be better friends with the English if we understand our differences. We are not wholly right; they are not wholly wrong. We need each other to make a complete whole.

ing the total cost of the school for one year $46.00.

The next year the record fails to tell us about the teacher; but it gives us an idea of the amount of fuel consumed in the huge fireplaces of yesteryear in 12 short weeks. The record says, "Voted to git the wood at the lowest bidder. Voted to git 12 cords of wood—

Joshua Cowl 3 cords 8 shillings per cord

Enos Cowl 3 cords 8

John Giddings 3 cords 8

Arba Stacy 3 cords 9"

The record for 1824 and the following summer reads: "Hired Mr. Reuben Green to instruct the winter school three months at nine dollars a month. Hired Miss Lydia Towne to instruct the summer school twelve weeks for one dollar a week. Hired her boarded for 75 Cents a week.

Giles Perkins Clerk"

For the winter term of 1825-6: "Hired Lieut. Abraham R. Murdock three months at 12 dollars. Hired Miss theodotia Howard" (probably a resident of the district) "seventeen weeks to teach summer school at 4/6 per week $12.75" Theodotia also taught in the summer of 1828 and all of the following year, receiving for 18 weeks in winter "9 shillings per week—$27.00. Do Summer, 13 weeks $15.17".

The record of the October meeting, 1829, is quite interesting and shows us that phonetic spelling was introduced earlier than many of us suspected. "Prosedings of er scool meting Oct. the 8 1829 Chose Moderator Israil Town, Elijah Whitney Clerk Erjurnd the meting to Oct 13th 1829

"Hired Stillmun Green to teach the winter scool tu muns and or half 25.00 Hired — Hunt to teach the summer scool 15 weeks $15.00".

I suspect, but am not sure, that this "Stillmun Green" was Samuel Hillman Green; the author of Green's series of Grammars which are in general use in the schools in his vicinity for many years. Mr. Green was a native of Belchertown.

In 1830 I assume that the school was larger than usual as it was "Voted that no scholars from other districts should be admitted the ensuing winter." The winter term of 1830-1 was taught by Asa Clark $27.50 and Lora Clark taught 12 weeks and 4 days in summer for $4.66.

D. D. HAZEN

The next winter found Theodotia again at the helm and she was now considered worth $8.00 per month. Eliza Ann Stebbins (daughter of Josiah Stebbins of Lake Vale District) taught the summer term for $1.00 per week; but in addition to this she secured a husband and a home in the district; she became the wife of Dea. Elbridge Bugbee.

In the winter of 1834 Mr. Oramel Bardwell, a prominent man in the community and a teacher of note, taught ten weeks for $30.00. In the summer Sarah Ferry taught 18 weeks at seven shillings per week $21.00. Total expense $51.00. But the town allowance for Turkey Hill was only $46.95. The record shows that Aaron Walker (probably Orrin Walker) and Francis Wilden each contributed $1.50 toward the deficiency, leaving $1.05 still due.

The next winter Edwin W. Weston taught for $3.00 per week and Harriet Stacy in summer for 8 shillings. For the next 15 years the records are devoted largely to an account of the quarrels relative to the location of the school house, and nothing is said regarding the teachers and little about expenses.

My first introduction to school room life was in the summer of 1850. Letitia M. Fisher, a resident of the district was the teacher; she boarded at home and received $15 for 12 weeks teaching. She is now Mrs. John Gray of Cambridge.

Mr. Francis Curtis for $3.00 per week taught the winter term of 1852-3, and Alvira Clark taught the two succeeding summers. Though a teacher of much experience, her salary was only $1.50 per week.

Harriet R. Lane of Barre, who, I am told, is still living in Worcester county, taught the winter term of 1853-4. I remember her as one of the most popular teachers of her day; she was much beloved by all her pupils.

The winter of 1854-5 Mary Blodgett was paid $3.50 per week. This was the first time the salary in this district had ever exceeded $12.00 per month, but the following winter she received only $3.00 per week. In the summer of 1856 her sister, Ellen Blodgett, (now of Maple St.) taught for the usual wage, $1.25 per week. Sallie Brown of West Hill taught the following winter. The summer term was taught by Marietta Blodgett, who, under that name and the name of Mrs. E. B. Gay, taught several terms. William Blackmer was in charge of the school the winter of 1857 and William Nottage taught an excellent school the following winter.

Other teachers of the Turkey Hill school in ante bellum days were Ira Stacy, Paulina Road, Eliza Walker, J. R. Keith, Maria Ferry, Jane E. Hyde, Clara Dana, Mary Ann Powers and Sarah West.

Teachers of later date to whom I am greatly indebted for assistance and encouragement and of whom I have many pleasant recollections are Sophie Barrett, Martha Curtis, Amelia R. Bliss, Eugenie L. Bushnell and Viola I. Thompson. Of these, all but the last named have passed the Great Divide.

Others who taught here forty or more years ago are Florence Bennett, Loretta J. Barber, Miss Hall, Lydia A. Barton, Lyda C. Dickinson, Ellen C. Moody, Leila Shunway, Alvertus W. Morse, Emily E. Bartlett, Marietta S. Gay, Emma L. Barber, Belle Upham Morse, Mary Jane Capen, Minnie M. Warner, Martha L. Nelson, Mattie E. Washburn, Ella Upham Nutting, Hattie Bannister, Abbie M. Hubbard, Katie Colton.

St. Patrick's Day Fair

"Come you nigh, come you nigh To the COM-UN-ITY Fair." We answered the call and The night found us there Midst the green and the white, The frolic and fun,
And the kindest of greetings Under the sun.
Yes, we ate our "rare bit," Deliciously fine:
No mortal disturbed us With even a whine.
And we ate and we sipped In a real pleasant nook,
In sight of the rainbow And the "Blarney Stone brook."

And when we had finished, Our quest we began
For the gold in the pot;
And, lo, some of us ran Into the next booth
Where they all wished us well With ice cream and something,
Nobody can tell

Just what it was; so Fast onward we went,
When right 'neath our noses We found a rare scent,
And the reason therefor Were posies so fair.
We wanted to take one,
But how did we dare

To take on our trip To the rainbow that night
The least little thing That would lose us the fight.

So sandy and peanuts, Although they were good,
Home made and all that,
And a table of food

And fancy work, too, That told of fine art
Just could not detain us; We had to depart.

And so as we travelled The road all alone,
Lo, what did we see But a real Blarney stone.

We felt of it, lifted it, Made a good guess
And left ten cents With the sweet little miss

Who said if 'twas right And our gold should get split, She'd give us for nothing A real pretty quilt.

Holds Annual Meeting

The Board of Trade held its annual meeting in Engine House hall Monday evening. The chief subject of discussion was the Federal road and its prospective influence upon the future of Belchertown. Large road maps were displayed which showed the transcontinental automobile trunk lines, one of which on the completion of the new Federal section, will pass through this town. As the road now runs, the easterly section comes through Albany, Pittsfield, Springfield, Worcester and Boston, which is necessarily circuitous by reason of taking in Springfield. The new piece of Federal road will run through Pittsfield, Northampton, Amherst, Enfield and Ware, meeting the New York-Boston road at West Brookfield, which will form almost a straight course from Pittsfield to Worcester and Boston.

It was pointed out that as the main line from Buffalo runs through the Mohawk valley, the main artery of contact with the west and the lake regions, we are likely some day to find ourselves living on a main thoroughfare.

This year on the Belchertown-Amherst road there is to be new construction reaching as far south as the base of the hill below Holland lake, and the road bed to be put in is understood to be such that it will form a fitting part of the new highway. In addition to money furnished by the state, it is expected that Federal funds will also be expended.

The Board of Trade considered the advisability of getting in touch with citizens in the various towns along the proposed route to help further the interests of the new proposition and to see if it would not be a good idea to place suitable signs at West Brookfield pointing autoists to the "Hampshire Trail" or the "Federal Road" or whatever it may become.

The matter of properly accommodating the skilled labor which will come from Boston and other cities to work at the state school in the spring was informally discussed. The Community club has already, on request of the president of the Board of Trade, appointed a committee to ascertain who are going to be in a position to provide suitably for their entertainment.

The opinion was also expressed that, in order to meet the needs of so many of our prospective visitors who are undoubtedly accustomed to city life, something attractive in the line of entertainments should be provided so that Belchertown will in a real sense be to them a "homey spot".

The old board of officers was re-elected for the ensuing year: D. D. Hazen, pres.; Roswell Allen, E. A. Fuller, vice presidents; W. E. Shaw, sec'y; A. F. Bardwell, treas.; H. F. Peek, G. H. B. Green, D. P. Spencer, finance committee.

New members are always welcome in the Board of Trade. The interest, of course, varies in proportion as times and events change, but the organization usually has a job on that, while it may not mean immediate results, will pave the way for big things which never come in a day.

Grange Notes

In spite of the weather and the almost impassable condition of the roads, grangers gathered from the extreme eastern and western sides of the town and all along the way on Tuesday evening to pay tribute to good old St. Patrick, and one might have easily imagined all were descendants of natives of Erin's isle by the enthusiasm with which they entered into the spirit of the program which follows.

Song, "Take me back to my Irish Rose," girls' chorus; paper, "St. Patrick and Irish legends," Mrs. H. F. Curtis; song, "Ireland must be Heaven," Madeline Orlando, Gladys Gay, with accordian accompaniment by Walter Dodge; song, "I'm dreaming of old Erin," mixed chorus; talk on the Orange man and Fenians; by Geo. H. B. Green; Irish melody in costume; "America" by Katie and Mickey (Mickey being conspicuous by his absence); sketch of Emerald Isle of today, Miss Margaret Moriarty; song, "Hippity-hop," Theodore Hazen; recitation; Mrs. Hawes.

The first chapter of a serial story, written and read by Mrs. H. F. Putnam, was given, a second chapter to follow at the next meeting. "A cup of good old Irish tea" with sandwiches was served by the committee in charge. A good, old fashioned time was enjoyed by all, with more to follow.

Naming the Streets

A SUGGESTION

I would suggest that New street be re-named Highland avenue because of the high elevation of its eastern portion.

E. C.

St. Patrick's Day Fair

"Come you nigh, come you nigh
To the COM-U-NI-TY Fair."
We answered the call and
The night found us there
Midst the green and the white,
The frolic and fun,
And the kindest of greetings
Under the sun.

Yes, we ate our "rare bit,"
Deliciously fine;
No mortal disturbed us
With even a whine.

And we ate and we sipped
In a real pleasant nook,
In sight of the rainbow
And the "Blarney Stone brook."

And when we had finished,
Our quest we began
For the gold in the pot;
And, lo, some of us ran

Into the next booth
Where they all wished us well
With ice cream and something,
Nobody can tell

Just what it was; so Fast onward we went,
When right 'neath our noses
We found a rare scent,

And the reason therefore
Were posies so fair.
We wanted to take one,
But how did we dare

To take on our trip
To the rainbow that night
The least little thing
That would lose us the fight.

So sandy and peanuts,
Although they were good,
Home made and all that,
And a table of food

And fancy work, too,
That told of fine art
Just could not detain us;
We had to depart.

And so as we travelled
The road all alone,
Lo, what did we see
But a real Blarney stone.

We felt of it, lifted it,
Made a good guess
And left ten cents
With the sweet little miss

Who said if 'twas right
And our gold should get split,
She'd give us for nothing
A real pretty quilt.

Holds Annual Meeting

The Board of Trade held its annual meeting in Engine House hall Monday evening. The chief subject of discussion was the Federal road and its prospective influence upon the future of Belchertown. Large road maps were displayed which showed the transcontinental automobile trunk lines, one of which on the completion of the new Federal section, will pass through this town. As the road now runs, the easterly section comes through Albany, Pittsfield, Springfield, Worcester and Boston, which is necessarily circuitous by reason of taking in Springfield. The new piece of Federal road will run through Pittsfield, Northampton, Amherst, Enfield and Ware, meeting the New York-Boston road at West Brookfield, which will form almost a straight course from Pittsfield to Worcester and Boston.

It was pointed out that as the main line from Buffalo runs through the Mohawk valley, the main artery of contact with the west and the lake regions, we are likely some day to find ourselves living on a main thoroughfare.

This year on the Belchertown-Amherst road there is to be new construction reaching as far south as the base of the hill below Holland lake, and the road bed to be put in is understood to be such that it will form a fitting part of the new highway. In addition to money furnished by the state, it is expected that Federal funds will also be expended.

The Board of Trade considered the advisability of getting in touch with citizens in the various towns along the proposed route to help further the interests of the new proposition and to see if it would not be a good idea to place suitable signs at West Brookfield pointing autoists to the "Hamphire Trail" or the "Federal Road" or whatever it may become.

The matter of properly accommodating the skilled labor which will come from Boston and other cities to work at the state school in the spring was informally discussed. The Community club has already, on request of the president of the Board of Trade, appointed a committee to ascertain who are going to be in a position to provide suitably for their entertainment.

The opinion was also expressed that, in order to meet the needs of so many of our prospective visitors who are undoubtedly accustomed to city life, something attractive in the line of entertainments should be provided so that Belchertown will in a real sense be to them a "homey spot".

The old board of officers was re-elected for the ensuing year: D. D. Hazen, pres.; Roswell Allen, E. A. Fuller, vice presidents; W. E. Shaw, sec'y; A. F. Bardwell, treas.; H. F. Peek, G. H. B. Green, D. P. Spencer, finance committee.

New members are always welcome in the Board of Trade. The interest, of course, varies in proportion as times and events change, but the organization usually has a job on that, while it may not mean immediate results, will pave the way for big things which never come in a day.

Grange Notes

In spite of the weather and the almost impassable condition of the roads, grangers gathered from the extreme eastern and western sides of the town and all along the way on Tuesday evening to pay tribute to good old St. Patrick, and one might have easily imagined all were descendants of natives of Erin's isle by the enthusiasm with which they entered into the spirit of the program which follows.

Song, "Take me back to my Irish Rose," girls' chorus; paper, "St. Patrick and Irish legends," Mrs. H. F. Curtis; song, "Ireland must be Heaven," Madeline Orlando, Gladys Gay, with accordion accompaniment by Walter Dodge; song, "I'm dreaming of old Erin," mixed chorus; talk on the Orange man and Fenians; by Geo. H. B. Green; Irish melody in costume; "America" by Katie and Mickey (Mickey being conspicuous by his absence); sketch of Emerald Isle of today, Miss Margaret Moriarty; song, "Hippity-hop," Theodore Hazen; recitation; Mrs. Hawes.

The first chapter of a serial story, written and read by Mrs. H. F. Putnam, was given, a second chapter to follow at the next meeting. "A cup of good old Irish tea" with sandwiches was served by the committee in charge. A good, old fashioned time was enjoyed by all, with more to follow.

Give Heed to Belief

It has been our custom to pour all manner of contempt on creeds. We have applauded the man who says: "It makes no difference what one believes. The important thing is what one does." We have laughed at the man who would talk doctrine to us. We have poo-pooed at the scholar or theologian who would emphasize belief.

We have been living in an age of action. The miracles wrought in the scientific world within the last twenty years is proof enough. In the business world a man is judged by results. The supreme question is, "What can he do?" We do not ask the preacher, "What is your belief?" but we put to him this question, "Can you get your message across?" We have overstressed action.

It is time that we considered the fact that back of every action there is a creed. Why did the Germans act as they did in the war? Because they had a defective belief. They listened to such men as Naumann and Nietzsche who taught that the law of self-interest was the law of human life and that the Golden Rule was not to be applied to international life. Germany acted as she did because she had a false creed and her creed was, "Might makes right." The German government acted as any government would act who held to such a belief. Having the creed that she did, treaties were but mere scraps of paper and certain ends must be secured regardless of means.

One of the great needs of the day is a correct belief. We have had the idea that scientific inspiration has been the result of action, but Tyndale declared that it is the result of long reflection. Edison found it so. Most of the hours of the day were spent in study; only few in action. We need in this day when the whole world seems to be in a state of chaos to do much quiet and clear and prolonged thinking, get a few great ideas so deeply rooted in our minds that we shall not be easily awayed by every wind that blows. Then shall our actions be right.

CHAPTER III

RESIDENTS OF THE EAST ROAD

In speaking of the old residents of Turkey Hill I shall confine myself almost exclusively to those residing within the present limits of Rock Rimmon district, trusting that some one more familiar with the early history of Chestnut Hill and Washington may feel impelled to write of those sections.

The Rock Rimmon school house is located very near the exact geographical center of the district, which is approximately two miles in diameter, and there are four principal roads leading to this center. Commencing with the east road near the Ludlow line stands a low, wood-colored house which has withstood the storms of many winters. Here lived John Giddings in the early 20's and the records show that for ten years he took a prominent part in the affairs of the district. He was followed by Asahel Blodgett and he in turn by his son, Alonzo Blodgett (who later owned and occupied the homestead where George E. Scott now lives). It was from this home that two of the teachers named in my last letter came. Alonzo's son, Edward P., was associated with him for a time and they were interested in sheep husbandry. Edward went west in 1859 where he died a year later. Soon after, Mr. Blodgett sold the farm to William Baggs, who later sold to his neighbor, Seymour D. Talmage. Since then the house has been occupied by many transient tenants.

The place next north was the home of Theodore Blodgett, a half brother of Alonzo. He built the house now there and sold the place to S. D. Talmage whose home it was for many years. The next owner and occupant was Amasa M. Baggs who sold to Peter Adama.

A quarter of a mile east of this house on a fertile plot of land, with no public road leading to it, there stood, more than a hundred years ago, a large, two story, weather beaten house owned by Simeon Fay. There was a large family of children and one of the daughters married her nearest neighbor, Theodore Blodgett. Another one became the wife of Samuel Sheldon and later a resident of Turkey Hill.

Mr. Fay was something of a philosopher and managed to extract all the comfort and happiness out of his prosaic life that seemed possible. No matter what befell him, it was always "all right" with him. He owned a bog meadow which he usually mowed for feed. One year he got to mow it quite early in June when the grass was only half grown. A neighbor said to him, "Didn't you make a mistake in cutting your grass so early?" "Oh no," said Mr. Fay. "The hay is tender and nice; the cattle eat it like rowen. I mean always to mow it in June."

The next year work moved slowly and heavy rains came early in the fall, and when the meadow froze over in November the grass was still uncut. While the boys were skating Thanksgiving day, Mr. Fay was haying. He told the boys, "Best time in the world to mow a bog meadow is when the ice covers the bogs and holds the grass up stiff and straight. It cuts just as easy and the cattle eat it just about as well. Yes, always mow meadows after it freezes." If more of us could adopt his cheerful view of the affairs of life, how much it would add to our happiness and diminish our worries. After Mr. Fay's death the place became a part of the Talmage farm and the buildings were demolished.

The next place is what is remaining of the Fernando Shaw farm. This was once among the best farms in the district, but its glory has departed. I have seen three dwellings, two mills and one barn on this place go up in smoke and one dwelling was taken down and moved away. For a long time prior to 1830 and for twenty years thereafter Dea. Gurdon Abbott, an active member of the Baptist church lived here. After his death the place was sold to Truman Cleveland, who leased to various tenants until the house was burned. The only tenant I remember was Nelson Sheldon. The farm was then sold to Enoch Gilbert Shaw. A new house was built and later his son, Fernando G., associating himself in business with him, another tenement was added to the dwelling, a cider mill, a saw and grist mill erected, and this now desolate place was a busy, thriving homestead for many years.

A little to the east on this same farm once stood a small dwelling occupied by William Bell.

Holy Week Services

The Federated church will observe Holy week with special Lenten services each evening with the exception of Saturday. On Thursday, Holy Communion will be observed. The bell will be rung each day at noon as a special call to prayer in accordance with a country wide appeal for a thoughtful and prayerful attitude during the week which is year by year being more widely observed.

Extension School

The two day extension school under the auspices of Union Grange will open this morning at ten o'clock in Grange hall. Prof. L. F. Paine, head of the poultry department at M. A. C., will give lectures both morning and afternoon. Four subjects will be presented, two in each period. There will also be demonstrations of killing and culling for layers, breeders, etc. Prof. Paine will be assisted by Mr. Banta of the M. A. C.

The noon period will be a social hour. Every one is asked to bring a lunch. The Grange will serve hot coffee.

On Saturday beginning at ten o'clock Prof. Draine will talk on fruit and a demonstration of pruning of both old and young trees will be given. If travelling permits there will be a demonstration of pruning and spraying on Turkey Hill in the afternoon.

These lectures and demonstrations are free to every one and it is hoped that many will avail themselves of the opportunity.

B. H. S. Entertainment

The B. H. S. entertainment in Grange hall this evening at eight o'clock will have many interesting features. A scene will be presented from the Merchant of Venice and there will also be a farce entitled "Borrowing Trouble". There will be music, readings, and a dialogue by two young men. Refreshments will be served and ice cream will be on sale.

Naming the Streets

A SUGGESTION

I would suggest that New St. be called Alden Ave. in honor of members of the Alden family who have served their country. The late A. D. Alden served in the Civil war and his grandsons, Alden and Stanley DeMoss, did their part in the World war. It is also appropriate as the Alden family resides on this street.

Dies in New York

L. Whitney Searle, formerly of this town, died at his home in New York on Monday. He was the son of Bela P. and Juliet Warner Searle and moved here with the family from Holyoke, occupying the farm owned for a number of years by Geo. H. Guest.

He graduated from Amherst college in 1878, and later taught in Greenwich Academy, Ct., and at Ossining, N. Y. While there he took up the study of law and was engaged in the practise of the same up to the time of his last illness. He was the last of a family of seven children but leaves a number of nephews and nieces.

During recent years he has been an occasional visitor in town and has always been interested in the people here. He was one of the large subscribers to stock in the Community League.

Funeral services were held at the chapel yesterday afternoon. Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Still further east at the foot of the hill near where the Barn school house originally stood, was a small, one story house owned and occupied before 1850 by Whiting Sheldon. His tragic death in the late autumn of that year gave me a shock that stamped the details indelibly on my memory, though I was but four years old at the time. He was a laborer and was driving a team delivering wood in Springfield for my grandfather, Charles Bennett of Ludlow.

At this time the Western railroad as it was then called—now the Boston and Albany—crossed the high-way near the Indian Orchard station at grade. Returning from the city Whiting Sheldon, Justin Lombard and another, each with a wood team, approached this crossing just as the afternoon express was due. They were a hilarious trio, racing horses.

Holy Week

Holy Week begins next Monday. It will be more generally observed this year than ever before. The writer heard recently a pastor of a communion which has almost totally ignored the week, praying for God's blessing to rest upon the work of the churches in the Lenten period. Under the influence of the Interchurch World Movement, all the churches in many communities will either separately or jointly hold religious services. And Good Friday services were never as numerous as they will be this year.

We call Sunday a holy day because we consecrate it to the service of God. For the same reason we call next week a holy week.

At least one week of the year ought to be set apart and devoted to spiritual ends. For one week the mind should be concentrated on the things which are of highest moment. One day is not a sufficiently long period to concentrate on vital religion. And what week is more fitting for this purpose than the week which celebrates the one when our Lord cleansed the temple, encountered his enemies, instituted the holy communion, prayed in Gethsemane and hung upon the cross?

During Holy Week we should lay aside all reading except that which will help us to concentrate our minds on the things we would keep central. No Holy Week should pass without a re-reading of such books as Bunyan's Pilgrim Progress, or Thomas A Kempis "The Imitation of Christ." And why not read at a single sitting one of the four gospels, or the events of Holy Week as recorded in the four Gospels?

All the other weeks of the year will be happier and more serviceful if this week is kept holy.

and oblivious to all else. Justin was ahead and fortunately cleared the rails, but Sheldon was exactly in the path of the engine; and there was hardly enough of him or the horse found to hold an inquest over.

The place was then sold and became a part of the then Gardon Abbott farm. For the next forty or more years this was tenant property. Among those who occupied the house for a season were William Comstock, Luther Chamberlain, Harry Towne, William Millard and Emory Dudley.

There were also two of whom I wish to speak more fully. One I will call Mr. John, because that was not his name. He was a shiftless, happy-go-lucky fellow who shirked all responsibility and detested work. As often happens in such cases Mrs. John was of a different type, willing to do her share and more. The family was large and the burden of its support fell almost wholly on her. The children had no clothing suitable to wear to school; and they often went to bed hungry, and the poor mother was almost discouraged.

Mr. John had what he called "a great, noble dog", one of the kind that the cost of keep is almost as much as that of a cow. His wife begged him to dispose of this dog as the children were in such desperate need. Mr. John finally said he would try to sell him. A few evenings later he came home without the dog and gladdened the heart of his wife by proudly announcing that he had sold Lion for a hundred dollars. His wife, with face wreathed in smiles, and tears of joy in her eyes said, "Oh, I'm so glad. Did you get your pay?" "No, I don't get that until next week." "And next week," she said, "we will have one hundred dollars in cash and I can get the children so many, many things that they need." "Oh no, I don't get cash. I traded Lion for two highblooded female pups at fifty dollars each."

Now this story is not amusing; far from it. It is pathetic, because it is true.

Within my remembrance Belchertown has had its full quota of eccentric characters, but I think few more unique than one who for a time was a tenant here. His name was Owen. If I ever knew his first name I have forgotten it, but for some cause he was given the nickname Quillywheel, and was universally known as Quilly Owen. He was a large man, a good worker and an enormous eater. He worked around the neighborhood by the day, his price being fifty cents per day and his dinner, summer or winter. One day a neighbor met him on the road and said, "Quilly, if you will come up and help me tomorrow I will give you a good dinner and half a dollar." Quilly, who had a hot temper, prefacing his remarks with some forbidden words, said, "I won't come near you. I won't work for half a dollar. I'll have fifty cents or I won't have nothin'."

Regarding Quilly's capacity for eating, it was related that one Cattle Show day a half dozen of the carriage shop boys proposed giving him a dinner and told him they would pay for all he could eat. Escorting him to an oyster tent, they told the proprietor to supply his every want. The story is that he ate a four quart pan of baked beans, five oyster stews, two mince pies, besides doughnuts and cheese, washed down by a liberal supply of hot coffee, and that when he left the tent he looked longingly at the only pie remaining; the spirit was willing, but the flesh was weak. A Letter of Appreciation

Springfield, Mass., Mar. 14, 1920.

Mr. Editor:—

I was much interested in the reminiscences of the old time schools and their teachers in B., especially in the Turkey Hill section, and was quite pleased to find the name of my grandfather, Calvin Bugbee, as one of the school committee and also of my mother, Eliza Ann Stebbins, as teacher in one of the schools. Her name is correct, but she was the eldest daughter of Henry and Anna Jones Stebbins, my grandfather and grandmother, instead of Josiah Stebbins. He was the youngest son of Henry Stebbins, and I know of no other Josiah Stebbins among the Stebbins family.

It is also true that she found a husband there and a home in a nearby district. They lived there for a while but later they removed to Chicopee where she died when I was only seven years old. Later on my father, Dea. Elbridge G. Bugbee returned to Turkey Hill to care for his ageing parents, Calvin and Betsy Bugbee, and built for himself a new house and cared for them as long as they lived. He died there and was buried in your beautiful cemetery on the hill, Mt. Hope. The remains of my mother, Eliza Ann Stebbins Bugbee, were removed from the cemetery at the north end (Pond Hill, I think you call it now) and laid beside his, all the Stebbins family being buried in the north end cemetery, while the Bugbee family, except my father, were buried in the south cemetery. So you see I am a great deal interested in your good old town of Belchertown.

I also find many names you speak of whom I used to know and some whom I have known all these years are still living. I have always spent some time every year until quite recently with some of my old friends there, although I have lived in Springfield all my married life, over fifty-six years. We passed the fifty-sixth anniversary of our marriage on the twenty-fifth of February last.

B. H. S. Entertainment

The entertainment given by the High school seniors last Friday evening was unquestionably successful. The class satisfactorily increased its treasury; and, judging by the comments heard around town the next day, the audience was well pleased.

The program was varied and reflected credit upon the class and their school mates who helped them. The opening number, a piano solo by Irene Vezina, was followed by a reading by Myrtle Blackmer. Theodore Hazen sang "Kid Days" while Marjorie Peeso and Charles Scott posed in a tableau. Miss Coon read "The House by the Side of the Road." After another piano solo, the Sophomores read the trial scene from the "Merchant of Venice." It was a rather difficult scene to present, and their interpretation was quite commendable.

The most hearty applause was won by Eben Campbell. From the depth of an imposing derby hat, holding a realistic rifle, he sang in true comedian manner "Goodbye Ma," and "Katie."

Then followed a tableau in which Louis Osborne represented the care-free youngster with a fish pole, known in song as "Patches." Walter Dodge and James Aldrich gave a dialogue, each trying to tell a bigger fib than the other. They were well matched, and the contest closed as a tie.

After a reading by Harold Hazen, the Seniors presented a farce, "Borrowing Trouble." Newell Booth was Mr. Borrow, who lived up to his name, going so far as to borrow a counterfeit bill, thereby incurring danger of arrest by the detective, Cornelius Lynch. Alice Booth was Mrs. Borrow, and Gladys Gay, Miss Barrow. Eleanor Bardwell played very cleverly the part of Mahitable March, a talkative neighbor. Catherine McKillop was Mrs. Wiggins, the landlady from whom Mr. Borrow "borrowed nearly everything he bought for family use." The entire Borrow family and Mrs. March were suddenly stricken at supper with a terrible malady which they thought must be cholera. The doctor, Francis Allen, confirmed their suspicions and condemned the milk because of its peculiar appearance. The faithful servant, whose part was well played by Earl Witt, then confessed that he had spilled the borrowed mustard into the borrowed milk on the way upstairs. The family speedily recovered.

A solo by Theodore Hazen concluded the program. Refreshments were served and ice cream offered for sale. It was pleasant in this age of profiteering, to find perfectly good sandwiches, cake, and coffee supplied free of charge.

Wrestling Bouts

The first of a series of amateur wrestling bouts will be held in the Town hall Tuesday evening, April 6, at eight o'clock.

There will be three contests, one light weight and two heavy. Lincoln Cook and Leon Williams will participate in the first, and Harry Sessions and Eugene Flaherty, and Bert Shaw and Harold Ketchen in the latter.

Catch as Catch Can will be the style,—best two out of three falls. Dr. J. L. Collard will act as referee.

The management considers wrestling a clean, athletic sport and is going to insist that the bouts be conducted in sportsmanlike fashion.

Special Easter Services

Special Easter services of the Federated church will include a sunrise prayer meeting at 7 a. m. in the chapel led by Theodore Hazen and Earl Witt, a prayer meeting in the chapel at 10 o'clock led by Mr. Kilmer, morning worship at 10.45 with special music by full chorus choir and reception of new members, and an Easter concert by the Sunday School at 7.30 p. m. An Easter offering for benevolent purposes will be taken at the Sunday services.

The Extension School

A number of our citizens attended the two-day Extension school held under the auspices of Union Grange last Friday and Saturday. The school was opened by A. H. MacDougall of the Hampshire County Farm Bureau, who stated the reasons and the plan of the school.

Friday was poultry day and the speakers and demonstrators were Profs. Paine and Banta of the Mass. Agricultural college. Each manifested a desire to meet the specific needs of the company present and answered many questions from the floor.

Some of their statements, they admitted, overthrew old theories (which, by the way, they thought was sometimes a hobby) but they seemed to have the facts to back up what they said.

Prof. Paine, the first speaker, for the benefit of the back yard poultrymen, gave a few suggestions regarding the raising of chickens by natural means. He advocated sods as the basis of a brooding nest and cautioned against dusting hens with too much commercial lice powder at the time of setting them, as it had very serious results.

One theory Prof. Paine overthrew was that one can't count his chickens before they are hatched. He produced a chart made as a result of a test with more than a thousand eggs set both in machines and under hens. This showed the exact number of chicks dying in the shell each day with the percentage of the total number. Taken together, during the first thirteen days 39.4 per cent of the total mortality occurred and 60.6 during the last eight days. He said that after two weeks of incubation, upon this basis one could with comparative accuracy count his chickens.

Speaking of artificial incubation, Prof. Paine said that the more times a day the eggs are turned the better the hatches that are being procured. Prof. Banta figuratively took the chickens out of the incubator and prescribed for their comfort from the cradle to the grave. While he had everything figured out precisely, his knowledge was not purely academic as he knew a hen when he saw it, his education involving the caretaking (continued on page 4)
